BUILDINGS AND WORKS.

PROGRESS OF THE TRADE.

THE SUPPLY OF BRICKLAYERS.

The Bricklayers' Union of N. S. Wales recently sent a number of circulars to the unions of Great Britain warning the bricklayers of the mother country against emigrating to this State. The Master Builders' Association takes strong exception to the statements in the circulars. In all probability steps will be taken to let the people of England know that bricklayers are wanted here, and that every other class of tradesman can find employment. Indeed, the more men the more work. No matter how many people come to Australia they each bring a little capital and they require houses. It means more work for the baker and the butcher and tradesmen generally; but the narrow-minded unionist believes these people will take his job away from him. He is not able to make the country progress single-handed, and he adopts the policy of preventing other people from getting a share of the good things of this State.

Mr. Richards, secretary of the Master Builders' Association, in discussing the subject, said:—"In their circular the union admits that early last year there was a decided shortage of workers in the building trade; but that they, the Bricklayers' Union, strongly objected to bricklayers being brought out here. They endeavoured to prevent the immigration of bricklayers by stating that there was no shortage, although they admit now that there was a shortage at that time. Their figures—assuming that their figures are correct—prove it, for they state that since that time over 2000 bricklayers have come to the State, and yet at the present time they can only claim that 200 are out of work. Even allowing for a margin of men who may have gone away, or gone into other trades, and assuming that there are even 400 of these bricklayers not working in the State at the present time, that leaves 1600 men in the bricklaying trade, according to the union's figures, who have come here and found work since the time when the union stated that there was no shortage of labour."

There are other statements in the circular which Mr. Richards contradicts. The first is that "the Master Builders' Association persuaded men to come here and then repudiated them." This statement has been made before, and has been proved incorrect. It was based solely on statements made by one or two men who came her and when tested proved to be not bricklayers at all. The other statement that the "assisted bricklayers and those who were promised work by the Builders' Association were only employed for a matter of a few weeks—some of them only for a few days—and were then turned off to make room for others," is also, Mr. Richards says, incorrect. Men have been, of course, discharged at times as work fluctuates, but beyond that the only discharges have been in the case of those who were either not bricklayers at all or were incompetent.

The union attempted to fasten the blame for the present state of affairs on to the Builders' Association, added Mr. Richards, but as a matter of fact the two bodies who should really take the blame, if any, were the Government and the Bricklayers' Union.

As a matter of fact, in spite of the Government having discharged a large number of men, there is every reason to anticipate that the present slackening in the trade, which is only comparative, will shortly disappear, and that every man now in the State, and those few who may be coming, will be employed.

NEW FIRE STATION AT MASCOT.

A new fire station has just been completed in Coward-street, Mascot. The buildings are a great improvement on the unornamental and inconvenient weatherboard structure which the volunteer fire brigade formerly occupied. The new building is of red, open kiln facing bricks, on a concrete foundation, with cement dressing. The plans and specifications were prepared by Messrs. Spain and Cosh, architects to the Fire Brigade Board, and that firm supervised the work. Mr. W. Mounsey, of Redfern, was the contractor, and the cost of the building was about £1800. The engine-room is roomy and convenient, and opening into it are the stables, with a fodder-room at the rear. Besides these there are on the ground floor a watchroom, single men's room, as well as a kitchen, laundry, etc. The first floor provides quarters for the officer in charge. Steel ceilings have been fitted throughout, and the increased facilities for turning out quickly must increase the efficiency of the brigade.

GENERAL NOTES.

The Agricultural Society states that good building stone will be allowed free of charge to any person willing to take it out at the hill at the back of the Show Ground, Moore Park. Applications close next Friday with Mr. Somer, the secretary to the society.

The Federal Government is calling for tenders for the supply of water tank waggons, and also for the supply of a large quantity of machinery for the workshops in connection with the Kalgoorlie to Port Augusta railway.

The president of the Sutherland Shire Council has issued his annual report. He states that in building alone over 260 plans were inspected and passed; also 50 subdivisions, and the whole had entailed a great amount of work for the officers of the council.

In the early part of last year the Government accepted a tender for a bridge across the Woronora River at Cook's Crossing. The work was completed in October last, and is a very substantial structure. The Government is also making a road from the bridge to Menai, and when this road is completed it will prove of great benefit to the settlers across the river, and the travelling public generally.

New wharfs are being erected at Como and at Bay Lane, Gunnamatta Bay, both of which are nearly completed.

Mr. C. H. Halstead, architect, is preparing plans for a Masonic Hall at Rockdale, the conversion of the old fire station, Hurstville, into municipal offices, erection of new printing premises at Hurstville, also brick bungalow residence, and additions to business premises.

Mr. H. R. Mead, architect, of Manly, is preparing plans for residential flats at Manly, bungalow at Narrabeen, cottage at Freshwater, residence at Manly, cottage at Carlton, and for two shops and residences at Manly.

In the office of Messrs. Buchanan and McKay, architects, plans are being prepared for shops and flats at Coogee. In the same office tenders will shortly be called for the erection of the Catholic Club, Castlereagh-street, city. Tenders close on the 19th inst. for a bungalow at Manly.

Messrs. Scott and Green, architects, are preparing plans for a cottage at Willoughby, a cottage at Cremorne, four cottages at Leura, St. Paul's Anglican School-room, Redfern, additions to Roman Catholic Presbytery at Redfern, and additions and alterations to Professional-chambers, Macquarie-street.

Messrs. Morrow and De Putron, architects, are preparing plans for a residence at North Sydney, and additions to a residence, Lavender Bay.

In the office of Messrs. McCredie and Allen plans are being prepared for a cottage residence at Abbotsford.

Mr. R. Louat, architect, has plans in hand for a cottage at Narrabeen.

The Minister for Public Works has let a contract for the erection of shops and dwellings in the resumed area in Princes-street, for the sum of £5950. Mr. J. Matheson is the contractor.

Two tenders were received yesterday by the Government for supplying the steel work for the by-products building at Homebush Abattoirs. The lowest price was £3728, tendered by the Sydney Steel Company, Ltd.

Mr. Bertram W. Ford, architect, has accepted the tender of Mr. H. S. Leary, builder, for the erection of a warehouse in Hunter-street West, Newcastle, for Metters, Ltd. Plans are being prepared by the same architect for a motor garage at Rose Bay, a shop at Petersham, a residence at Manly, nd alterations and additions to four shops at Leichhardt.

SUBMARINE EARTHQUAKE.

The Rev. E. F. Pigot, writing from the Riverview College Observatory regarding the submarine earthquake experienced by the G.M.S. Scharnhorst when half way to Colombo, as reported in the "Sydney Morning Herald" of Saturday last, says that the N.D.L. have supplied him with the following additional data relative to the shock:—Date, January 19, 10.45 p.m.; latitude, 1deg 18m south; longitude, 86deg 58m east. This time, Father Pigot says, quite accords with that calculated here from a study of the remarkably clear records (5) of this earthquake obtained at Riverview. It appears also from the latter that the ship was by no means, as might be supposed, immediately over the "epicentre," but at a considerable distance therefrom. This he is disposed to place (pending the arrival of the Java and Manila seismic bulletins) to the east of the position of the Scharnhorst at the time of the disturbance—between that and the south-west coast of Sumatra. This is in the neighbourhood of the origin of the great earthquake of June 3, 1909, but at a slightly greater distance from Sydney. It may be added that the intensity of this disturbance is decidedly less than that of the 1909 shock.

CAN YOU DISCOVER YOUR WAISTLINE?

Thousands of women who are just perceiving their ever-growing tendency to join the heavyweight division are daily and hourly worrying over the question:—"How to keep from getting fat?" That's where the rub comes in, and generally the rub doesn't do much good. Every fat woman would give worlds to "come back" to the point where she is able to discover her waistline. By dint of much hard work and starvation diet some of them get back to the sylph-like condition where they are able to raise a hand to hail a tramcar without exploding, but this is as far as they get.

There is, though, one safe, sure, speedy, and permanent cure for excess fat, viz.,

FORMETTES FOR FATNESS.

Formettes will cure safely, surely, and easily, and with their assistance it will not be necessary to exercise or diet. Starving never did, and never will, cure obesity. The result of any starvation process is to impair health. Formettes act quite differently. They increase the appetite while decreasing the fat. They tone up the system and make you feel well and look years younger. They remove fat evenly, and without any exertion on your part, and never leave a wrinkle behind in doing so. Formettes are pleasant vegetable tablets, and if you weigh yourself at the end of a month you will be delighted with the results they have effected. They will also cure palpitation of the heart, shortness of breath, sick headache, dyspepsia, and all other ailments caused by excess fat. Formettes are sold by all chemists in the Commonwealth, and most Drapers' Stores, at 5/3 per carton. Agents: Anthony Hordern and Sons, Washington, Soul, Pattinson Bros., chemists. Wholesale: Elliott Bros.; or direct from S. H. HENSHALL, Chemist, 244 Clarendon-street, South Melbourne.—Advt.

CHAPTER XXII.—Continued.

"Princess, I am a lover. All this I know. It has come to me unsought, but—but it is for another woman."

"Brutal, yes it was brutal, but how else could I answer her? To speak such words made me feel a cur. It was like flinging an insult in her face, but the cruelty was surely the greatest kindness. Feeling my own position keenly, I could feel hers. I would stop her saying more. Her anger would be far easier to face than her love.

But she was not angry. She was silent for a few moments, and then she said quietly:

"My maid of honour?"

"Yes," I answered.

She spread out her arms a little, an appeal that seemed to cut into my manhood, as the loaded thong of a taskmaster's whip cuts into the quivering flesh of a slave. That appeal was one great question. Why? Why should my love be for another woman when her whole soul cried out for it? What had this other woman more than she possessed? Were not her eyes as bright, her hair as soft, her lips as tempting as hers? All this was asked in that silent appeal, and I had no words to answer it.

"Has she come to you as I do?" she said, her voice little more than a whisper. "Has she bared her soul to you as I have done? Has she shown you the hidden depths of love as I am showing them?"

"No."

"If she loved, she must have done so by word, or sign, or by that silence which may be more eloquent than all else. Think. Think. Even if she could love as I do, even if such love were possible for you, what could it bring but perplexity, difficulty, sorrow?"

"I only know that I love her, Princess."

"And hate me?" she asked.

"No. I reverence you. Believe me, the one thing I realise more than all else is your courage, the courage that can speak as you have done. To my life's end, whether that end come in hours or years, I shall always reverence you, and thank God that such a woman found something in me that was worthy. I would my love could answer yours, that I could rejoice at the breaking of the barrier between us, but no man, nor woman either, can love at will or command. We are prisoners in a double sense, prisoners within these walls, and captives of circumstance as well. Friendship, will you not take that, since love I cannot give? God knows, such friendship as I offer is the nearest akin to love that friendship ever was. See, on my knee, I humbly thank you, not as a Princess, but with the homage of a man to a woman. Pardon me, and give me your hands in friendship."

She stood perfectly straight and still. Her hands were not held out to me. I had done what I could to make her burden lighter and to ease my own. Slowly I rose from my knee.

"By noon to-morrow. The Count has given you till then?"

"Yes."

"And, afterwards, death?"

"That is what I look for."

"Is the sacrifice worthy?"

"I have not thought of it as a sacrifice, Princess. It is the penalty of failure. I pay the debt, that is all."

"Is it all?" she asked.

I remembered what Varna had said, how he had spoken of another way out of the difficulty.

"Will your death help my maid of honour?" she said. "Is she not at the Count's mercy? Can your death win freedom for her? Better give your friendship to her, and bid her marry Christian of Varna. She will at least find safety and honour."

A little hardness had come into her voice. It was natural. I could understand something of the immense strain under which she was living these moments.

"She will not marry the Count," I said.

"She will. Even if she has given you some passing thought, she will easily forget a dead man."

"I think you do her some injustice, Princess."

"If you will make a sacrifice ——"

"I have said it is not sacrifice," I answered.

"You have offered me friendship. May there not be room for sacrifice in friendship? Have you considered my position after this interview?"

I turned to her quickly.

"For me it is also death, Captain Heselton. How else could Christian of Varna be safe?"

"He will not do that. I have ——"

"Pleaded for me?" she asked, something of scorn in her voice for the first time. "There is only one way to save me, and that way you refuse to take."

"I cannot."

"A strange friendship."

"Princess ——"

"Oh, I have no more fear of death than you have, Captain Heselton. Indeed, I think there is a hope in your mind that noon to-morrow will not see the end, that some miracle will open a door to you, and that you will go forth presently to love and happiness."

I did not answer her. There was anger in her tone now. It was far easier to listen to than her love.

"A few words to the Count and I can make your love more hopeless than ever."

"Princess, I am past threatening."

She was silent for a moment, and Heaven alone could know what struggle was raging within her.

"Love scorned turns to hate," she said slowly.

"There has been no scorn," Princess."

"And I cannot hate," she said; "but no other shall have what I covet. I have told you of love; would you know the evil that is in me?"

"I shall not believe in the evil."

"Believe it or not, it is there. You shall have full confession. I fear a miracle which may open some door to you, therefore I will make sure that you shall give to no other that which you deny to me. You shall find no happiness the way you have looked for it. I can whisper something to the Count which shall make that impossible, even though a miracle should set you free. I have it in my power to save my life and to destroy you."

"Then, Princess, I beseech you use this power. Since you will be safe, I have no dread of noon to-morrow."

Her words, spoken in a low tone, were angrily spoken. God knows I thought no ill of her for that. She had passed through an ordeal which few women are called upon to experience. Indeed, it was a relief to me to see her anger, and an intense satisfaction to know that she could save herself. There was that in her manner which convinced me that she spoke the truth. What her secret was that should so move the Count I could not guess; and surely nothing she might do or say could render my case more hopeless.

For an instant it seemed that she would make one more passionate appeal to me, but she controlled herself, and crossed the room quietly.

"The interview may end," she said. "You lose much, Captain Heselton."

"Much, indeed," I answered.

She paused, turning from the door to look at me, expecting me to say more.

"I had hoped you would leave your friendship with me. Will you not do so?"

She struck the door sharply with her fist, and it opened immediately.

"Take me at once to the Count."

"I think he has retired, your Highness," said the officer.

"Then rouse him quickly. I have news for him that shall make him thank you for disturbing him."

Then the door was shut again, bolts shot home, and the key was turned in the lock. I was alone, should be left alone probably until near noon to-morrow. Then Father Anthony might come to help me make my peace with Heaven. It was a strange irony that he should be the one to do me such a service. The candles had not been removed; it was something to have light. My peace with Heaven. It was difficult to concentrate my thoughts in this direction, so many things of the world took hold upon me. It was a relief that the Princess had gone. I experienced a sense of escape from difficulty. Some contentment came, too, the loosening of strain restfulness. My labours, worthy or not, were over, finished. There was no more need to scheme and plan. I could be idle and dream. To-morrow—to-morrow at noon. The end would come then, but I had no fear of it. I hardly though of it. I suppose a reaction had set in after days of great strain and insufficient sleep. I seemed curiously detached from everything that concerned me most vitally. A blank was in my brain. Presently I touched the little grey shoe in my tunic, and drew it out. How strangely it had preserved me that night in Dravstadt. What was my lady doing at this moment? Was she thinking of me, I wondered. Yet still my ideas were detached. The shoe slipped from my hands, and fell to the floor. I must not lose it. I picked it up, and put it in my tunic again. Perhaps my lady was not in Syere to-night. Perhaps O'Connell ——

I must have slipped low in the chair as sleep overcame me, for my next conscious effort was of struggling to drag myself out of some deep hole into which I had fallen, while a voice was urging me to hurry.

"Quickly. Quickly."

A hand touched me.

Then I awoke and staggered to my feet, almost like a man who has suddenly won free from the crush of a fight. Standing before me was the little kitchen maid.

"Come, sir, come. Every moment counts to-night."

I only woke thoroughly as I followed her across the room, to a corner of it hung with tapestry. Here the tapestry rested in folds upon the floor in such a way as to suggest that it had notbeen hung high enough, but now it was flung aside, and showed that a piece of the stonework was missing, a right angular piece, part wall, part floor. The hole I looked into was black, uninviting as a vault, and a chill breath of air struck upwards from it, fluttering the hangings on the wall.

"There is a light below," said the child. "The ladder is on this side; your foot will touch the top of it at once. Go first. I must follow because I know how to close the trap."

Without a word I put my foot upon the ladder, which was clamped perpendicularly to the wall, and went down slowly. A miracle had happened. There had opened for me a way of escape.

SHIRE COUNCILS.

BARRABA.—The rates for the ensuing year have been raised to 1½d, owing to the endowment being taken away.

BLAXLAND (Lithgow).—At the last meeting of the council a general rate of three-halfpence in the £ and a local rate of 1d in Portland urban area was confirmed.

BANNOCKBURN (Inverell).—The council has struck a rate of 1d in the £.

CROOKWELL.—At the last meeting of the council, the [illegible] showed a balance at credit of general fund, £2285, and Crookwell roads and streets, £166. A letter was read from the Works [illegible] that the Crookwell shire had been placed in the first class, and the endowment would be 4s in the £. Councillor J. Keith was appointed delegate to Shires' Association Conference.

BYRON SHIRE.—At the last meeting of the council the inspector under the Public Health Department wrote, condemning the sanitary arrangements within the three urban areas. It was decided to carry out the orders of the department as near as practical within two months. The clerk announced that, after paying last month's expenditure of £789 11s 5d, a credit balance was left of £962 16s, which would have to tide them over until the next revenue came in. The rates are not expected before the end of March.

CUDGEGONG (Mudgee).—At a meeting of the council a petition was received from residents of West End, asking that the council take steps to secure a water supply for that portion of the town of Mudgee. The mayor advised the petitioners to agitate for the separation of West End from the municipality of Cudgegong and its absorption by Mudgee. The council held out no hope of relief.

DEMONDRILLE (Murrumburrah).—Councillor Neville Graham has been elected president for the fourth time in succession.

DUMARESQ (Armidale).—At the council meeting a rate was levied of 1½d.

GUNNING.—Councillor Turner was elected president for the ensuing year. The rate was fixed at 1½d on the unimproved capital value.

GWYDER (Bingara).—The subsidy has been reduced from 30s to 6s, and four men have been taken off road work in consequence.

MEROO (Mudgee).—Councillor S. W. Webb has been elected president of the council by lot, being equal with Councillor O. D. Cox (retiring president) in the ballot. This is the third year in succession that the presidency of the council has been decided in this way. The presidential allowance was fixed at £50.

TWEED (Murwillumbah).—At the last meeting of the council it was resolved to seek the co-operation of the Nerang Shire Council in taking the necessary steps to have the tick buffer fence between Coolangatta and Tweed Heads townships removed and re-erected at a point to be agreed upon by the Minister for Agriculture in Queensland and New South Wales, the present position of the fence being a great inconvenience to residents and business people in both towns.

TO CURE NERVOUSNESS AND INDIGESTION.

BY A MEDICAL MAN.

A famous specialist once said that nervousness was the primary cause of nearly every chronic ailment. The work of all the vital organs such as the heart, stomach, liver, and kidneys, is directly controlled by the nervous system. It is only natural then, that when the nervous system is out of order the work of all the vital organs suffers accordingly. Indigestion or stomach trouble does not cause nervousness or irritability, but, on the contrary, nervousness causes indigestion, which is the only way in which the stomach can tell you that the nerves controlling it are out of order. To cure this nerve illness, and at the same time the stomach, kidney, or liver trouble, you should get your chemist to put up in an 8oz bottle, half an ounce of Tincture Cardamomus Compound, B.P., 2 ounces Salrado Compound, and 3 ounces Elixir Simplex, and enough water to fill the bottle. Take a tablespoonful of this nerve tonic about twenty minutes before meals, and if particularly weak and run down, two tablespoonfuls may be taken. Chew your food thoroughly, and drink but little while eating.

Note: This is one of a series of valuable articles on the care of the health, which will appear in these columns from time to time.

CREME TOKALON, absolutely the best non-greasy vanishing cream; beautifies the skin and removes wrinkles. At all chemists.—Advt.

DORSET SOCIETY.

The Dorset Society of New South Wales held their first harbour picnic on Saturday. The steamer Lady Hampden was provided by Mr. James Ward, and the orchestra was under the direction of Mr. H. Weir. Badges representing the Dorset county coat-of-arms, and bearing the inscription "Who's a'feard?" were worn. "Kindred Societies" was proposed by the vice-president, Mr. T. W. Warren, Mr. Urquhart responding on behalf of the Highland Society of New South Wales, and Mr. Nuttall on behalf of the Northumberland Society. The president, Mr. A. J. Hare, in a short address, eulogised Captain Caines, the hon. secretary, for his energy. The following were elected officer-bearers:—Patron, Lady Chelmsford; president, Mr. Arthur J. Hare; vice-presidents, Messrs. Thos. W. Warren, Ernest C. Day, F. J. Thos. Downie, James Ward, Edward Pardey, H. C. Morris; hon. secretary, Capt. H. Caines; assistant hon. secretary, Mr. Edw. Thorne; hon. treasurer, Mr. Leonard H. Last; ladies' committee of management, Mesdames Hare, Warren, Jane Waygood, Glyde, Ward, L. Ward, Winter, Morris, Cleal, Brierley, Hunt, and Caines.

SUBURBAN NEWS.

DRUMMOYNE'S PROGRESS.

The Mayor of Drummoyne (Alderman J. Bowley), in his annual report, states that during 1912 the progress and prosperity of Drummoyne continued. The population at the end of the year was estimated at over 11,000, an increase of 1250. During the year 280 new buildings were completed, at an estimated cost of £124,850, and many others were in course of erection. The sale of properties notified amounted to £140,[illegible]. The rates unpaid on 31st December totalled £[illegible], which was excessive, and he had instructed the town clerk to take the necessary steps to recover all outstanding rates immediately. Arrangements had been made with the Australian Mutual Provident Society for a loan of £14,000 (to pay off the old loan) for 30 years at 4½ per cent., also arranging in compliance with the Local Government Department's regulations to pay £280 per annum in reduction of the principal.

THE GLEBE COUNCIL.

A report, submitted at a meeting of the Glebe Council, showed that at the end of the financial year the council had a credit balance of £1118 in hand and outstanding liabilities amounting to £871 19s 10d. The revenue for the year was £15,357, and the expenditure £16,000. The health inspector of the municipality made 2000 inspections during the year, and although the infectious diseases showed an increase of 32 per cent. for the metropolitan district for 1912, Glebe's increase was only 1 per cent. The council borrowed £10,000 at 4 per cent. for street improvements. Large public works were carried out during the year. Bridge-road (along the Blackwattle Bay front) was wood-blocked, and three lineal miles of roadway and streets were metalled.

ANNANDALE'S RATE.

At the last meeting of Annandale Council a rate was struck for the year of 4½d in the £ on the unimproved capital value, which totals £[illegible].

TEMPE SCHOOL.

The Minister for Public Instruction has informed Mr. T. S. Crawford, M.L.A., that approval has been given to the appointment of the Public School at Tempe as a junior technical superior public school. The other schools in the Marrickville electorate are also classified as superior under the new scheme, that at Dulwich Hill being a commercial and Marrickville (Chapel-street) a technical superior public school.

BILIOUSNESS BANISHED.

BILE BEANS AGAIN PROMINENT.

Mr. F. Paulin, a miner and prospector, living at King's Plains, near Blayney, N.S.W., is a case in point of the wonderful curative powers of Bile Beans. "For about 18 months," he says, "I was in the grip of biliousness and indigestion. I often thought my head would burst, so severe were the agonising pains which afflicted me; and frequent fits of retching would send pains shooting through my head with a terrible throbbing. I could not eat any food without experiencing nasty, uncomfortable feelings and pains in the chest. My appetite completely failed me, and I became thoroughly miserable. I consulted a doctor, and tried many so-called remedies, but in vain. I was recommended by a friend to try Bile Beans, and to make sure I would act on his recommendation he bought a box of the Beans, and I started on them. I gained great relief from the very first dose, and after continuing the course to the extent of four boxes I was completely cured. Since then I have had no return of the complaints, and, as it is two years since the cure was effected, I think I may safely say that I am permanently restored to health."

If you are suffering from biliousness, indigestion, headache, liver disorders, constipation, piles, debility, female derangements, nervousness, bad blood, bad breath, anaemia, disturbed sleep, loss of appetite, rheumatism, take Bile Beans, the sure and best family medicine.—Advt.

ON THE LAND.

FARM AND STATION.

THE NORTH-WEST.

Through another failure in the wheat crop last season deplorable conditions prevail along the North-western line from Werris Creek to Narrabri and around Manilla. The chief towns affected are Gunnedah, Boggabri, Narrabri, and Manilla, as well as many smaller settlements in a similar plight. The welfare of the people depends very largely upon the yield of wheat. Since the industry was seriously entered upon some 15 or 16 years ago a great change has come over the countryside. Small villages grew into thriving towns, while villages of respectable size appeared where before was scrub. Many of the large holdings have been subdivided into small farms, while much land which formerly was abandoned to wallabies and scrub became settled and is now dotted with the homes of farmers.

Wheat-growing was pursued during the first few years under what now appears to the careful observer almost too auspicious circumstances. When one looks back upon the first few years it is justifiable to regard them as "good old days." That this is not a matter of opinion only is shown by the official records. During the years 1897 to 1901 the average yield for four out of the five years was 16 bushels. During the five years only one low yield was recorded. The early settlers in experiencing such good seasons were extraordinarily fortunate, as the rainfall records show that such a run of favourable seasons is very exceptional. It is not any wonder that a mild kind of boom set in. The boom and the luck of the first few seasons are having disastrous effects now, when weather conditions which are but little below the normal are prevailing.

The favourable rainfall and a naturally fertile soil produced enormous yields, even when the cultivation was of the crudest kind. Farmers relate stories of 30 and 40 bushels per acre from land which was merely harrowed or stirred with a cultivator. The natural consequences are easy to imagine. Those settlers who had never had any farming experience learnt that big areas gave big returns, and their aim was to get in as much as possible with the expenditure of the least amount of labour. Those farmers who had had previous experience, and knew the value of good farming, gained the impression that conditions were very different from those under which they had worked. When they could get large yields without fallowing they could not see the advantage of leaving out some of their land. Unfortunately, through this they have lost touch with modern improved methods.

The farmers in the district may be divided into two classes. First, Victorian, and a few others who had had farming experience before their advent to the North-west; and secondly, local men who knew practically nothing about farming. The first have pretty well forgotten what up-to-date fallowing is, while the latter have never learnt. It is the exception to find men who know what fallowing is. It is the prevailing opinion that land is fallowed when it is thrown out of cultivation. Land is considered to be well worked when it has been ploughed twice, no matter when or how it has been ploughed. The advantage of any special working of the land above some sort of stirring to provide a seed bed is in many cases denied, while the prevailing opinion is that it pays better to get a large area in on the chance that a good crop will be reaped rather than that any land should be left out for the season, or that any extra working should be done. In some districts this opinion is more prevalent than in others.

When good years are experienced every one does well. The trouble arises when the season does not come up to the hopes of the farmer. The crops as they are put in have no hope in a dryish season. Very few of the seasons in the north-west are really bad. And yet the crops are frequently failures. The pity of it is that in nearly every case the failures are preventable. Under the present system the crop has to depend absolutely upon the rainfall during the time it is growing; in pretty well one season out of every two it is inadequate. And yet the average rainfall is about 24 or 25 inches per annum. A great proportion of it falls during the summer months, and farmers have neither learnt that they can save it, or a large amount of it, nor that it will pay them to do so. Season after season sees failures recorded when a very simple change in the system would see good crops being garnered. The rainfall is there—it only has to be saved.

The situation can only be saved by farmers learning and practising newer methods. It is useless to say that conditions are different from those of other parts of the State, and that fallowing is useless. The experiments made by the Department of Agriculture in the district have amply demonstrated that by fallowing splendid yields can be obtained, even in so-called dry seasons.

After the failure in the season preceding the last, many farmers attempted to improve upon their methods. As soon as their harvest was finished they ploughed. This land was then left until about seeding time, and then ploughed again. This was called fallowing, and as it failed to improve the crops much fallowing (so-called) is condemned. One farmer meets another, and they tell each other that their best was worked and gave no better returns than the badly worked. This is not fallowing. Fallowing means that the land is ploughed months before sowing, and in the interval is worked several times with the cultivator or harrows. The land must be prevented from forming a crust on the surface. Neither is it good practice to plough just before seeding, or, if it is done, it must be very shallow. Deep ploughing loosens the surface and makes a bad seed bed.

Further than this, last season was altogether exceptional, and unlike the average season in the north-west. From January till June practically no rain fell. In ordinary years several inches fall during these months. The land that was ploughed early never had any rain on it; therefore, none could be conserved. Yet, farmers are overlooking this simple fact, and are condemning fallowing and early ploughing. It would be quite as sensible to condemn wheat-growing simply because in 1902, the year of the great drought, yields throughout the State were small.

If farmers will take the trouble to find out what fallowing is, to study the rainfall of their district, and the relationship between rainfall (both before and during the growing period), and the crop, they will understand better how they obtain their successes, or to what the failures are due. They will also see the paramount necessity of improving upon their methods. The old system has been well tried, and has proved a failure. Something is required to take its place. It is in the farmers' own interests to give new methods a thorough trial.

WHEAT-GROWING AT DUBBO.

THE LESSON OF FALLOW.

DUBBO.—The despatch of wheat from the Dubbo railway station is still proceeding briskly, and it will be some time before the whole of the harvest has been sent away. It is pleasing to notice that the lessons emphasising the benefits of fallow, as set forth in the series of articles published in the "Sydney Morning Herald," advising up-to-date methods of soil culture, have been taken to heart by a considerable section of our farmers. The younger men are taking up the cry, and with them "fallow" is now the watchword. On many farms, as soon as the harvests were garnered, the ploughs were set to work, but there is still the conservative and heedless section who are stubbornly determined to proceed along the old lines, which court failure, especially on those farms that have been cropped continuously for the last 20 years. However, a good deal of summer fallow has been done, and it is said that many farmers intend to hare fallow this year, which may have the effect of reducing the acreage for next harvest. Ploughing operations are now practically suspended, owing to hardness of the ground. Good rains are wanted to soften the soil, but there is no cause for alarm as far as the grazier is concerned. There is abundance of grass on the Dubbo district holdings, and water supplies will hold out for some time. Old hands say that the weather conditions this year are similar to those which in the past were the premonitions of good rains in March and April. If history repeats itself the farmers will have cause to be jubilant, as during 1911 and 1912 March, April, and May were months of inactivity and worry for the pastoralists and the wheat farmer.

ITEMS.

The known artesian belt in Australia is gradually extending. It is now believed that the water which has been tapped at Sale (Vic.) will be found right through the part of the State where it is hoped that the beet industry will extend.

The musk plant, recently found in Victoria, has been declared to be a noxious weed.

Mr. G. Becker, of Balldale, South Australia, reports splendid results from a new variety of wheat called Silver Bar. In 1910 it yielded 36 bushels per acre, and the following year 24. It is practically rust proof, and stands up well.

The export trade in dairy produce between New Zealand and Canada has expanded at a great rate. Last year Auckland shipped butter valued at nearly £200,000.

Tuberculosis is said to be steadily increasing in many of the New Zealand dairy districts, despite the precautions taken.

Mr. A. H. Wyatt, of Clarkville, N.Z., owns a cow which yielded 23lb 3oz of butter in a week. What is claimed to be a record was recently put up by a herd of 38 cows belonging to Mr. F. Hopping, of Glen Oroua, in the Dominion, with an average return for 61 days of 43lb of milk per cow per day, testing 3 per cent. The highest average for a single day was 46½lb.

As a result of some experiments carried out in Victoria by the Department of Agriculture, it is considered preferable that lucerne should be cured as hay, rather than as ensilage, on account of the loss of protein under the latter process. Such hay forms an admirable addition to silage made from less nitrogenous fodder, such as wheat, oats, or maize.

Contagious mammitis is very prevalent in New Zealand dairy herds in some districts. At Akaroa one farmer was obliged to turn out 38 head of his herd of 45 milking cows.

A delegate at a dry-farming conference in America recently stated that by feeding his pigs with lucerne tea, made by soaking the lucerne in hot water for a few hours, pigs weighing 46lb gained 15lb more in 72 days than others which were not given the tea.

The value of one cargo of butter and cheese which left Wellington the other day was no less than £260,000.

Mr. James M'Kenzie, chairman of the Yarram Factory in Victoria, who recently returned from a trip to London, says that the greatest danger to the Australian dairy farmer is margarine. For that reason he urges that nothing but first-grade cream should be manufactured for export, as the lower grade butters are mostly turned into margarine. The margarine companies in London are so prosperous that some of them return dividends of 200 per cent.

The chief veterinary officer in Victoria, Mr. W. A. N. Robertson, favours the plan of offering a bonus for every suitable horse produced in order to encourage the production of army remounts. He says that the young light horses might be purchased at £15 as yearlings, and would cost the defence authorities about £5 per year for a couple of years on the farm. Suitable light horses would thus be secured at a reasonable figure.

The New Zealand Dairy Commissioner says that there is a noticeable improvement in the quality of the butter coming forward to all the grading stores in the Dominion. Many of the best brands are showing a remarkable similarity in flavour, texture, and colour—a uniformity which did not prevail a few years ago. To a large extent this evenness of quality has been brought about by the pasteurisation of the cream and the use of the combined churn and butter worker. Examinations made of the various consignments of cheese coming forward, he says, have also revealed a gradual improvement.

ENGLISH WOOL TRADE.

DISTURBING FACTORS DO NOT AFFECT PRICES.

(FROM OUR SPECIAL CORRESPONDENT.)

BRADFORD, Jan. 10.

With the end of the holidays, wool has again come to the front in no uncertain way, and this week as much interest has been displayed in the course of the raw material as ever. It is really surprising what strength there is about the article; but when it vitally affects the business interests of so many, no surprise need be felt at it cutting such a prominent figure in the West Riding. There was never a time in the history of the trade when so many hands and so much capital were employed in the industry, and this week, in a very pointed manner, we have been reminded of the great development which has taken place in the Bradford trade by one of the speakers at the annual dinner of the British Wool Buyers' Association. The topic discussed was certainly an appropriate one, and a side-light was thrown upon the position of the trade in the early fifties and sixties. The contrast to-day with that early period is greater than words can clearly show, for combs, spindles, and looms are now turning out more than double what they did in those days, and in some cases even three times as much. It would form an interesting piece of information to know what weight of tops and yarns could be produced from one machine 50 years ago, compared with the output of the present time, for manufacturing appliances are now about as perfect as they can be expected to be. Probably the operation may be the same, but the increased output has played an important part in the working expenses of a mill, while at the same time the output never reached the standard of perfection that we see to-day. Not only has the output been more than doubled, but the quality of the work done has vastly improved, for whereas in the "good old days" shorter classes of raw material were discarded entirely, to-day we have combs and spindles capable of turning out good tops and yarns from even shabby pieces, bellies, and locks.

MERINOS A SHADE FIRMER.

The position of merinos must still be called good, and on Thursday the tone was certainly stronger than we have seen for at least three weeks. It does seem a strange anomaly that, in spite of the Balkan crisis and a threatened dyers' strike, a most optimistic feeling prevails regarding the future of fine wools and tops. Where can we look for an explanation? The question is well worth asking, and an honest attempt being made to answer it. In ordinary times a big dyers' strike and a Near Eastern difficulty such as has confronted the trade since November would have been sufficient to knock the bottom out of the market altogether; instead of that, fine wools to-day are strong, and appear likely to remain so. The only explanation that we can give is the very satisfactory condition of the consumptive and of the trade, and undoubtedly that is the arch-stone, as it were, of the entire fabric. Several important wool brokers stated on Thursday that they have had some very satisfactory sales of wool this week, and the big weights of Mazamet skin wools which have also been disposed of show how the land lies. This certainly does not indicate any weakness, for it is hardly likely that topmakers would put money into very large weights of raw material if they had any misgiving regarding the future. Those who do a speculative importing trade say that they have been surprised with the healthy inquiries which they have received, and we know for a fact that several firms have sold big weights of raw material. This certainly is a clear indication that topmakers are well sold forward, and even if they have not experienced big sales of tops, some nice ordinary weights of 25, 50, 75, and up to 100 packs have been disposed of time and again. When we come to prices, a distinct advance cannot be chronicled, but we find that there are fewer topmakers who are squeezable, and while here and there it may be possible or a man to get in at 2s 4½d for a somewhat lean spinning 64's, the bulk of the makers are firmer than they have been at 2s 5d, the best even naming 2s 5½d.

Cape tops are by no means in the soup, and some reasonable quantities have recently been sold. The most surprising thing about them is that they should be only saleable at ½d less than a similar top made out of Australian wool. Here we have an anomaly which is puzzling a few, but we cannot do otherwise than chronicle the fact. Some big weights of Cape wools are coming to Bradford this season, and this business is developing, more spinners to-day spinning Cape tops than ever before. We are certain that this class of wool and the tops made from it are not appreciated at their full worth, but prejudice is fast disappearing, and those who once use them seldom cease to do so.

CROSSBREDS NO MORE THAN STEADY.

The position of crossbreds leaves a little to be desired, but they certainly are no worse than they have been. The influence of the Balkan trouble is undoubtedly felt more in this department than anywhere else. Many yarn spinners complain bitterly, and it is acknowledged that some rather heavy stocks of single yarns are in spinners' hands, the low prices which are being taken for second-hand yarns and by spinners who have stocks being anything but satisfactory. As a matter of fact, wool is selling distinctly higher than tops, and that is the difficulty of the situation. When we contrast the big weight of wool which has been offered this week in New Zealand, together with the Christchurch sale on Monday, it is remarkable that 80,000 bales of wool should be lifted without even a 5 per cent. decline being reported. Some private New Zealand cables report values just a shade in buyers' favour, without being quotably lower; but even admitting that the decline is 5 per cent., it is nothing for anyone to quibble over. Tops have not lost ground during the week, although it is quite true that here and there one hears of a trifle less being accepted, probably on account of forced sales. We do not see any reason for crossbreds declining at all, and with patience tops should sell at recent rates.

EXCELLENT FOREIGN TRADE.

The publication of the Board of Trade returns for December enables one to see the general course of our textile export trade for 1912, and they are certainly worth careful consideration. Had there not been the Balkan trouble, it is safe to say that our exports of worsted yarns, as well as mohair and alpaca yarns, would have been equal to any previous year in the history of the trade; but, after all, the figures will bear analysis by every careful student of the wool and textile industry. The following table shows the principal exports from this country during the years named:—

OUTLOOK FOR LONDON SALES.

Next Tuesday will see the opening of the first series of London sales for the current year, and buyers will go to Coleman-street knowing that a sound situation is marred by two rather serious factors. We are not looking for any advance in prices, but, for all that, wool will sell freely at about December's closing rates. We do not see any reason for higher prices at this juncture. It is certain that if there had been no political and industrial struggles, the textile industry would have been enjoying a bountiful time; but it is to be hoped no one will adopt forcing tactics, for we do not want a debacle such as ensued after the 1899 boom. We can very well dispense with everything of that nature, and be all the better for reasonable steady markets with a continuance of progressive trade. Both merinos and crossbreds should sell freely at firm prices.

RAIN BADLY WANTED.

A DRY JANUARY.

ORCHARDS ADVERSELY AFFECTED.

BEES STARVING.

The following is a summary of the condition of stock, crops, pastures, etc., during the month of January, gleaned from the reports furnished by meteorological observers throughout the State:—

The month of January was generally dry, with a tendency to frequent thunderstorms, which resulted in a very patchy rainfall, and only a few small isolated areas received an amount above the average. High temperatures with drying winds prevailed in the northern and central districts, and frequent dust storms were a noticeable feature. In the coastal areas bush fires did considerable damage.

As a result of the dry conditions, grass suffered much, and became scarce, particularly in the South Coast, Central Tableland, and parts of the north-west, including the north-western plain, where pastoralists began to seek agistment areas. On the whole stock had kept up condition well, considering the dryness of the season, but in dairying districts the milk supply decreased considerably. In Riverina and on the south-west slope there was still plenty of grass, and owners were realising high prices for their sheep and cattle.

Harvesting was completed during the month, and the results were generally much better than was anticipated. The early potato crops were considered good, but the later ones were damaged by a pest known as the Rutherglen fly. They were also badly in need of a good rain, as also were the maize and other corn crops, some being reported to be ruined.

The orchards of the metropolitan area were adversely affected by the sparse rainfall, and three-fifths of the citrus crop was lost, both fruit and leaves falling off the trees. Other fruit crops, as a rule, were small, but at Inverell and Coonabarabran fair fruit crops were gathered, the grapes being especially good. Around Wentworth the dry weather furnished ideal conditions for harvesting the fruit of the irrigation areas, and splendid crops of peaches were dried.

Bee farmers reported a very bad outlook for their industry. One observer near Queanbeyan stated that the bees were reduced to starvation from the total lack of nectar in the trees and flowers, and that there had been no swarms this year.

The water supply was becoming a source of anxiety to pastoralists in the north-western and central western plains, as many tanks and creeks became dry and bores had to be used for stock supplies. In parts of the Hunter district and South Coast householders were reduced to carting water for domestic use. Rivers and creeks were all reported to be low, especially the Darling, which became dangerous to stock, many getting bogged in its weeds and mud. Ploughing was suspended on account of the dry weather, and a good general rain was badly needed. During the month the fly pest abated, but insects were troublesome to plant life; and birds, especially parrots and starlings, were particularly annoying to fruit growers. Much destruction was caused in the southern tableland by rabbits, whole orchards being ring-barked and destroyed.

Near Nymagee frogs were said to be plentiful and snakes scarce. Early in the month there was a fresh hatching of grasshoppers in Riverina, and parts of the Hunter district were similarly affected.

LAND SETTLEMENT.

PRIVATE ENTERPRISE SCHEMES.

An ex-immigration commissioner in Victoria (Mr. Billis) has devised a plan to promote land settlement in that State by private enterprise. The scheme is to meet the man who has money to invest when he arrives—anything from £500 to £10,000. A company with a capital of £500,000 has been floated, but the concern will only issue one-fifth of its shares at first. About 7000 acres of land in the Lake Boga district have been secured to make a start. Already there are several applicants for the blocks in hand. The objects of the company are, it is claimed, to engage in immigration work, specially with a view to securing from abroad settlers with sufficient capital to successfully engage in the industry, to purchase land for subdivision and settlement, and to have ready-made farms available for the settlers as they arrive. It is intended to open offices in England and America. Amongst the directors are several large landowners.

TASMANIAN FRUIT PROSPECTS.

THE EXPORT SHORTAGE.

HOBART.—It now appears that the shortage of 250,000 cases previously estimated in the Tasmanian fruit export for the season about to begin will be exceeded. During the last three weeks fitful gales, sometimes rising to hurricane force, have played havoc with the orchards. The result has been that growers, who a month ago anticipated only a medium picking, will have to content themselves with not more than a quarter what they originally expected to ship. Unfavourable weather at the time of the fruit setting greatly shortened the production; but the later losses have been even heavier.

Space on the outward ships has now been engaged; and the figures afford a more reliable guide to the probable value of the export than can be obtained from any other source. In 1912 space was reserved for approximately 900,000 cases; and 830,587 were actually shipped. The latter included approximately 70,000 cases sent to South America. For the present season space has been engaged for only 452,568 cases, exclusive of what will go to South America. During last season the heaviest shipment went by the Federal-Houlder-Shire liner Argyllshire, which carried 125,000 cases of apples from Hobart. The greatest amount of space engaged for this season in any one boat is for 55,270 cases to be taken by the steamer Palma on March 11. Last season 33 British steamers visited Hobart for the special purpose of loading fruit; but arrangements have been made this season for only 17 to call. There will also be a decrease in the quantity of fruit shipped by interstate steamers for the markets of Melbourne and Sydney.

SHEEP ON THE NORTH COAST.

CASINO.—Messrs. Foley Bros., of Mummulgum, have proved that wool can be successfully grown in this district. Some four years ago they commenced getting a small flock together, and they now have some 200 Romney Marsh merino cross sheep on their property. Experience has so far taught them that this cross, at any rate, will do well in these parts. During last week they sent their first consignment to Sydney. With the example of Messrs. Foley Bros. before them, it is not unlikely that before long other Upper Richmond farmers will be found following in their footsteps.

VICTORIAN WATER COMMISSION.

MELBOURNE.—A new policy is being adopted by the State Water Commission, under which it will insist upon its right to direct operations of settlers in new irrigation districts until they have passed safely through the critical early stages of their occupation.

RECORD PRICE FOR MILK.

UNANDERRA.—For the first time during the summer months since the erection of the creamery at Unanderra, now over 30 years ago, the Sunday night's milk was called in by the Farmers and Dairymen's Milk Company. It was cooled, put into cool chambers at the creamery, and forwarded to Wollongong on Monday morning per motor lorry, to be sent on by the 6 a.m. train to Sydney. This was found necessary on account of the scarcity of milk, the result of the prolonged dry spell. This company's suppliers are now getting 11d per gallon for their milk, a record summer price.

PLEURO IN THE NORTH.

ULMARRA.—A serious outbreak of pleuro has broken out in the herds of the Coldstream district. One farmer so far has lost 14 head of cattle. Stringent measures are being taken to prevent further spread of the disease.

DAIRYING.

MILTON.—The output of the Milton Butter Factory for January was 64,842lb. Suppliers' net cheques totalled £2469.

MEETINGS OF FARMERS.

GERMANTON.—At a meeting of the Germanton P., A., and H. Society it was decided to hold the show on Wednesday and Thursday, September 3 and 4.

WALCHA.—The following officers have been elected in connection with the Farmers and Settlers' Association:—President, Mr. C. D. Moore; secretary, Mr. W. Green; treasurer, Mr. J. N. Campbell.

YOUNG.—At the 41st annual meeting of the Young Pastoral and Agricultural Association the report and balance-sheet showed an improvement on all previous years. The entries totalled [illegible], as against 256 the previous year. Twelve loose boxes had been erected at a cost of nearly £[illegible]. The association's hall had also been substantially improved by the addition of a supper room, office, etc. Cash prizes amounted to £857, an increase of £103 on last year. The balance carried forward, including savings bank deposit, was £129, the sum of £512 having been paid away during the year for new buildings, etc. Messrs. John Rutherford and G. S. Whiteman were elected life members of the committee.

DISTRICT ITEMS.

GLEN INNES.—In reply to a second request from the Glen Innes Pastoral and Agricultural Society, the Department of Agriculture has decided against the Glen Innes experiment farm exhibit being shown at the local show [illegible] month, as it was required for the Sydney [illegible] Show. Mr. W. T. Cadell, of Deepwater Station, gave £70 towards the prize list.

GRAFTON.—At a meeting of the council of the Clarence Pastoral and Agricultural Society last week it was resolved to apply to the Department of Agriculture for a trophy of produce to be forwarded to the show at Grafton this year. Harvesting the maize crops has commenced. Despite the dry weather, some good yields are reported. Splendid rains have fallen throughout the district, upwards of 2½in being registered at Grafton, with somewhat lighter falls down the river. The drought appears to be broken.

GERMANTON.—Wheat is now arriving in large quantities at the local railway shed. The local mill is purchasing largely.

WENTWORTH.—The prices fixed by the Dried Fruits' Association for 1913 with the exception of muscatels and raisins, which will be determined later, does not meet with general approval. Surprise has been expressed at the current rates being maintained at the same level as last year, with a drop of over 2d in peaches. What growers complain of is that no hint was given of the probable drop—unavoidable, it is stated, owing to Californian conditions—in the dried peach price. Had it been known, the orchardists would have been better placed to arrive at a decision as to whether they would preserve their crop for drying or sell it fresh. The opinion is also expressed that apricots should have been increased further, on account of the scarcity, growers arguing that if prices are formulated on a shortness of supply basis, the grower, in preference to the middleman, should get the benefit. Currant picking has commenced on some of the holdings, but it is not anticipated operations will be in full swing before the middle of the month. Pumping was commenced at Curlwaa (Wentworth Irrigation Settlement area) on Saturday. The pumps are working well, and the channels acting satisfactorily. Dried fruit is arriving in large quantities at the packing sheds, and a lot of the fresh fruit (peaches) is being sent to the central markets, the prices being good, £14 per ton being offered. The biggest dried apricot pack is reported from Renmark, where it is estimated at about 90 tons. This will exceed all the other settlements considerably. That at Curlwaa has been satisfactory. The pear crop is yielding well, and a great proportion of it will be dried. The muscatel crop promises well.

PACKING HONEY.

It has been the practice in Victoria, and for that matter in this State as well, for bee-farmers to market their honey in used kerosene or benzine tins, but the Victorian authorities have now prohibited their use. Under the Pure Food regulations it is provided that no person shall use any vehicle, receptacle, articles, utensils, tools of trade, benches, fittings, machinery, or other appliances used for the manufacture, preparation, storage, package, carriage, delivery, or sale of any specified articles of food for any other purpose which would be likely to contaminate or injuriously affect the wholesomeness or cleanliness of any specified articles of food.

ANSWERS TO CORRESPONDENTS.

"Ager."—The Cupressus macrocarpa does best on good soil, where it makes a splendid hedge, and can, if necessary, be cut to any shape required. There is, however, a borer which attacks it occasionally, killing the tree and spoiling the symmetry of the heads. Most plants used for hedge purposes rob the soil; some are worse than others. Macrocarpa is one that does the least harm to neighbouring vegetation. Plumbago is a hedge plant which is doing well in many of the western suburbs, and may be cut to any shape or height. It can be recommended. Re peach-growing from seed. Seed peaches cannot be relied upon to produce fruit anything like the parent trees. It is recommended that the pits be planted in the early winter, and grown in the nursery form until the autumn, when the buds which have been taken from the tree you desire to propagate may be inserted in the young nursery stalks.

MUNICIPAL MARKETS.

The City Council has decided to close the gateways provided for pedestrian traffic at the Municipal Fruit Market, and build stalls in the spaces. At a meeting of the Market Growers and Agents' Association a motion was unanimously carried objecting to the action of the council on the ground that it was a dangerous proceeding, as these openings are the only means of ingress and egress during the busy part of the morning, the cartways being continuously blocked with vehicular traffic. The matter will be brought before the council at its meeting this evening.

The Re-creator of Lost Health.

Sir Gilbert Parker, M.P.:
"I have used Sanatogen with extraordinary benefit. It is to my mind a true food tonic, feeding the nerves, increasing the energy, and giving fresh vigour to the overworked body and mind."

Sir John Hare:
"I have found Sanatogen a most valuable tonic and stimulant, and can heartily recommend it."

"If I could only get well and strong again."
How often are those words uttered by men and women who, though up and about, are, nevertheless, ill, with racked nerves, failing strength, and depleted vitality?
To them, as to those who are ill in bed, this announcement is a message of hope of the certain conquering of their physical and nervous disabilities through the medium of Sanatogen, the supreme revitaliser of brain, body and nerves.
Sanatogen's reputation has its foundation firmly fixed in that unshakable bed-rock—the justified experience of the medical profession; and that, after the most searching and exhaustive tests.
Among the disordered conditions in which Sanatogen is pre-eminently beneficial are nervous weakness and break-down, weakened and disordered nerves, brain-fag, insomnia, and loss of memory, disordered digestion and dyspepsia, anæmia, with its inevitable languor, palpitation, shortness of breath, and loss of vitality.

Sir Frederick Milner, Bt.:
"Sanatogen seems both to nourish me and give me strength."

Lord Edward Churchill:
"I have derived benefit from taking Sanatogen."

Mr. Arnold Bennett
—the Novelist: "The tonic effect of Sanatogen on me is simply wonderful."

Brain, Body and Nerves Revitalised.

Mr. Eden Phillpotts:
"Sanatogen appears to be of real value to the brain worker, a useful food and tonic combined. I can give it high praise from personal experience."

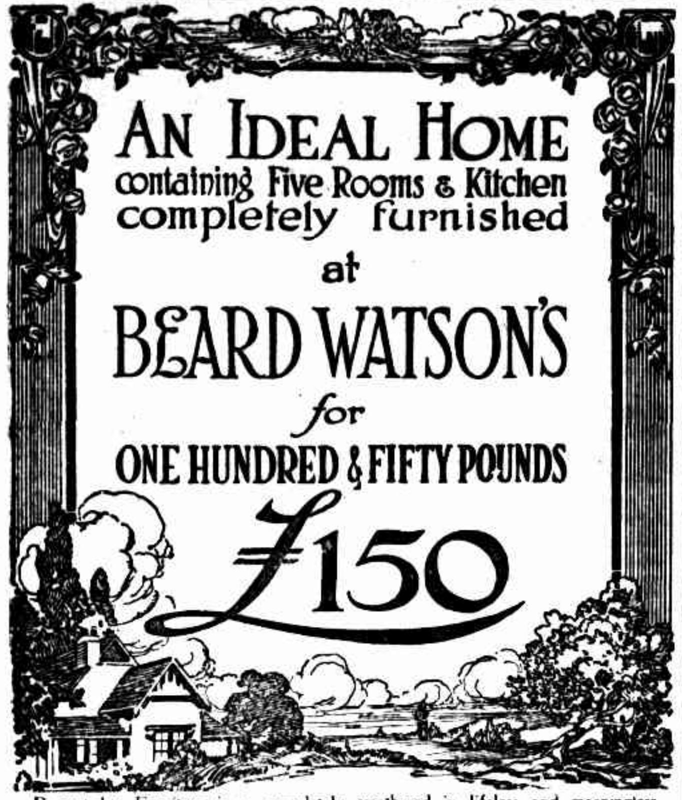
Sir William Bull, M.P.:
"I have much pleasure in stating that I consider your preparation, Sanatogen, is of decided value. It performs that which it promises to do, and I have recommended it to several friends."

Sanatogen's constituents are known to every doctor. They are milk-proteid and glycero-phosphate of sodium, chemically combined to form a new compound which exercises the most potent and profound influence over the Brain, Body and Nerves. For this reason it acts like a charm in the above-named conditions, its beneficial effects being invariably felt in a very short time.
As a general tonic Sanatogen is unequalled, and it is the supreme restorative in convalescence from all acute diseases. It is easily digested, rapidly assimilated and absorbed, and is the greatest known builder of physical strength and re-creator of lost nervous energy.
Sanatogen may be obtained of all Chemists. Write to-day, mentioning this paper, for free instructive booklet, "The Art of Living," by Dr. Andrew Wilson, which will be sent post free on application to Messrs. A. Wulfing & Co., 17 Bond-st., Sydney, N.S.W.

Mr. C. B. Fry:
"Sanatogen is an excellent tonic food in training, especially valuable in nervous exhaustion."

Mr. W. Rhodes:
"I have given Sanatogen a good trial during the hard season we have just had, and found it a splendid tonic."

SANATOGEN.



Present-day Furniture is so completely smothered in lifeless and meaningless fuss of pattern, moulding, knick-knack, flourish, and convention, that it must often seem a hopeless task to get something simple, direct, and straightforward. One of the most necessary reforms to-day is, that we should simplify our lives, and shake off the hampering web of artificialities, sweep away all fussy substitutes for ornaments, and all those supposed indications of refinement.

In reality they are the antithesis of refinement, for they have no raison d'etre for their existence at all.

Simple Cottage Furniture, such as we illustrate below, is intended to go into rooms simply treated as to decoration, and in such surroundings, the home will be ideal—that is, it will be beautiful with an inherent beauty, the result of natural and simple taste.

THE WEEK IN LONDON

AN AUSTRALIAN'S NOTES.

(FROM OUR SPECIAL CORRESPONDENT.)

Mr. Fisher's Refusal.

LONDON, Jan. 10.

People here find it hard to understand Mr. Fisher's reported rejection of the British Government's offer that an Australian Minister, resident permanently or at intervals in London, should attend those sittings of the Defence Committee in which he was interested. It means that Australia foregoes the responsibility of exerting her influence for or against war at a period when that influence would be effective. The chief anxiety of Australia and Canada, when a European war is on the horizon, must be that Great Britain, and they themselves, should not be involved in it unnecessarily. Canada will have a Cabinet Minister permanently in London to make Canada's opinions heard on those occasions, and to exert Canada's influence—which will be extremely powerful. Australia's opinion will not be represented; if some war becomes imminent, which Australia would particularly wish to avoid—she has voluntarily refused her chance of exerting her great influence on the issue. It is a childish position if it is a permanent policy. The great mistake which Australians make is in believing that, because there is no obvious urgency, therefore any time will do for making these arrangements. In these matters of defence, those who have any real experience know that, if a thing is good to be done at all, then it cannot afford to wait.

Taking Cover Behind Clouds.

Instructions have at last been issued to the army as to how it should defend itself against the enemy's airships and aeroplanes, and how it may best use its own; how high an airship must be flying to be out of range of rifle fire; how far field guns and howitzers can get at them, and so forth. The army council has experimented, and though, of course, further conclusions will be arrived at, sufficient is now known of the results to make this instalment of advice worth giving.

This information forms part of the new Field Service Regulations with regard to operations which will come into use this year. The regulations include a number of the changes framed by General Sir John French, and, by a strict instruction of the defence committee they have had to be drawn up in such a form as to be suitable for the military training of any State in the Empire. The chapter on aerial work lays it down that the most dangerous weapon against airships at present is the howitzer, and that the howitzer is effective against airships up to 4500ft. Rifle fire is dangerous to an airship at 2500ft, but an aeroplane is tolerably secure against it at 3000ft; and an aeroplane will be safe from field artillery if it flies at 4500ft.

The regulations say that, provided troops lie still, they are difficult to observe even in the open; if they take cover in hedges or under improvised cover, they can often deceive the men in the aeroplane. They are, therefore, advised not to reveal their position by firing on aircraft unless they are fairly sure of hitting. The pilots of aeroplanes, on their side, are advised to take cover behind clouds, as far as possible, where they wish to conceal themselves from an approaching enemy. At 5000 to 6000 ft they can detect troops six miles away, if the weather is clear; and if they wish to report what they have seen, this is to be done by wireless telegraphy, signalling, or carrier pigeons; or they may arrange to drop packets to earth at certain marked spots.

Mr. Bonar Law's "Straight Lead."

The most interesting of all questions in England at present is: At the next general election—who will get in? A fortnight ago ninety people out of a hundred would have said "the Unionists;" not because the people particularly dislike Home Rule, but because they were opposed to the Insurance Act, and the Conservatives were working its unpopularity for all they were worth. But now, within a fortnight, the whole situation seems to have changed. Firstly, some Conservative newspapers, believing that the proposal to give a preference to Canada by taxing foreign wheat was hampering the Conservative chances, threw over the wheat taxes—and nearly all the Conservative members of Parliament have joined in a regular landslide. The Conservative leaders, or some of them, will have to follow, and pledge that the "food taxes" shall not be a Conservative plank at the next election.

That seems, at first sight, to clear away the great Unionist difficulty; but, on second thoughts, it does not really help. If a Unionist Government proposes to set up a tariff on manufactured goods only, then it may get some support from manufacturers, but it is deserting its strongest friends, the British farmers. It proposes a tariff which taxes everything the farmers buy and nothing that they sell—and it has always been impossible to keep up a tariff like that in these old countries. If the Unionists avoid that danger, by postponing the tariff altogether, as some of them went to, or restricting their reforms to a few minor alterations in the existing tariff—then overboard goes the one constructive plank in their platform. For years, whilst the Liberals have striven for a series of social reforms long overdue, the Conservatives have had one panacea, which was to benefit everyone without hurting anyone—and that was a protective tariff. If they abandon that they have nothing at all. They would have to set out to invent a platform of social reforms to compete with the Liberal platform. Mr. Arthur Balfour, generous man though he is, must sometimes smile at these developments; for never in his most undecided speeches on the Tariff question, did he land the party in such a mire of unconviction, as that into which they have followed the "outspoken" and "downright" Mr. Bonar Law.

The second development which has greatly altered the situation is that the Insurance Act—which a fortnight ago looked likely to be a complete failure owing to the belief that the doctors would refuse service, now promises to be a considerable success. Mr. Lloyd George's last terms to the doctors were too good to refuse, and although the committee of the British Medical Association and the Conservative newspapers remained obdurate, the doctors themselves gave way. One has very little doubt that within a few years the Act will be approved, not only by patients, but by the doctors who work it, and that they will not dream of going back to the old terms and control by the friendly societies. The Conservative newspapers foolishly made this, as they made the Old Age Pensions, a party matter; and, as in that case, the tomahawk will come home to roost.

An English Christmas.

Sitting in one's room reading, the Friday evening after Christmas, even with the night air coming in through the windows, one could scarcely keep the room comfortably cool. Fires had been dispensed with altogether that day, but even the heat of the gas jets was too great. The wind that came in at the open window was almost a hot one. People strolled bareheaded through the garden, without overcoat, or comforter, or any of the wrappings that are indispensable on every English winter night, and the breeze had just the balmy softness of a summer evening's breath. The thermometer that day was six or seven degrees higher than on some days in August.

Next morning there was a feeling of April or May in the air, which was unaccountable until one realised that the birds were singing in a way in which they only begin to sing in the spring-time. The thrushes in particular were in full voice all day long—and so it has continued ever since. The trees are all shooting into leaf; the new shoots on the roses are an inch long or more, and I have seen an occasional tree in which the leaves are advanced as they should be in April. The birds have been pairing, the spring flowers are coming up, the new spring grass is growing, some of the sheep have lambed, and there are cases of the young birds having been born. Of course, it must all end sadly in the course of a week or two. But it is impossible to help wondering whether some such cause as the wholesale destruction of the world's forests may not be producing the exceptionally mild winters which have been experienced here of late years.

EDUCATION.

BURSARY ENDOWMENT BOARD.

The Bursary Endowment Board has drawn up a series of regulations which have been approved by Mr. Carmichael, Minister for Education, for the control of the bursaries. It has been decided that the registration of schools shall hold good for two years. They are to be subjected to inspection with regard to the suitability of the school premises, the organisation and equipment, the method and range of instruction, the efficiency of the staff, and the general conduct of the school as a whole. Mr. W. J. Elliott has been appointed inspector for secondary schools. The general conditions attached to registration are:—(1) That a school must be capable of providing a four-year course of instruction beyond the primary stage; (2) that such a course shall lead to a standard not lower than that of the leaving certificate in at least six subjects, of which mathematics shall count as two subjects; and (3) that the subjects of the course be such as the board may approve of. Forty-three schools have now been registered.

THE REGISTERED SCHOOLS.

The registered schools under the Bursary Endowment Act are:—St. Stanislaus' College, Bathurst; the Sydney Grammar School; Newington College, Stanmore; the King's School, Parramatta; St. Ignatius' College, Riverview; Sydney Church of England Grammar School for Boys, North Sydney; Presbyterian Ladies' College, Croydon; St. Joseph's College, Hunter's Hill; Church of England Grammar School for Girls, Darlinghurst; the Scots' College, Rose Bay; Kambala School, Bellevue Hill; the Armidale School, Armidale; Church of England Grammar School for Girls, North Sydney; St. Catherine's Church of England School, Waverley; Church of England Grammar School for Girls, Hunter's Hill; Barker College, Hornsby; Knox College, North Sydney; the New England Girls' School, Armidale; Marist Brothers' High School, Darlinghurst, Sydney; Dominican Convent School, Strathfield; St. Vincent's College, Pott's Point, Sydney; Christian Brothers' High School, Waverley; Holy Cross College, Ryde; Claremont College, Randwick; Christian Brothers' High School, Lewisham; Dominican Convent School, Moss Vale; Woodcourt, Dulwich Hill; Sisters of Mercy Convent School, Parramatta; St. Ursula's College, Armidale; De La Salle College, Armidale; Dominican Convent School, Tamworth; Dominican Convent School, West Maitland; St. Scholastica's College, Glebe Point; St. Aloysius' College, Milson's Point; Sacred Heart Convent School, Rose Bay; Sacred Heart Presentation Convent School, Wagga Wagga; St. Patrick's College, Goulburn; Our Lady of Mercy's College, Goulburn; All Saints' College, Bathurst; St. Brigid's College, Randwick; St. Mary's College, Katoomba; Meriden School, Strathfield; and Convent High School, Broken Hill.

GENERAL CONDITIONS.

The regulations governing the award of the bursaries have been definitely fixed. It has been decided that in awarding bursaries, one-third of the available number will be set apart for candidates from metropolitan and suburban schools, the remaining two-thirds to be divided among other districts in the ratio of the school population. It is provided that no bursary shall be awarded unless a standard satisfactory to the board shall have been reached. It is also provided that if a satisfactory standard be not reached by candidates in a district the bursaries unallotted in that district may be awarded to candidates in some other district.

Candidates for bursaries are divided into two groups, one group comprising all candidates who come from schools with less than 100 pupils in enrolment, the other group from schools with 100 or more in enrolment. The competition for bursaries is restricted within the groups, and the bursaries are divided in the approximate ratio of the number of candidates from the two groups of schools who pass the qualifying certificate examination. Provided that if a satisfactory standard be not reached by candidates in any one group, the bursaries unallotted in that group may be awarded to candidates in some other group.

The examination for the qualifying certificate is to determine the award of bursaries, and no bursary is to be awarded to any pupils unless the conditions under which the qualifying certificate is awarded have been fulfilled. A bursary may be withdrawn at any time during its currency if the holder fails to attend classes regularly and punctually, or fails to give evidence of satisfactory progress, or if the report of the principal of the school upon the conduct of the holder is not satisfactory. For this year only bursars are received from other schools into advanced standing in State or registered secondary schools as second-year pupils, provided that they have obtained the qualifying certificate, and that they give evidence that their previous studies qualify them for advanced standing. Before any bursary is awarded the parent or guardian is to certify that it is his intention that the holder of the bursary shall attend at school for the whole period of four years for which the bursary is tenable, subject to the proviso that candidates received into advanced standing shall be required to attend school only for such time as may be necessary to complete the four years' course.

TEACHERS FOR FIJI.

The Department of Education has received a communication from the Methodist Missionary Society in Fiji requesting assistance from the department in securing the services of trained teachers for the advanced native schools under the society in Fiji. Mr. Carmichael, the Minister for Education, has decided that teachers in the employ of the department, who offer their services for the vacant positions in the Fiji schools shall be allowed leave of absence for a period not exceeding three years. Teachers who accept positions in Fiji will be allowed to return to the service of the department without loss of status at the expiration of the period of three years, on condition that the Methodist Mission undertakes to pay the salaries and travelling expenses of such teachers, in accordance with agreements to be made between the teachers and the official heads of the mission.

PARENTS' ASSOCIATIONS.

The Rev. R. G. M'Carron, secretary of the Berrigan Parents and Citizens' Association, has written to Mr. P. Board, Director of Education, pointing out that members of the association are desirous of bringing the various parents' associations throughout New South Wales into closer touch, and with this end in view, it has been decided that a conference of delegates should be held in Sydney during Easter for the purpose of drawing up a constitution. It is proposed that each association should appoint three delegates, one of whom may be a teacher. The delegates are to pay their own expenses or attend according to arrangements made by the local body. The organisations sending delegates are requested to suggest subjects of interest for discussion at the conference, so that a full business sheet can be prepared in ample time.

CLASSIFICATION OF PUPILS.

Some useful hints regarding the classification and promotion of pupils in the Public schools have been given by Inspector Riley, of the Narrabri district. The advice of the inspector should prove of considerable value and assistance to country school teachers. It is often found that the classification of the pupils receives inadequate attention. Cases of late enrolment are sometimes lost sight of, so that intelligent children of eight or nine years of age are kept moving at the pace of a child of six years. Where children are subnormal, no relationship between age and class is possible, but where there is considerable divergence, say, a year or upwards, from the scale given by the inspector, the teacher should be able to definitely account for it. The scale is: First class to be completed at eight years of age; second class at nine years; third class at 10 years; fourth class at 11 years, and fifth class at 12-13 years. The main trouble results from late enrolment. The inspector finds such cases to be generally dealt with in one of two ways: The child is put into the first reader, though he has not done work of the primer type; (2) he is put into the first primer group, and moved along at the rate of the child of six years of age. Both methods are bad. In the first case the child is overwhelmed with the difficulties, and generally becomes disheartened. Cases were observed where the child so treated had not got on as far as the six-year child, properly handled, would have done in the time. In the second case, the boy's school life is inevitably shortened by years, and his self-respect is weakened. Cases of late enrolment must receive individual attention if justice is to be done them. If the ambition of the pupil is stirred, he will do much on his own initiative.

QUARTER SESSIONS.

(Before Judge Backhouse and a jury.)

Mr. Herbert Harris Crown Prosecutor.

TRAM PASSENGER ASSAULTED.

Frank Compton, about 32 years of age, was arraigned on a charge of assaulting and inflicting grievous bodily harm upon Francis Percy Dudman, at Glebe, on December 6, 1912.

Mr. J. W. Abigail appeared for the accused, who pleaded not guilty.

It was stated in evidence that accused was a recent arrival from England. He said he arrived on August 15, 1912. He was an ex-Manchester policeman, and had been employed by the Sydney Tramway Department soon after his arrival.

The Crown case was that prosecutor, Dudman, with his wife and child, boarded a Balmain tram on the night in question. The Crown witnesses stated that Dudman rode inside the car, resting against the door of the compartment. Prosecutor said the accused, who was the senior conductor, ordered him off, saying that he was riding on the footboard. Dudman refused to alight, declaring that he was not riding on the footboard, whereupon the accused seized him by the arm and tried to wrench him off the car. The passenger resisted, saying that his wife was in the tram. The accused then violently assaulted him. In pulling his hand off the stanchion of the tram, to which he was clinging, the accused treated him so violently as to dislocate one of his thumbs. In addition to this, he struck him in the face, blackening one of his eyes, cutting a lip, and causing other bruises about the face. When the tram reached the terminus prosecutor asked the accused for his number, and his name and address. This request was refused, and it was with considerable difficulty that he had ascertained his assailant's name and address, in order to serve him with a summons. No provocation of any kind was given for the assault.

Mrs. Dudman said accused came to their home, and during the visit he said he wanted to pay half the expenses and settle the whole matter up.

The defence was that Dudman boarded the tram, which was crowded, and insisted upon riding on the footboard, because his wife was inside, and there was no room for him. The assistant conductor complained to the accused, who then stopped the tram and endeavoured to persuade Dudman to either get off the car or go inside the compartment. During the argument which followed it was alleged that Dudman had kicked the accused, and also struck him a blow on the face. This provoked the assault, which was admitted to the extent of striking Dudman in the face. Accused denied that he had wrenched Dudman's hold from the stanchion, or done anything to cause the dislocation of his thumb.

Each of the witnesses for the defence corroborated the accused's story, and said he was only exercising his right as the conductor in charge of the tram to remove a passenger who refused to get off the footboard.

It was admitted by the Crown that the accused had borne an excellent character, and that he came to this State with first-class credentials.

The jury returned a verdict of guilty, with a strong recommendation to mercy on account of the previous good character borne by the accused.

His Honor remanded the prisoner for sentence.

PICTURE SHOW EXIT.

At the Paddington Police Court yesterday, before Mr. J. L. King, S.M., Detective Adam Jordan proceeded against the Oxford Picture Company, Ltd., for not keeping an exit door of a public hall free from obstruction on November 12 while an entertainment was going on.

For the defence, Victor George Teasdale said that on that night 1000 people were present, and that four other exits were open.

Mr. Bathgate, who appeared for the Crown, asked for a nominal penalty. The place was well conducted, but the exit in question was blocked while alterations were going on.

The defendant company then pleaded guilty to obstruction, and, after a warning from the magistrate, a fine of 1s was imposed.

DISPUTED JEWELLERY.

Leonore Tuttle was charged at the North Sydney Police Court, before Mr. Smithers, S.M., with stealing from the residence of Alexander Leonard, in Albert-avenue, Chatswood, on October 10 last, a diamond and sapphire brooch, two gold rings, a gold muff chain, and a handbag, of the total value of £100.

Accused stated to the police that she had had the brooch for years, and that it was given to her by her mother. She produced a photograph of her mother, and pointed out that she was wearing the brooch.

Elsie Leonard, of Manly, said that in October, 1911, she was residing at Waratah, Chatswood. Miss Tuttle visited the place about October 8, 1911. She remained there about half an hour. Later the brooch was missed. She also missed other jewellery at the time. She estimated the total value at £100.

Francis Power, of the Mont de Piete Company, said that Miss Tuttle pledged the brooch in court for £10, stating it was her own. He produced the pledge form, showing the butt, which described the brooch. Afterwards she got a further advance of £7. In December she sued the company in the District Court, claiming the brooch as her property, and stated that it had been illegally pawned without her knowledge.

Tuttle, who reserved her defence, was committed for trial.

ALLEGED THEFT OF MOTOR CYCLE.

Phillip Vincent Dalton, 19, was charged at the Central Police Court, before Mr. Love, S.M., with stealing a motor cycle, valued at £30, the property of Bennett and Wood, of Sydney, on November 13.

It was stated in evidence that a traveller engaged by the firm returned a sample machine from Harden to Sydney by rail. The machine was afterwards found in the possession of the accused, who admitted having obtained it at the railway station.

The accused was committed for trial.

RUGBY ABROAD.

MR. W. W. HILL'S VIEWS.

INTERNATIONAL TEAMS CRITICISED.

"During the last five months I have seen the representative sides of eight different countries on the Rugby field; in fact, during that period I have seen all the chief Rugby nations of the world play the Rugby Union game."

The above remarks were made by Mr. W. W. Hill, secretary of the New South Wales Rugby Union (who returned to Sydney yesterday morning), in the course of a chat with a "Herald" representative.

"This programme," continued Mr. Hill, "has given me an excellent chance of studying the different methods of such fifteens as the South Africans, English, Scottish, Welsh, French, British Columbians, and Californians. Each have their own style, so that the variety was great. The Springboks were a very powerful fifteen, being of magnificent physique, yet free-moving and speedy. Their goal-kicking was excellent and won a number of their games, including the internationals against Wales and England. However, their tactics were the same, no matter what the conditions of ground and weather, and to this I attribute their defeat by Swansea and their other tight games in Wales. They were too orthodox, and often persevered with three-quarter passing rushes to their own detriment. The side was very popular owing to their playing good, clean football.

"The game in England is in a splendid position, both as regards first-class players and public patronage, and the matches I witnessed were played in admirable spirit, with fine big sporting crowds looking on. I think the English team was the best I saw in the United Kingdom. Wales keeps up its very high standard, and the crowds their enthusiasm. The singing of songs at the matches makes quite an impression on a stranger. Owing to the very wet season I saw more forward games than anything else, and in these the dribbling was very fine.

"The match between Scotland and France at Paris, on New Year's Day, showed me the Frenchmen in quite an unexpected light. The local forwards outclassed the Scotchmen during almost the whole of the game. The backs were speedy, and, with the exception of the faults of veering towards touch when running and misjudging passes, they were quite high-class. Scotland's threes made the most of the bad passing, and scored the majority of their 21 points in this way.

"The French crowd itself provided one of the most impressive spectacles, and before the game started were worked up into a high pitch of excitement. When France scored first the applause was terrific.

"For each of his decisions against the local team, the referee (Mr. Baxter, of England) was hooted. At the finish a dangerous looking demonstration against that official was only quelled by quick and decided action by the mounted police, who rode over and in some cases trampled on the spectators.

"In America the game is rapidly improving, and the picked teams here are able to give any side a good game. Keenness of spectator and player alike, ability to grasp the essential points, and plenty of care and attention from coaches, trainers, etc., are going to make the American youth already possessed of splendid physique—a fine Rugby player.

"I witnessed a game played under American rules in Philadelphia, but the allowance of offside, interference, tackling when not in possession, etc., makes this far from being an entertaining sight for a Rugby man. The crowds that viewed the game, however, went frantic, and in the display of colours and their organised barracking provided something quite novel."

MILK STANDARD.

SHOULD IT BE REDUCED?

DEPUTATION TO MR. FLOWERS.

"If we could give you an easement from the milk standard, and yet mark out the difference between those who are desirous of maintaining a fair and reasonable standard as against those who nefariously and criminally water the milk, I should be only too pleased."

With these words Mr. Flowers answered a deputation of Newcastle, Maitland, Cessnock, and Kurri Kurri milk vendors, which waited on him yesterday. The deputation was accompanied by Messrs. W. Kearsley, T. S. Crawford, and C. E. Nicholson, Ms.L.A.

Mr. Kearsley said the deputation desired to complain of the difficulty of complying with the present milk standard of 3.2. Several of his constituents had been fined for selling below the standard, but he believed them to be honest men. He understood that in the matter of testing milk according to the standard there was no certainty as to the difference between watered milk and poor milk.

Mr. W. Ellis said he had not the slightest sympathy with the adulterer, but the existing standard had been responsible for causing people to give up business. In fact, one vendor had to go into a coalmine to earn a living. He quoted an opinion that, no matter what the standard was, a man should be allowed to sell milk so long as it could be shown that it had not been tampered with.

Mr. Flowers: Do you agree with that?

"Yes," responded Mr. Ellis.

Mr. Flowers rejoined that he did not agree, neither did the public.

Mr. Ellis: I disagree with what you say about the public. The Maitland people are perfectly satisfied with the supply.

Mr. Ellis remarked that the punishment of vendors for adulteration when it was known that they had not committed that offence was cruel and wicked.

Four cases were quoted by Mr. G. Ellis, in each of which magistrates had expressed the opinion that the vendor was an honest man. If by a workable standard honest men could be safeguarded they would be perfectly satisfied. They desired something like the English law.

Mr. Nicholson said that after a couple of hot days milk in his district sometimes was like blue water.

Mr. Flowers said that the matter was one that must be left to the experts to decide. There had to be a standard; vendors would agree about that. Whether 3.2 was a high standard was not for him to say. The Government must be guided by the opinion of its experts. In Victoria the standard was 3.5, much higher than here. He took it that before they set out to sell their milk they knew exactly whether it was in accordance with the law or not.

A member of the deputation interjected that not one in twenty knew this.

As cautious men, the Minister continued, they should have this test. They would admit that the lower the standard was made the easier would be the road of the adulterator. He took it that they had no sympathy with such offenders. Adulteration was one of the most serious offences he knew of, as so many lives depended on milk nourishment. What was the difference between poor quality milk and watered milk to the same standard? There could be no difference. Possibly there were certain months of the year when it might be difficult to maintain the 3.2 test, but this did not apply all the year. He was not satisfied in his mind that they had reached the stage of absolute certainty as to the standard that had been fixed. This vexed question would be referred to a board of experts. No doubt the vendors were honest, but the Government could only decide the matter from the point of view of public interest.

"CLEMENTS TONIC, LTD.

"The last few summers affected my health, the hot weather bringing on languor and weariness, no inclination to exert myself, and my nervous system out of order. I was fortunate enough in having Clements Tonic recommended. Procuring a bottle, I was pleased at the rapid improvement it made in me. I used three bottles straight away. Since then I always keep a bottle on hand, and if I feel out of sorts a few doses put me right. In fact, it has restored me to perfect health again. You may make what use you wish of this letter.

"(Signed) THOS. KING, J.P."

People run down, easily tired, with poor appetites, bad nerves, melancholic thoughts, or bad memory, suffer from debility. TRUMPER'S TRIUMPH

SCORES 126 NOT OUT.

VISITORS IN WEAK POSITION.

RYDER BOWLS WELL.

The most gratifying features about Trumper's testimonial match yesterday were the presence of 7361 people and Victor Trumper's triumph in scoring a hundred in the most important match of his career—viewed from a personal standpoint. Play during the greater period of the day was far from brilliant. Yesterday's proceeds totalled £397 0s 11½d, made up of £349 3s taken at the gate and £47 17s 11½d in the collection boxes. The total amount of money received up to Saturday evening was £1957 18s 11d.

Before luncheon, when Trumper had his old comrade, Noble, with him at the wickets, the ball travelled to all parts of the field at the will of either batsmen, and 108 runs were added to the New South Wales score in 57 minutes. This was the brightest batting seen during the day. Noble joined Trumper when he was 35, and the total stood at 242 for four wickets. Noble had a good reception. He soon recovered from rather a shaky commencement, and in the course of an innings of 46 showed that he has not lost any of his great batting ability. His half-century seemed a certainty, but Ryder, who had changed ends, sent him a tempting off ball that he cut straight into the hands of Armstrong, another old colleague of his in representative cricket. Trumper continued to play with great confidence—he scored 62 while Noble made 46—and after batting just over two hours he reached his hundred amid liberal applause. Carter, Hazlitt, Hordern, and Massie all failed to keep up their end for any considerable time, however, and Trumper was undefeated at the close of the innings with 126 runs to his credit.

Ryder, bowling with the assistance of the wind, proved formidable. He secured the wickets of Noble, Collins, Carter, Hordern, and Hazlitt, and at one period four wickets had cost him only two runs. His analysis for the innings read five wickets for 66 runs. He went on at the Randwick end, when his analysis was:—12—2—51—0. His next four overs read thus:—

[illegible]

The batsmen who fell victims to Ryder were caught by Armstrong, Crawford, Hill, Mayne, and Campbell in succession. They formed a quadrant from wicketkeeper to point.

THIRTY-ONE AHEAD.

The New South Wales innings closed at 389, giving them a lead of 31.

At their second attempt the Rest of Australia fared badly, losing six good batsmen for 165. The visitors are thus, with only four wickets in hand, 134 runs on. Clem Hill and A. G. Moyes, when apparently well set, ran out and hit recklessly at balls of the googlie order from Noble and Hordern. Carter did the rest. Mayne and the not outs, Armstrong and Ryder, were the only other batsmen to face the bowling with confidence. Hordern, with the wind at his back, was very difficult at the Randwick end, and frequently he beat the bat and missed the wicket.

During the afternoon the old Reptonian, Crawford, busied himself among spectators selling autographed photographs of Trumper, and the harvest should be a good one.

THE PLAY.

Following a shower in the early hours of the morning the wicket was soft when play was resumed at Sydney Cricket Ground at noon.

However, the sun was shining brightly and a stiff, drying breeze blew. Trumper, the principal figure in the match, came out to bat with Bardsley. He had 27 to his credit at the adjournment on Saturday, and Bardsley four. The total was three for 214.

By interesting cricket, 28 runs were added, and then a brilliant catch at short square leg dismissed Bardsley. He hooked a short-pitched delivery from Armstrong in the direction of Crawford, and by means of a jump he stopped the ball and held it as it fell. Four for 242. Bardsley had batted cleverly and several of his glides from Armstrong were brilliant efforts.

The crowd received Noble heartily as he joined his old colleague, Trumper. At 270 when Trumper made his individual score 50, he gave Crawford a difficult return, which he failed to hold. At 221 he had returned one to Armstrong, which the bowler succeeded in touching. Trumper's half-century occupied him 89 minutes. His batting had been excellent, but devoid of the brilliance shown by Macartney. He brought up the 300 by turning Ryder, who took the ball from Crawford, to leg for two, and this he followed up by hitting the next two deliveries to the on for fours. Both were beautiful high drives. A capital stroke to leg was made by Noble off Ryder, and Trumper won applause for a sweet late cut from the same bowler two overs later.

NOBLE'S BAD LUCK.

At the expense of Matthews Trumper repeated the stroke at the grand-stand end, and was rapidly nearing his hundred, while Noble's fifty seemed a certainty. Trumper hit a full toss from Whitty for four past cover, and cut him for a single. Clem Hill then tried Ryder with the wind behind him at the Randwick end, and the fifth ball of his over Noble cut into the slips. Armstrong and Crawford both went for the ball, but the tall Victorian was not flurried, and at the second attempt he held it. 5-350. Noble batted brilliantly for 57 minutes, and had bad luck in missing scoring 50 on his first appearance after a considerable absence from representative cricket. He and Trumper during their partnership scored at a rapid rate, adding 108 runs in 57 minutes. Collins filled the vacancy, and repeated the stroke Noble had made, save that the ball travelled rather wider. Crawford held the catch, and luncheon was taken, with the score six for 350. Trumper was not out 96.

After luncheon the attendance was largely increased. Carter joined his captain. Ryder's first ball was wide of the wicket, and thus he lost his opportunity of performing the hat trick. Trumper then completed his century, amid loud applause.

His hundred had taken only 137 minutes, which was fast scoring considering that he had batted for his first 50 on a difficult wicket. Carter faced Ryder, and cut the first ball to Hill, who made a good catch at third slip. 7-358. Hordern followed, and was caught off the third ball by Mayne at point. He did not score.

The advent of Ryder at the Randwick end had altered the complexion of the game considerably, and his four wickets, since he had bowled with the aid of the wind, had cost only two runs. Trumper then straight drove an over-pitched delivery to the off boundary, and the ball, bouncing over the rails, struck the parasol of a lady on the lawn.

Ryder failed to tempt Hazlitt with off theory for some time, but then the Central Cumberland player nibbled at one, and Campbell accepted a catch at the wicket. 9—366. With Massie as his partner, Trumper delighted the crowd with a lofty on drive from Ryder to the boundary.

The fast bowler nearly bowled Massie, and the 'Varsity man's attempts to avoid the bowling tickled the crowd. When he again faced Ryder he gave Crawford a fairly easy chance, but the ball struck the fieldsman before he could get his hands to it. Trumper then hit a ball from Whitty to the outfield. It was an easy single, but, in order to keep the bowling to himself, Trumper did not run. At 384 Whitty, who had taken two wickets for 112, made way for Crawford. Trumper welcomed him by cutting his second ball, but Massie put his leg in front of the last of the over, and on appeal was given out. The innings, which lasted 278 minutes, closed at 389. Trumper was not out 126. He batted just over two hours and three-quarters, and hit 16 fours. Save for two chances, his innings was brilliant and chanceless; his pulls to the on, off drives, and late cuts being the principal features. Ryder bowled with great effect after changing ends, but the batsmen played into his hands in trying to score from deliveries that broke away towards a set of vigilant slipsmen.

"RESTS'" SECOND INNINGS.

Mayne and Cody, the New South Wales player appearing in the visiting team, opened the second venture of the visitors just before half-past three, to the bowling of Massie and Hazlitt.

Twenty were on the board when Barbour, at forward leg, let Cody off, and to make matters worse, Massie missed Mayne at first slip off Hazlitt—both easy chances. The batsmen wiped off the arrears, and again rejoiced when Massie missed Mayne off Kelleway. The score was unaltered, however, when Mayne, playing well forward to a short ball from Kelleway, gave Barbour a simple catch, which he accepted. 1-39. Clem. Hill joined Cody, and enlivened play to some extent by a series of powerful drives. He lost Cody at 60, the Paddington player, in attempting to pull Kelleway, playing the ball on to his wicket. 2—60. Moyes, South Australia's promising young player, filled the vacancy, and was soon on good terms with the spectators. He played Kelleway with confidence, cutting and driving the Glebe player, and despatched Hordern to the rails with apparent ease. He soon passed Hill's score, and was batting well, when, in jumping out to Hordern, gave Carter ample time to whip off the bails. He hit five fours in an innings of 35. 3—95. Ransford, the next batsman, was soon in the pavilion—bowled by Hordern without scoring. The googlie bowler sorely puzzled Armstrong for some time, and Hill had an escape when he ran out to the same bowler, changed his mind, and just reached the crease in time. The batsmen had to face Noble at 122, and his fifth ball proved too much for Hill, who left his crease to play it, and was smartly stumped by Carter. He batted 71 minutes, and hit three fours. 5—136. Matthews shared the fate of Ransford, for, with the score unaltered, he spooned a ball from Hordern to Noble at forward leg. 6—136. The "Rest's" successful bowler, Ryder, who followed, soon began to hit, and had 23 to his credit when stumps were drawn for the day.

J. D. WILLIAMS.

ANOTHER REMAND GRANTED.

ARGUMENT AT POLICE COURT.

James Dixon Williams, 35, managing director of the Greater J. D. Williams Co., was charged, on remand, at the Central Police Court, before Mr. Payten, S.M., with receiving, harbouring, maintaining, and assisting Frank Lloyd, who is charged in connection with an alleged forged order.

Mr. G. F. Williamson, of Messrs. John Williamson and Son, appeared for the prosecution; and Mr. Windeyer, instructed by Messrs. Perkins and Stevenson, for the defendant.

Mr. Windeyer, when the case was called, said he understood it was listed for that day by mistake, and that it was to be taken the following day.

Mr. Payten said he found by the records that the case was remanded till that day.

Mr. Williamson, for the prosecution, asked for a remand till Monday. Detective Walker, who had been connected with the case, had spent a good deal of time travelling to New Zealand in connection with the case against Lloyd. There were a great number of witnesses to interview, and the case for the prosecution was not ready.

Mr. Payten: Surely there are other officers working up the case, and were so engaged before the issue of the warrant.

Mr. Windeyer opposed this application. The case had been called on a week ago. There had been no actual losses in the matter. It appeared to him that the application showed a desire to keep the case hanging over their heads and to vilify Williams' name. He contended that a case of that sort should be disposed of as quickly as possible, for they knew how much public attention had been called to it. Defendant was, therefore, entitled to the hearing as soon as possible.

Mr. Payten said it did appear as a poor excuse that the delay was attributable to Detective Walker's absence.

Mr. Williamson: Detective Walker has interviewed the whole of the witnesses.

Mr. Payten pointed out that when a warrant was issued the person should know what evidence would be given in the case. The detective was present to give information.

Mr. Williamson: The detective cannot give the evidence of the witnesses. Messrs. Gannon and Pickburn have been briefed for the prosecution, and they have not had an opportunity to go fully into the case.

Mr. Windeyer: Why not? This case was called a week ago.

Mr. Williamson: The defendant was arrested one day and was before the court the next.

Mr. Windeyer submitted that the proper thing was to take the case at the earliest possible opportunity. If it was a question of meeting the convenience of Messrs. Gannon, Pickburn, and Williamson, he would agree to the case being postponed till the following day, but he would not agree to a further remand. The idea of the prosecution not being prepared to go on with the case a week after the arrest of the defendant was absolutely shocking.

Mr. Payten: As I pointed out any good professional man who issues a warrant should be prepared to make out the case.

Mr. Williamson: When?

Mr. Payten: At any time.

Mr. Williamson: How are the witnesses to be obtained? There are about eight, I understand.

Mr. Windeyer contended that if the prosecution had done their duty they would have interviewed the witnesses before proceeding. This man was charged with harbouring and assisting—whatever that might mean. It had nothing to do with the merits of the case.

The defendant was remanded till the following day.

A £50,000 LOAN.

BALLOT AT MARRICKVILLE.

The local government officer, Mr. Jones, appointed to inquire into the Marrickville Council's proposal to borrow £50,000, having reported in favour of the council's scheme, a referendum of the ratepayers of the district was taken on Saturday.

The council proposed that the £50,000 should be spent as follows:—Street works £12,000, construction of a garbage destructor £9000, erection of new town hall £9000, and the balance of £20,000 to pay off existing loans.

The voting continued all day on Saturday until 6 p.m. In all about a thousand ratepayers voted. A big majority was in favour of the loan being raised, with the exception of the amount for the town hall (£9000). The majority was against this section of the proposal.

The Lord Mayor yesterday received a letter on behalf of the Young Australian League, desiring to express their thanks to the people of Sydney for the kindnesses shown to the visiting members of the league from Western Australia in enabling them to see the beauty spots in and around Sydney.

CHILDREN'S EYESIGHT.

DEPARTMENTAL ACTION.

STATEMENT BY MR. FLOWERS.

Mr. Flowers, who is acting as Minister for Education during the absence of Mr. Carmichael, alluded yesterday to the large number of school children found to be suffering from defective vision in the West.

"The groundwork of the present system of the medical inspection of school children," said Mr. Flowers, "is based on a thorough co-operation between the school teacher, the doctor, the nurse who follows up the doctor's work, and the parent, the efforts of each being essential to the success of the plan.

"In regard to defective vision the teacher supplies the doctor with a list of children whose eyes appear to be affected. The doctor examines these children and the nurse tabulates the results, and communicates them to the parents. That is what is done in the metropolis, and Mr. Carmichael intends to extend the system to the country. So far the results have been satisfactory. The revelations in the West show conclusively that Mr. Carmichael is justified in what he has done."

KILLED ON RAILWAY LINE.

KATOOMBA, Monday.

Shortly after 11 o'clock on Saturday night Mr. Frank Goldsby, a Katoomba resident, reported to the local police that someone had met with an accident on the railway line between Katoomba and Leura, as he had heard groans coming from the direction of the railway cutting whilst on his way to Katoomba, along the main Western-road. The police made the information known to the railway officials, and the acting stationmaster, together with the police, proceeded to walk along the line in the direction of Leura. When the party arrive at the Leura side of the stock board they found William J. Hessell, resident of Katoomba, lying in an unconscious condition on the ballast near the line, suffering from concussion, and severe bruises about the head and face; it was also found that four fingers of his right hand were partly crushed off. He was carried back to Katoomba waiting-room, where he was medically treated. His immediate removal to Penrith Hospital was ordered, and he was taken there by the police in the brake-van of a Sydney-bound train. Official news was received that the man succumbed to his injuries early on Sunday morning.

Deceased, who was a bachelor, of about 45 years of age, had resided in Katoomba for a number of years, and was a well-known local identity.

FEDERAL LAND TAX.

YOUNG, Monday.

A meeting of the Young Landowners' Association was held on Saturday, there being a representative attendance of landowners. The chairman indicated that, in view of what was now taking place in the matter of reassessment of unimproved values, it was essential that steps be taken to defend themselves. Some time ago they met for the purpose of arriving at some fair and uniform method of valuation. The matter had been fully considered, and, in view of the attitude taken up by the Federal Land Tax Commissioner, the meeting should decide whether to take steps in the direction of a test case before the courts or allow themselves to be overridden by the Federal taxation authorities. The following resolutions were carried:—"(1) That the association take up the matter of contesting the reassessment of unimproved values made by the Federal Land Tax Commissioners; and (2) in conjunction with the Grenfell Landowners' Association, approach the Department of Taxation with a view to typical instances being taken as test cases." It was also decided to institute a fighting fund for this purpose.

STRIKES OR ARBITRATION?

PERTH, Monday.

The Labour Federation Council, after several weeks' discussion, decided not to resolve against arbitration in favour of the strike. Mr. Doland moved,—"That the settlement of industrial disputes by arbitration is obsolete, and that the affiliated unions be requested not to cite cases before it." An amendment was carried striking out all the words after "obsolete," and the amended motion was then rejected by a large majority.

The federation also decided by 62 to 35 to abandon the attempt to coerce the Australian Society of Engineers into amalgamation with the Amalgamated Society of Engineers. The federation executive had previously carried a resolution that the Australian Society should either withdraw its delegates from the council or join the Amalgamated Society, in pursuance of the decision that there should be only one union in each trade.

COUNTRY QUARTER SESSIONS.

GLEN INNES, Monday.

The Quarter Sessions were concluded before Judge Edmunds. Harry Lowe, who was defended by Mr. H. R. Crossman, was acquitted on a charge of maliciously setting fire to the residence of Walter Alfred Loadsman at Mount Mitchell on January 16 last. Wm. Brophy, who pleaded guilty to assaulting Joseph Watson at Deepwater station, was sentenced to 12 months' hard labour in Goulburn Gaol. Cecil Williams, who pleaded guilty to receiving a quantity of tin ore at Torington, well knowing the same to be stolen, was sentenced to two years' hard labour in Goulburn Gaol. Yang War, who was found guilty of receiving a quantity of tin ore at Emmaville, well knowing same to be stolen, was sentenced to two years' hard labour in Goulburn Gaol. In each case his Honor added a proviso that, providing their conduct was good for the first half of the sentence, he would recommend their release on license for the remainder of their term. Judge Edwards warmly commended Constable Waters for his excellent and smart work in arresting accused Williams, and trusted same would be brought before the proper authorities. Waters discovered the stolen tin in the bed of a creek, and kept constant watch on the place for two weeks, eventually arresting Williams.

POSTAL SORTERS' UNIONS.

MELBOURNE, Monday.

An interstate conference of postal sorters was held to-day for the purpose of framing rules and drawing up a constitution for the Federal Association composed of the State unions. Mr. Kealy, president of the Victorian union, was in the chair. Senator Findley, Acting Postmaster-General, in replying to a welcome, said that two or three years ago the letter carriers, postal assistants, and letter sorters were embraced in one family, but recently they had decided to branch out for themselves in sections. He thought that this splitting up was beneficial, and that the movement to form a federation of the letter sorters' unions was a good one. There was no department of the State that employed a larger number of men and women, and no department upon which so much attention was directed, and against which so much manifestly unfair criticism was levelled. It was easy for outsiders to criticise, but some were talking through their hats. In the last three or four years the lot of those employed had been improved. He did not say that everything required had been given, for that would not happen until the millennium.

In moving a vote of thanks to Senator Findley for attending the conference, an official said the postal sorters did not desire the moon, but they thought that the general division of the service should be advanced beyond £180 a year. Men in the general division should at least receive £200 a year. Senator Findley, in responding, said he hoped that the deliberations of the conference would have good results.

At the meeting of the local branch of the Prisoners' Aid Society, an interesting record of the work accomplished was supplied by the managing secretary, Mr. F. J. Willard. Since the branch was established, in November, 1907, 112 applications had been received, only two of which had been refused. The helping hand was extended to the remaining 110, and, after deducting 15, who did not avail themselves of the assistance offered, and four that remained to be dealt with, a total of 91 prisoners had been assisted. Of these 70 had been found employment. There had only been four re-convictions out of the 91 assisted, about 4½ per cent. The number of failures was far less in Maitland than anywhere in the State. It was resolved to make arrangements for the holding of occasional concerts at the Maitland Gaol on Sundays.

THE ANTARCTIC.

The unexpected arrival of the Terra Nova at Oamaru brings to a conclusion an expedition in which Australasia feels more than a mere impersonal interest. Not only does its staff include two of our own representatives, but as the "jumping-off place" for various attempts upon Antarctica we have come to feel intimately associated with the fortunes of any fresh expedition to that most inhospitable of lands. It is with the more pleasure that we congratulate Captain Scott and his staff upon their safe return, and with the more sincerity that we offer our appreciation of their efforts. It is almost three years since the Terra Nova left London with a band whose objective was nothing less than the South Pole. If ever an expedition was likely to be successful, this was the one. Its leader had served an apprenticeship in Antarctic exploration which peculiarly fitted him for his task; his companions were, in their respective spheres, all picked men. It was nothing short of sheer bad luck that another expedition should have succeeded in anticipating Captain Scott in the supreme honour of first reaching the Pole. At the same time, though Captain Scott and his companions have not achieved this unique distinction, they must have accomplished most valuable work in other directions, work which is less spectacular, but which is hardly less useful, and may compensate for the loss of the "spolia opima" won by Captain Amundsen.

The history of Polar exploration is long, yet it has come to an end with dramatic suddenness. Fifteen centuries ago our viking ancestors (and glad we are to call them our ancestors) first ploughed their hesitating way through Arctic mists, colonised Greenland, and incidentally discovered America. Since then followers have not been lacking, Norseman, Briton, and American; some sought gold, some sought a ship-route to the East, and some were driven by that spirit of pure adventure which has added so much to the geography of the world. Some returned; many did not, but left their bones in an unknown grave. It remained for Peary five years ago to plant the flag of the United States upon the northern axis of the world. The southern axis has proved easier of conquest, although it offers difficulties even greater. It, too, has its roll of honoured names, but practical accomplishment began with Borchgrevink, continued with Shackleton, and reached its climax with Amundsen. It ends with Scott. Indeed, with Scott the golden age of exploration may be said to have closed. His expedition will be the last to have set out upon any venture on the grand scale. Exploration no longer offers the same prizes, using the word in no material sense, that it did a few years ago. The world has become smaller. The Poles have each of them within a few years given up their secret stubbornly held for centuries. There is no longer any new continent to be crossed, with mountain ranges to be climbed, and rivers to be traced to their source. There is much to be done, and all who still wish to measure the unmeasured spaces of the earth have a large field at their disposal, but the "big" points of this planet have been mapped. In the future men will start on voyages of discovery for scientific or commercial reasons, and they will brave hardships and perils as great as Livingstone or Peary ever suffered. Yet great and useful as their work will be, it will never be quite with the same incentive and with the same magnificent goal as those of the explorers of former days, and in greeting Captain Scott we may say good-bye to the last of the men who thought in new continents, and who strove to materialise their dreams.

MR. WADE'S RETURN.

The tribute which was paid to the leader of the Liberal party at the banquet last night was a testimony alike to the personal pleasure which his colleagues feel that he has returned to Australia physically invigorated and to the united enthusiasm which the party desires to display under Mr. Wade's leadership in the forthcoming political struggles, both in the State and the Federal arena. Mr. Wade made some graceful references last night to the services which Mr. Wood has rendered to the Liberal cause during his absence from the State. The deputy-leader has shown courage, energy, and resource in dealing with his political opponents, and Liberals are grateful to him for his past services rendered in difficult circumstances, and anticipate with satisfaction their continuance in co-operation with Mr. Wade in the future. The Liberal leader announced that he proposes to extend his rest to the full period which was originally recommended to him, and we feel sure that he is wise in husbanding his strength so that he may lead his party to the greatest advantage in the coming period. A strenuous time is, indeed, ahead of politicians in New South Wales. A by-election at Yass will take place within the next few weeks; in May the Federal general election will be held, together with the referendums; whilst later in the year the electors will once more be asked to exercise their votes for the State elections. It would be foolish in this connection to attach too much importance to divisions in the Labour party. The fighting ahead of Liberals must be anticipated as against a united enemy, and no discount should be taken off because the Labour Conference happens for the moment to be turned into a public laundry. There is real hard work ahead, the more so because the present Government seems inclined to take a lead in appealing to the country against trades-union dominance. It is an extraordinary spectacle, of course, and there seems to be a contradiction somewhere if Labour, after all, is to fight solidly together during the next six months. But Liberals will do well to accept the main fact at its true value, and that is that any show of division in the face of the enemy may prove fatal to the party's prospects.

We are glad that Mr. Wade was able to speak with so much confidence and hopefulness as to the prospects of the party, and we feel sure that nothing will be left undone to support this spirit of optimism by vigorous organisation and the necessary [illegible] spadework which alone can [illegible] in conjunction with a righteous cause. At Yass the electors, unembarrassed, so far as present indications go, by [illegible] candidature, will have the opportunity of condemning the Government for its extravagance (in such matters as day labour) and shortsightedness (in such matters as immigration), its disloyalty (as evidenced by its conduct with regard to Government House), and its humiliating subservience to Mr. Willis. Above all, they will be able to express their indignation over the whole of the episode relating to their late member. Mr. Wade rightly described the third party last night as a "vain imagining," and we believe he is correct when he says that the attempt to drive a wedge into the cohesion of the Liberal party (whatever may be the case with the Labour party) is doomed to failure. Only three short months now intervene before the Federal elections will be upon us. The issues to be decided are of the gravest possible moment to the State, and we look forward to Mr. Wade's leadership in the campaign against unification, which will soon commence. The Liberal party must be absolutely united in both policy and personal loyalty to its leader. It knows nothing of heresy-hunts or caucus pledges. The party will go forward with its policy framed in the interests of every class of the community, and it will be stimulated to renewed enthusiasm by the knowledge that its well-trusted leader is once more able to take his part in the fray.

THE MODERN ALCHEMIST.

Basil Valentine, in his "Triumphant Chariot of Antimony," remarked that the shortness of life made it impossible for any man thoroughly to learn antimony, in which every day something new was discovered. One wonders what the old alchemist would have thought of radium, which incidentally has brought once more to the front the mediaeval idea of the transmutation of the elements. If there was ever a sacred belief of the modern chemist it was that the atoms of the elements were eternal and immutable. But the progress of knowledge in the last decade has caused very different views to prevail, and now the most eminent chemists are heard expressing their profound conviction that one element may be transformed into another, when only we know how; and amongst these Sir William Ramsay, who announces the apparent conversion of hydrogen into neon and helium, has been a conspicuous pioneer. For many years past he has devoted a large part of his almost unrivalled experimental skill—he was the first to isolate the rare gases of the atmosphere—to this fascinating problem. He has already succeeded, at least to his own satisfaction, in breaking down copper into the light alkali metal lithium, and is nearly convinced as to the validity of some other transformations; so that his present announcement will not be a surprise to those familiar with the recent history of the subject. It is hardly necessary to remark that there must at the start be a considerable element of doubt in regard to these soul-disturbing results. One of the chief difficulties of the chemist is to exclude the last trace of foreign matter from his materials—so much so that it has been said that an absolutely pure chemical has never been prepared. When at the best one is dealing with the merest traces of a substance, it is obvious that this qualification leaves room for a good deal of scepticism, the only reply to which lies in the known and extreme skill of the observer.

The personal element comes largely into the question of scientific faith, especially when we are working just on the borderland of the unknown, and when further progress is only possible by the utmost refinement of method. Yet when Sir J. J. Thomson, to take another instance, announces the discovery of an element lighter than hydrogen, such a discovery, epoch-making though it be, will be accepted at least as a working hypothesis by nearly everyone, and science at once remembers that Mendeleef, the maker of modern philosophic chemistry, predicted it, as he rightly predicted so many other elements, many years ago. For the chemist of to-day is not working in the dark. He understands the family relations of the elements, and can see at once where a member of the family has to be reported missing. A long list of discoveries points to the reliability of his general theory as a guide to research. With regard to the actual change of one element into another, however, the modern alchemist stands upon still surer ground. He has seen it proved beyond all reasonable doubt that the element radium, when it undergoes disintegration, gives rise to a series of products which have every right to be called elements, and of which the first is the stable element helium, and the last the stable element lead. Other radio-active substances act in the same way, and between them give rise to a score or more of disintegration products, mostly short-lived; but a child is none the less human if it dies in infancy, and these substances are as much elements as the common metals with which we are all familiar. Indeed, radium itself is such a product, the undoubted child of uranium, and we can catch it in the act of being born. Now it would be very unphilosophical to assume that radio-active disintegration was a peculiar property associated with the one or two substances whose changes we can follow. Rather must we regard these as the extreme case of a process which is going on universally, though as a rule in a way too slow to be detected. We may safely say, therefore, that all elements are potentially radio-active, and that means that, given suitable stimulus, they would break down into other elements of lower atomic weight, which, again, might recombine to form a synthesis of elements of a higher order.

CHILDREN OF THE BUSH.

Now and again a sidelight is let in upon the conditions of life in our back country which goes far towards dispersing the pictures conjured up by the enthusiasm of our poets. Such a sidelight is the report of Dr. Grace Boelke on the eyesight of the children at Quambone. That report has yet to be expanded over other western districts, but enough is at hand to show that the Education Department is faced with a serious responsibility in the matter of bush children quite outside its curriculum problems. In brief, the intense heat of the summer, and the conditions which are set up by it, are gravely affecting the eyesight of the bush children. In two respects, chiefly, that is a state of things which calls for speedy handling. In the first place it is concerned with the suffering of these far-back youngsters—and it is often suffering that has to be miserably endured for the simple reason that no provision exists for its cure. In the second place it is concerned with the effectiveness as citizens of the coming generation of bush-dwellers. In either respect it is a serious matter. It calls for the sympathy of everyone, and it calls especially for the sympathy of those who live in the comfort of pleasant surroundings, where even the worst fierceness of summer can be discounted by means close at hand. The bush children of the far west are, for all the enthusiasm of the bush poets, exposed in the course of any summer to sufferings of a very cruel kind. The heat, and the glare, and the dust of the interior are bad enough even when they are fought by the resources of civilisation. But when those who suffer them are openly at their mercy by reason of primitive surroundings, and the absence of comforts, and the evils of general ignorance, they become a tragedy.

They are a tragedy, and worst of all they are a tragedy of our child-life, which should be exempt from tragedy. The case of the farmers at Attunga, who have made a very sensible call upon the Government to bring the health-giving Sydney beaches nearer to them, is a call of summer distress on all-fours with that of the children. The time will come, no doubt, when the special circumstances of our bush summer will be the subject of special relief organisation. It should begin to take shape with as little delay as possible. It may be divided broadly into two aspects, both of them based upon the foundation fact that the conditions of the interior in the summer season are such as to call for special provision for those who dwell there. In the first place, those conditions demand that the women and children, especially, be given facilities for removal to the comparative coolness of the coast. In the second place, those conditions demand a far more humane provision of medical care than any now at service of the bush-dwellers. Just now the need of that medical care comes up prominently in this detail of the children's eyesight. But if the matter were probed far enough, it would be found that ills and sorrows of many sorts are suffered in the bush to the last extremity, because there is no remedial resource available beyond that of crude, unskilled kindness which for all its well-meaning can affect so little. The bush-nursing projects of recent years remain poorly inoperative. The cry of the bush in its sufferings is for the most part an unheeded cry. But something will have to be done, and it is well that the Education Department is at last in the field. But the problem is a far-reaching one. It needs national handling, not only in respect of the children, but of all these people who need medical help and ask for it in vain. For until it has national handling our boast of progress and prosperity is constantly refuted by the sufferings of the neglected women and children of our bush.

The week in London.—Our special correspondent notes that people in England find it hard to explain Mr. Fisher's refusal to take part in Defence Committee Consultations. "The Week in London," otherwise has an interesting paragraph about the instructions to aeroplanes, with the need for cover behind clouds. Mr. Bonar Law's "straight lead," and the Unionist dilemma in connection with preferential trade, are dealt with; and the extraordinary warmth of the weather following Christmas gives a curious commentary on the terrible gales which have raged since this week's letter left England.

Lord Chelmsford's Farewell.—The citizens' farewell dinner to Lord Chelmsford, to be held in the Town Hall on March 3, promises to be a large and representative gathering, some hundreds of tickets already having been applied for. It has been decided to hold the function in the large hall, and to throw open the galleries for the accommodation of ladies. It is requested that applications, both for the dinner tickets and the gallery tickets, should be made as soon as possible, in order to secure reserved seats.

Tenders for Locomotives.—Referring to the fact that the Minister for Home Affairs (Mr. O'Malley) had placed an order for four locomotives with the Clyde Engineering Works, of Granville, at an average cost of £6165 for each engine, Messrs. R. Towns and Co. stated that the Baldwin Locomotive Works' tender was not only very much lower than that of the Clyde Company, but, in addition, they offered to deliver the four locomotives for shipment within four months from the date of the order.

Littering the Streets.—Since the instructions given to the City Council's patrolmen to "go easy," citizens are falling away from grace, and the littering of the streets with tram tickets, pieces of paper, and fruit skins is becoming as bad as ever. The Lord Mayor stated yesterday that if citizens were going to grow careless just because there had been a tendency lately not to strictly enforce the bylaw, then it would have to be put into operation in the most rigid manner. If the citizens themselves failed to cooperate with the council and its officers in keeping the streets free from litter, the council would be compelled to make an example of offenders.

Gold Coinage.—There is one thing the State Treasurer (Mr. Cann) wishes the Commonwealth would take over—the coinage of gold. By an arrangement with the Imperial Government, Mr. Cann says, the Commonwealth has practically taken over the coinage of silver and copper, which is a profitable affair. Gold coinage, however, results in a loss to the State.

Public Service Association.—Some time ago the Public Service Association drafted a bill embodying a superannuation scheme, which it submitted to the Government. The latter passed it on for review to a committee of experts, which in turn submitted another bill for the consideration of the responsible Minister. This amended bill was handed to the Public Service Association, which has gone into it carefully, and now asks for a conference with the Acting Attorney-General and Minister for Justice (Mr. Hall). "The conference will take place on March 7," said Mr. Hall yesterday. "We will invite representatives of the Public School Teachers' Association to send five delegates, with a request that, as a large number of the teachers are ladies, two ladies be nominated."

British Immigration League.—The excellent reports received from the majority of the men who were assisted to come to Australia owing to the patriotism of an anonymous donor, who for the past two years, through the British Immigration League, has advanced £6 per head towards the passage money, has aroused considerable interest. The gift has been the subject of much comment and has been referred to in the House of Commons. The secretary of the Royal Colonial Institute has written to the British Immigration League to ascertain if there is any likelihood of the offer being repeated this year, and whether it can be made applicable to emigrants from all parts of the United Kingdom. The standing emigration committee of the Royal Colonial Institute is a body which brings together, for the consideration of important questions, delegates from all the established and best known emigration societies.

Police Protection at Maroubra.—Mr. Flowers, who is associated with the Premier in the administration of the Chief Secretary's Department, has received a report from police headquarters concerning a sensational story about women and children being molested by a half-caste at Maroubra. The police inquiries do not bear out the story told, and the reports state that no complaints whatever have been made to the police. The officers were unable to find any traces of the half-caste or any women or children who had been attacked or even approached by such a person.

Cockatoo Island.—The action of the State Government in transferring Cockatoo Island to the Commonwealth in consideration of the payment of £870,000 is, in the view of Mr. T. Henley, M.L.A., not a matter for congratulation, but for indignation. He states that the Sutherland Dock alone cost more than this amount, and that the value of the island, with the docks and other improvements, approximates to £2,000,000. Mr. Henley contends that the Government had no right to make this bargain without the sanction of Parliament. If they could hand over Cockatoo Island to the Commonwealth without consulting the people there was nothing to stop them from handing over other territory or the whole of the State. He says, moreover, that he is informed that the transference of Schnapper Island is also contemplated, and that, now that Cockatoo Island has gone, facilities will have to be provided elsewhere for the State engineering work that used to be carried out there.

MR. WADE'S RETURN

A PARTY WELCOME.

PARLIAMENT HOUSE BANQUET.

LIBERAL SOLIDITY.

"Welcome home to our chief." This motto, emblazoned on the wall, crystallised the spirit of a gathering of the Parliamentary Liberal party that entertained the leader of the Opposition, Mr. C. G. Wade, at a banquet in Parliament House last night. The tables were beautifully decorated with flowers and the room with palms.

The chair was occupied by the deputy leader of the Opposition, Mr. W. H. Wood, M.L.A. The following were present:—Dr. Arthur, Messrs. R. T. Ball, W. Brown, A. Bruntnell, A. A. C. Cocks, J. J. Cohen, F. W. A. Downs, J. Fallick, J. C. L. Fitzpatrick, T. Henley, Brinsley Hall, G. C. Huett, D. Levy, E. Lonsdale, W. M'Court, J. M'Farlane, W. Millard, J. Miller, M. F. Morton, T. R. Moxham, Major Nicholson, J. Nobbs, Colonel Onslow, V. Parkes, R. A. Price, W. E. V. Robson, D. Storey, W. Taylor, F. J. Thomas, T. Waddell, W. H. Wood, Hon. J. Garland, A. S. F. James, and C. Oakes.

Apologies for non-attendance were received from the following:—Messrs. D. Fell, G. T. Hindmarsh, W. Latimer, C. A. Lee, and J. Perry.

On making his entry into the room, Mr. Wade was received with a round of cheers and a choral salvo of "For He's a Jolly Good Fellow."

The toast list was a simple one—"The King" and "Our Guest."

A GREAT WELCOME.

There was a spontaneous outburst of cheering when Mr. Wood, in proposing the toast of "Our Guest," said that they were there to welcome their leader and their friend. The cheering was renewed when the deputy-leader announced that Mr. Wade's health was much better. The party, he declared, was the same "going concern" as it was when Mr. Wade left three months ago on his health trip abroad. There was a blending of laughter and cheering when Mr. Wood recalled that no Government had ever had such an unwholesome time as the present Government at the hands of the Opposition recently, and no Government had ever been so glad to get into the shelter of recess.

"During your absence," stated Mr. Wood, "a new party has been born." This allusion to Mr. Beeby's re-election met with some dissenting cries of "No, no," eliciting from Mr. Wood the remark, "My friends may lose sight of the fact that there is the Beeby party; but let us discuss it on its merits."

Concluding his speech, Mr. Wood, addressing Mr. Wade, assured him of their individual and collective loyalty, and said: "We look to you as the personality in New South Wales who must be in the forefront, leading us in all our undertakings."

This was a loyal gathering, said Mr. Wood, though it might be regarded as being of political significance. It was simply a gathering of the friends of a man who were glad to welcome him back. They desired to express their pleasure at the fact that he had returned to them after a three months' trip, and they rejoiced especially at the news that his health was very much better. (Hear, hear.) They were naturally grieved when they had learned that the state of his health necessitated a lengthy trip and long absence from his party duties, and they were particularly pleased to learn that day that he had returned a physically stronger man than when he left. He was pleased to say, as the man who acted in his absence, that the party, individually and collectively, carried out the pledge they made when Mr. Wade left.

Mr. Price: "All solid."

"As a rock," added the member for Orange.

"A GOING CONCERN."

Mr. Wade, he added, would find that the Liberal party, both in Parliament, when the time came for them to meet, and out of Parliament, was the same going concern as it was when he left it. (Hear, hear.) If it could be [illegible] for making some allusions to [illegible] in Mr. Wade's absence, on such an occasion as this—an essentially party gathering—he would like to say he was indebted [illegible] party to the members of the party for the great assistance given to him during the [illegible] in the work they had to do. He [illegible] that as a result of the activity of the members of the party they had been able to give the Government a time in Parliament never previously known in the history of Parliament of recent years. No Government was more ready to take shelter in the harbour of recess than the present. (Hear, hear.)

THIRD PARTY.

The members of the party, continued the member for [illegible], worked, both personally and collectively, loyally in his absence towards the common end of furthering the party's aims. It was true that since Mr. Wade left there had been a development in politics. A new party, known as the Beeby party, had come into existence.

"Why deal with microbes?" queried Mr. Price.

"I am happy to say," proceeded Mr. Wood, "that the present position of politics assures me that whatever that party may come from, and whatever it may do, it will not come from Liberal sources—(cheers)—and will not have the assistance of the Liberal party.

"I think it may be safely said," added Mr. Wood, "that after the experience of the Blayney election the history of that party is practically written." (Hear, hear.)

"It has shown outside Parliament and in the constituencies the solidarity of Liberalism. (Hear, hear.) This is an occasion on which I feel you are not inspired to entering into any lengthy examination of the general political position. We have the Federal elections, the referendum, and the State elections before us. The Government cannot put off the evil day after this year, and we look to Mr. Wade as the personality in New South Wales who must be in the forefront leading us on in our doings in all these undertakings. For that reason we express our personal satisfaction at your presence in our midst. I submit the toast with the greatest respect and assurance. (Loud applause.)"

Mr. Wade's health was honoured with much enthusiasm.

MR. WADE'S SPEECH.

The Liberal leader on arriving received an ovation. He said: "Mr. Wood and friends, I need hardly say that it gives me the greatest pleasure to meet you all here once again, and I need hardly add that I deeply appreciate this undoubted honour that you have conferred upon me by assembling here in these large numbers and drink my health in the cordial [illegible]. (Cheers.) I think I [illegible] myself to [illegible] the bottom of my heart your kindness, and I take it as one further manifestation of the confidence that you have always shown towards me since I have had the honour of leading this party. (Cheers.) I recognise, probably a good deal more clearly than you yourselves do, my own shortcomings, and I make bold to say that no man leading a party and who has any personal feelings of his own can be otherwise than the possessor of shortcomings. (Hear.) But the great merit of our party in the present time is that we are sufficiently broad and liberal in our politics and in our individual frame of mind as to make full allowance for each other's shortcomings, to rally together on all important occasions for the great common purpose, the advancement of the Liberal cause, and the safeguarding and prosperity of the State we love so well. (Applause.)

"FLAG WELL ALOFT."

"I admit I don't feel in the humour to-night for a political speech or a fighting speech for two reasons; first of all, the lack of information with regard to recent events, and, secondly, the more convincing reason, that I feel more or less after my holiday like the boy who has had a long vacation at Christmas and has forgotten all he ever knew, and is disinclined to come back to hard work without preparation. Although the details with regard to recent events are vague and imperfect, I have sufficient material before me to justify me in saying that the flag has been kept well aloft, the cause of the party has been well advanced, and the cohesion is unimpaired. (Cheers.)

"I want to take this semi-public opportunity, which will be possibly the means of a public announcement, of expressing now to Mr. Wood, [illegible] in my behalf, my cordial thanks for the excellent work he has done in carrying on the party campaign and advancing the Liberal cause during my absence. (Prolonged cheering.) I am sure he will not take it in bad part when I say that there were the usual forebodings and prognostications among the knowing ones that Wood could not fill the party, and [illegible] I was absent [illegible] go backward. Well, I [illegible] how ill-founded those statements were. (Cheers.) He has had, in co-operation with you, to deal with a series of developments unprecedented, with a further attempt to humiliate and disconcert the party on this important occasion; and I am sure you will join with me in saying that he has fulfilled his part with the utmost credit to himself and to the benefit of the party. (Cheers.)

"TYRANNY OF A MAJORITY."

"At the same time, while I can with all sincerity indicate that statement and endorse your views, I do not lose sight of the fact that, whatever may be his own merits and qualifications, he could not have achieved success without the loyal and constant co-operation of the party itself. (Applause.) And I want to extend my unlimited measure of thanks to all our friends here to-night for the generous and yeoman service they gave to him during their strenuous times in withstanding the tyranny of a majority, in fighting for the principles of liberty, and in coming out triumphant at the end of last year. (Cheers.) As far as I can make out, during the time I have been here since my return the general opinion is that the party is undivided—(loud cheering)—and if anything, stronger, and the public have learnt from experience that these evanescent attempts to drive a wedge into the cohesion of our party, although they may for the moment captivate the unthinking, in the end only help to point the moral more clearly that in this State under responsible government there can be two, and only two, parties. (Loud cheering.)

BLAYNEY BY-ELECTION.

"I do not regard the result of the Blayney by-election in anything but the most hopeful light. An attempt was made in the contest to divide the party once again, and once more the result has been absolute failure. (Cheers.) I feel convinced that many of those who were carried away with the sentimental idea that there was the nucleus of some new development that was going to bring the country benefit have now realised that the wisest course is to pin their faith to the party that always stands for liberty, freedom, and progress, and not indulge in those vain imaginings, as has been the case in the past, unfortunately. Therefore we may, I think, look to the new year with every confidence and every hope that the very strenuous work of the last two and a half years will meet with its reward. I think I can secure your concurrence in saying that never yet in the history of government has any political party been beset with the same oppression and tyrannical obstruction as that with which we have been faced during our period of opposition. (Cheers.)

NEW SOUTH WALES A BYWORD.

"I hear from people who have been in England that, unfortunately, New South Wales has become a byword for the misuse made by responsible people of the power of Government. At one time the unthinking public were inclined to criticise us adversely, but as time goes on we are able to point the moral that, whatever may be our individual imperfections, on the whole we have worked on the lines that are best for this State, and, partly by our own efforts, and partly by the aberration of principle by our opponents, the time is about to come when Liberals and Liberalism will reap the reward. (Cheers.) We will have before us during the next nine months a period of political activity, and we will have to contend with this undesirable attempt to destroy the States in the early part of the year. We have to face in our own jurisdiction a general election before the year is out.

LABOUR PARTY DISSOLUTION.

"I think that the time is very near now when even those infatuated people who refused to listen to the words of warning at the last general election, when they were told that no individual who had at heart the welfare of the State could do otherwise than follow on the lines of the Liberal policy, now that they had bitter experience and actual proof, will vote for Liberalism. You see in the world's conflicts and the hopeless embitterments of the Political Labour Conference the first step and the first indication of a very early dissolution of that party." (Cheers.)

INTERESTS OF ALL.

"There are lines on which the interests of all sections of the community can be well served and advanced. The public at large, working men and employers, and middle-class men, now realise that the hide-bound disciplines and tyranny of the Labour caucus is not in the interests of individual progress and freedom, and that the sooner it comes to an end the better for New South Wales and its inhabitants. (Loud cheering.) All I say to you, my colleagues and friends, is to keep yourselves up to the collar for the next nine months. With our own strength on the increase, and the regime of the Trades Hall influence on the wane, there can be no doubt, despite the efforts to split our party, and detach members from it, that the great bulk of Liberal opinion is solid, and will show its strength upon polling day. While I thank you for the good work you have done during my absence, and for the unity of purpose you have shown during the whole of this Parliament, I ask you to gird yourselves for one final effort, and I am quite convinced that if we show the same spirit and tenacity of purpose that we have shown ourselves capable of, victory lies in our grasp for the Liberal party, not only in the State of New South Wales, but in the Referendum and the Federal elections." (Loud cheering.)

Mr. Wade concluded by saying that changes in the shipping arrangements had brought him back three weeks earlier than he expected, and he would spend the next three weeks recuperating for the great political battles that had to be fought this year.

The company drank Mr. Wood's health at the proposition of Mr. Wade.

PERSONAL.

The Minister for Customs (Mr. Tudor) left Melbourne yesterday for Sydney, where he will spend a week on official business.

Yesterday the leader of the Opposition (Mr. Cook) spent the day in Melbourne, in consultation with Mr. Deakin and Senator Millen in reference to the arguments to be put forward on behalf of the Liberal party in connection with the Referendum. To-night he will leave for Sydney to keep an appointment to address a meeting at Penrith on Wednesday evening. He will return to Melbourne to take part in the meeting at the Town Hall on February 20, and the following day he will speak at Geelong.

Sir John Gordon, who has completely recovered from his recent illness, is expected in the course of a fortnight to return from Kangaroo Island, where he has been residing for some months. He will resume his judicial work in the opening of the new law term.

Mrs. Cocks, a very old colonist of Victoria, and mother of the Lord Mayor of Sydney, was the recipient of a visit of a somewhat unique character in Melbourne, where she lives, last Friday. Sir James Graham, a former Lord Mayor of Sydney, and Sir Allen Taylor, Lord Mayor for several terms, accompanied by Alderman Cocks, the present Lord Mayor, paid a courtesy call upon her while on a brief visit to the southern capital. Mrs. Cocks is 92 years of age, and beyond suffering from slight deafness, is in full enjoyment of all her faculties.

Mr. W. D. Johnson, Minister for Works in Western Australia, who has been on a visit to New Zealand, which is his birthplace, will arrive from Wellington by the Manuka to-day.

FURTHER TURKISH CHECK.

THE SHIFTING CENTRE.

A GRIM COMMANDER.

"ADRIANOPLE A RUBBISH HEAP."

SOFIA, Feb. 9.

Three columns of Turks advanced from Chatalja, but all were driven back amid much disorder and loss.

Bulgarian aeroplanes are reconnoitring over the Turkish lines at Chatalja.

CONSTANTINOPLE, Feb. 10.

A Turkish airman reconnoitred the Chatalja position yesterday, and reported that the Bulgarians had deceived their opponents by means of clay dummies wearing military caps, and had retired on Chorlu.

This report strengthens the belief that the allies are concentrating against the Dardanelles.

GALLIPOLI OPERATIONS.

SOFIA, Feb. 10.

After a sharp engagement near Bulair, the Bulgarians drove the Turks back on to the Bulair forts.

The Turks later attempted to descend on Charkeui, near the neck of the Gallipoli Peninsula, where the Bulgarians frustrated the landing of 20 shiploads of Turkish troops.

CONSTANTINOPLE, Feb. 10.

The Greek fleet has appeared in the Gulf of Saros.

It is rumoured that Servian troops have been landed somewhere in the gulf in order to join the Bulgarians, who are advancing on Bulair.

The Turks state that their infantry and cavalry are harassing the Bulgarians.

ANOTHER LANDING FRUSTRATED.

SOFIA, Feb. 10.

The Turks lost 50 men in attempting to land at Podima, to the north-east of Istrandja.

ADRIANOPLE.

DETERMINED COMMANDER.

VIENNA, Feb. 10.

The Constantinople correspondent of the "Neue Freie Presse" states that Shukri Pasha, the commandant at Adrianople, sent a wireless message to the Porte when he heard of the contemplated neutralisation of Adrianople as follows:—

"I would sooner sacrifice the last man than surrender one of the strongest fortresses in the world.

"If further resistance is useless I will take care to put the 40,000 Bulgarians living here out of the way.

"I will confide the women and the children to the consuls, will turn my guns on all the Bulgarians, and then convert Adrianople into a gigantic rubbish heap."

SOFIA, Feb. 10.

The inhabitants of Adrianople are fleeing from one quarter of the town to another in their effort to gain shelter from the shells of the besiegers.

ATTACK ON SKUTARI.

CETINJE, Feb. 10.

King Nicholas of Montenegro ordered a general advance on Skutari on Friday, and fierce fighting took place that afternoon and during the next day.

His Majesty, who viewed the action from a hill-top with uncovered head, prayed "May God give victory to my brave people."

The Servian artillery silenced the Muselim battery, which the Montenegrin infantry subsequently stormed and captured.

The Montenegrin guns sank two steamers on Lake Skutari.

General Martinovitch, the Montenegrin commander, reached the wire entanglements in front of the Turkish entrenchments at Tarabosch Hill.

The fighting was resumed along the whole front at sunrise on Sunday morning.

The Montenegrins delivered three assaults against Bardangoli Hill, and there were considerable losses on both sides, but the Turks were not dislodged.

The wounded relate terrible stories, in which they pay a high tribute to the heroic courage of the Turks.

TURKISH LADIES' APPEAL.

CONSTANTINOPLE, Feb. 10.

A committee of prominent Turkish ladies and a section of the Red Crescent Society have circularised the European Sovereigns asking them to "recall the law of Christ in regard to men's lives and women's honour to the shameless hordes who are disguising, under the shadow of the Cross, the ghastliest outrages and assassinations that have been witnessed in Europe in modern times."

ARMY REVOLTS.

MADERO'S CRITICAL PLIGHT.

BATTLE IN THE PLAZA.

MEXICO CITY, Feb. 10.

President Madero is at present fortified, with a strong detachment of regular troops, in the National Palace, while General Felix Diaz, the nephew of the deposed president, with a large majority of the regulars, has virtual control of the capital.

The army revolted to-night, taking possession of the public buildings. The President fought his way to the palace, which he succeeded in defending against the assaults of the revolutionists.

He is now relying on the loyalty of General Blanquet, who has been summoned from Toluca with 1000 soldiers.

The attack on the city started this morning, when General Mondragon and the students of the military school led the rebels to the prison, where they freed General Felix Diaz and General Bernado Reyes, a former Secretary of State for War.

The advancing rebels were then met by President Madero, commanding 1000 police and cadets.

The artillery barracks were captured after a sanguinary battle, which strewed the Plaza with the bodies of men and horses. In all 200 were killed in the engagement, including General Reyes.

This action was followed by the surrender of the regular artillery, and the rebellion of the majority of the Government soldiers.

It was then that the President retired to the palace, but he had to fight three more engagements en route.

General Gregorio Ruiz and five other officers have been executed on the order of the President.

General Diaz now leads the capital troops, and is in possession of the city arsenal and the powder works.

The Government outlook is extremely dark.

The late General Reyes was imprisoned some time ago by the United States for starting a revolution in Texas, and on being released on bail he absconded, and went to Santiago, where he was again imprisoned.

LABOUR.

LORD'S SON AND SYNDICALISM.

REMARKABLE ARTICLE.

LONDON, Feb. 10.

The Hon. W. J. Montagu Armstrong, son of Lord Armstrong, in an article published in a paper in Newcastle, avows himself a syndicalist in the event of the failure of the political weapon.

He says: "We will gradually arrive at a state of society in which there will be no monarchy and no peerage, only government by the fittest."

He asks: "How can a man lead a clean, wholesome life on 18s 6d weekly, and support a family?

"What excuse is there for the coal companies' 40 per cent. dividends, or the Elswick dividends running into double figures?"

PROPOSED POLITICAL FUSION.

LONDON, Feb. 9.

At a conference of representatives of the co-operative and labour movements it was resolved to prepare proposals for their political fusion, and to submit the same to a conference to be held in May.

LANCASHIRE COTTON TRADE.

A conference of the Lancashire cotton trade has referred to the law courts all claims for compensation in respect to injuries sustained by workmen, including a dispute in which payment of compensation has been withheld.

All other outstanding disputes have been settled.

GERMAN EMPEROR.

"GOD IS WITH US."

BERLIN, Feb. 10.

The Emperor unexpectedly addressed a University gathering in connection with the 1813 celebrations at Koenigsberg yesterday. He delivered a fiery panegyric on the German military virtues.

The Prussian renaissance, he declared, was the act of God. The present generation was inclined to be materialistic, and showed less capacity for what was transcendental. The people of to-day might well learn how to get back their fathers' faith.

He concluded with the remark, "God was with the Germans before; he is with them now."

CHINESE FINANCE.

THE LOAN SUPERVISORS.

PEKING, Feb. 10.

The Chinese declare that Sir John Jordan, the British Minister, at first approved of the three Foreign Loan Supervisors on their merits, without regard to nationality, but now he retracts his approval, and supports France and Russia in insisting on the appointment of an Englishman, a Frenchman, and a Russian.

TRIAL OF MOTOR BANDITS.

PARIS, Feb. 9.

The trial of the 20 motor bandits was resumed yesterday.

A bank messenger named Caby identified Dieudonne as the man who attacked him on December 21, 1911.

Dieudonne asserted his innocence.

Judicial proceedings have been instituted against the journal "L'Anarchie" for publishing articles threatening the members of the jury.

WORKHOUSE BURNT.

LONDON, Feb. 10.

The workhouse at Tredegar in Monmouthshire was burnt to the ground last night, but the 400 inmates, who were asleep at the time of the outbreak, all escaped.

Several officials, however, were injured. One of them had to jump from a third-story window, and is now in a critical condition.

MOZAMBIQUE REVOLT.

LISBON, Feb. 10.

A native rebellion, which broke out in Mozambique, has been quelled.

During the fighting 200 natives were killed and 500 wounded. The Portuguese troops lost 25, including one officer.

NAVAL RIVALRY.

BRITAIN AND GERMANY.

THE PROPOSED RATIO.

GERMAN PRESS COMMENTS.

BERLIN, Feb. 10.

The press, to a large extent, accepts the ten-to-sixteen naval margin between Germany and Britain mentioned by Admiral von Tirpitz in the recent debate in the Reichstag.

The "Koelnische Zeitung" declares that the proposed naval agreement is merely a platonic declaration, which is not binding, but yet removes naval rivalry from the category of "delicate questions," and will allow the Governments to proceed with the friendly discussion of other matters.

The Berlin "Post" states that the British Dominion Dreadnoughts must be counted if Germany is to accept the ten-to-sixteen ratio.

"Der Reichbote" says: "It is a mistake to believe we can now disarm. The time is too critical. Great Britain's policy is not steady enough for us to trust her across the road."

The "Taglische Rundschau" considers that Germany would be only sufficiently protected when her proportion was one and a half to one.

The "Schlesische Zeitung" describes Admiral von Tirpitz's statement as "merely a friendly theoretical declaration."

"A SENSELESS SYSTEM."

BERLIN, Feb. 10.

Captain Persius, writing to the "Berliner Tageblatt," says that the declaration is a complete breakaway from the previous standpoint that limitation was impossible. He remarks that it would be suicidal from Great Britain's standpoint to allow the German navy to grow relatively any stronger, and adds that the present senseless system must be ended in no chaffering spirit.

FRENCH COMMENTS.

PARIS, Feb. 10.

The "Temps," commenting on the recent speech of Admiral von Tirpitz, Minister for the Navy, in the Reichstag, when he declared that a proportion of 10 to 16 between the British and German fleets would be acceptable for the next few years, says: "This simply means that Germany is not preparing a new programme—a negative decision which will produce an excellent impression in Great Britain."

The "Figaro" says that the magnificent patriotism of the British colonies in offering battleships abundantly proves that Britain is resolved not to allow herself to be surpassed.

"IF GERMANY WANTS TO."

LONDON, Feb. 10.

The "Daily Mail" states: "If Germany wishes to diminish the naval competition the means is simple. The British programme is based on the programmes of the Triple Alliance, and if these are reduced then the British programme automatically falls."

BRITISH NAVY LEAGUE'S DEMANDS.

LONDON, Feb. 10.

The Navy League insists on the two-keels-to-one standard.

Great Britain, it is contended, is not concerned with Germany alone. A powerful fleet of ten Dreadnoughts should be commissioned in the Mediterranean by the end of 1915.

The League contends that Britain needs to maintain a one-power standard in that sea.

GALE IN BRITAIN.

DOCK GATES BLOWN OPEN.

LONDON, Feb. 9.

A gale has caused much damage on the coast of Northumberland, and numerous shipping casualties are reported.

Serious havoc occurred in Scotland. The wind blew open the gates of Elderslie Docks, Glasgow, and the inrush of water drowned three workmen.

THE MINING CRISIS.

CONFERENCE SITTING.

AWAITING THE RESULT.

NEWCASTLE, Monday.

There is a difference of opinion as to whether the conference promised to the wheelers by the Government will decide more than the starting time for the Burwood wheelers. Their first grievance was in connection with the starting time, but later they brought forward other grievances, which they are expecting to be settled by Judge Scholes on Wednesday.

Although the conference between the owners and miners sat for only three-quarters of an hour to-day, and the only information available to the press was that they had adjourned until Judge Scholes should give his decision in the trouble with the Burwood wheelers, the proprietors have no doubt given the representatives of the miners some promise that has been satisfactory to them, otherwise the miners' representatives would have complained bitterly, especially as they have gone to no end of trouble in preventing stoppages, and getting the miners who had struck work to return. When Mr. Watson was speaking the other day he said that one of the first things they would do at the conference would be to ask the proprietors for their assistance in crushing the new union. Whether or not the assistance was asked to-day is only known to the few that were at the conference. Mr. A. R. Cant, secretary to the proprietors, left for Sydney this afternoon. The decision to be given by Judge Scholes, who is expected in Newcastle on Wednesday, will be awaited with interest by all concerned with mining.

"WILL HAVE TO BE CRUSHED."

WHEELERS AND SHIFTMEN'S UNION.

NEWCASTLE, Monday.

"There will never be peace in the district whilst there are two unions fighting for the betterment of their conditions," said Mr. D. Watson, president of the Miners' Federation, shortly after he had left the conference this afternoon. "If one organisation is not in trouble," he continued, "the other is sure to be. The Wheelers and Shiftmen's Union will have to be crushed. We do not think we will have any difficulty, if we get the assistance of the proprietors. The new union is only blocking the path of progress."

THE MONEY MARKET.

QUEENSLAND'S FORETHOUGHT.

LOANS TO VICTORIA AND SOUTH AUSTRALIA.

BRISBANE, Monday.

Recently the Queensland Government went on the money market for two loans, and also renewed a million loan obtained from the Commonwealth. It was stated at the time that Queensland was not in immediate need of the money raised. The State had simply been guided by advisers, who thought it wise to take advantage of a favourable opportunity for a flotation.

Negotiations have just taken place by which Queensland will make portion of this money available to the States of Victoria and South Australia to tide them over until their own loans are raised. The matter will probably be completed to-morrow, when the proposals will be submitted to the Cabinet.

Mr. Barnes, the Treasurer, stated to-day that the money would be made available to the two States for a term. He would not indicate the conditions, but said they would be short-dated loans.

DOMESTIC TRAGEDY.

UNHAPPY MARRIED LIFE.

MURDER AND SUICIDE.

ADELAIDE, Monday.

A shocking domestic tragedy was enacted shortly after noon to-day at the Prospect-road extension, about three miles from Adelaide.

The first indication in the neighbourhood that anything untoward was happening was the spectacle of a young married woman named Edith Johnson rushing from the front door of her dwelling and crying, "Come quick; come quick. He is murdering the child!" Blood was streaming from wounds in her face, and her dishevelled appearance showed that she had been roughly handled.

It transpired that Frederick George Johnson, aged 29, a carriage trimmer, employed at the Government railway workshops at Islington, had walked home from work during the luncheon hour. He quarrelled with his wife, and made a murderous attack upon her. Apparently having left her for dead on the floor, he seized his little girl, Edna Myra Johnson, and almost severed her head with a razor. Before outside interference could arrive the infuriated man slashed his own throat, and sank dying to the floor.

The Johnsons were married in South Australia in April, 1910, but during a part of their married life they resided in Sydney. They returned to Adelaide in January, 1912, and a few months later some money which the wife had was spent in building a substantial five-roomed house at the Prospect-road extension. They had not been a happy couple, and a constant source of dispute between them was the desire of the husband to get the property transferred from his wife's to his own name. Latterly he had unsuccessfully tried to persuade her to sell the house to enable him to pay his debts with the money.

A few days ago, in a burst of passion, he laid violent hands on her, with the result that Mrs. Johnson consulted a solicitor. This morning a police officer went to the Islington workshops and served Johnson with a summons under the Married Woman's Protection Act, asking him to show cause why he should not be bound over against further maltreatment of his wife. Immediately on receiving the summons, Johnson walked to his home, about a mile away. His wife was there doing the washing, and the little girl was playing in the garden.

It is a pathetic coincidence that the tragedy was committed on the second anniversary of the little girl's birthday.

The builders at work on a new building nearby report that within 15 minutes of Johnson's entering the house, a noise of people running about, and a child screaming, could be heard. Then Mrs. Johnson appeared at the front door with her face covered with blood. Several men then hurried into the house. The child's body was found lying in the passage, and the murderer was in a hopeless condition in the dining-room. He had completely severed his windpipe and jugular vein. He expired about 20 minutes afterwards.

Mrs. Johnson was badly battered about the face, and her nose was broken, but she was not marked by any sharp instrument. Her husband chased her around the dining-room table. When he caught her he tried to choke the life out of her, and then hurled her to the floor. He crushed her face against his foot, and believing her to be dead, turned his attention to the little girl. It was the screams of the child that aroused Mrs. Johnson from her comatose condition, and she ran out in the hope of securing help to save the girl.

Mrs. Johnson, who was taken to her sister's house, which is in the same neighbourhood, is progressing satisfactorily.

"ENCUMBRANCES."

IMMIGRANTS' TROUBLES.

AGENT-GENERAL BLAMED.

The out-of-work immigrant who has come to Sydney with his wife and three children, as mentioned in yesterday's "Herald," is C. Tomlinson.

"Our passages cost us £52," he says, "and we were given to understand at the offices of the Agent-General in Cannon-street that we should have no difficulty in finding employment, the more so as I am a thoroughly competent farm hand, and my wife holds diplomas for cooking. We are both 40 years of age, and quite prepared to undertake any kind of country employment."

After relating his failure to obtain employment, Tomlinson said, "At all places I have been informed that employment awaits myself and wife, provided we can rid ourselves of our encumbrances. Had the Agent-General in London pointed out these difficulties of course I would not have spent £52 to encounter them."

"NOT ASSISTED."

OFFICIAL EXPLANATION.

The Acting Director of the Immigration and Tourist Bureau points out that Tomlinson is not an assisted immigrant, and is precisely the type of settler the State Government officials in London specially warn not to come to New South Wales unless assured of an opening on arrival.

"It appears," it is added, "that the man referred to was a railway servant for the past ten years. The Immigration Bureau places several thousand unassisted immigrants in the course of the year, and a large proportion of them render good service. Naturally, the man who is specially chosen by the officials at home is likely to be more easily placed in suitable employment.

"However, the bureau is in touch with a farmer who, it is hoped, may be able to provide work for the man under notice."

CITY BURGLARY.

CLEVER WORK FOR SMALL PROFIT.

VISIT TO A GEORGE-STREET SHOP.

The premises of Messrs. Nock and Kirby, general storekeepers, George-street, were visited by burglars during Sunday night. The thieves ransacked the building from top to bottom, but the result of their work was small.

They gained an entrance through a window at the rear that opens into Wright's iron yard, and the manner in which they went about this part of the work shows that they were not amateurs, for the pane was removed right out of the frame, without a scratch, and without a finger mark being left. The thieves then made their way to the cash-on-delivery desk, in the search for money, but were disappointed. It is the custom of the firm to lock up all moneys at the end of each day. On realising that there was nothing to be gained there the burglars left a note for the lady clerk, which read: "No money; no good to me, Brownie."

They then proceeded to go through the store, and collected together several heaps of plunder, which they hoped to remove. It had been conveyed from the shelves and cupboards to the window in towels, which were discarded at the last moment. The only spoil that the thieves are known to have got away with is a sample case of watches, valued at £10, but as Mr. Nock explained to a "Herald" representative, it will be impossible to tell for months if any other articles were removed. The thieves left by the window by which they entered, after making a few futile efforts to open the strongroom and safe with some tools from the neighbouring yards.

CRICKET LOSSES.

FINANCING THE AUSTRALIAN TOURS.

MELBOURNE, Monday.

The loss on the Australian Eleven tour in England was over £1250, and the board of control decided that £750 of the loss should be made up by the associations of New South Wales, Victoria, and South Australia, contributing in proportion to profits made by each of the three States on the last tour of English team in Australia. The amounts to be paid by each State are:—New South Wales, £363 3s 9d; Victoria, £322 13s 4d; South Australia, £64 2s 11d.

THIRD EDITION.

SCOTT'S FATE.

A TRAGIC REPORT.

POLE PARTY LOST.

PROFOUND SENSATION IN LONDON.

LONDON, Feb. 10, 2.50 p.m.

The news has been published in London that Captain Scott and his party, who made the final dash for the South Pole, reached their objective on January 18, but perished in a blizzard on the return journey to the base.

The report has caused a profound sensation.

DREDGE FOUNDERS.

AN EXCITING EXPERIENCE.

CREW'S NARROW ESCAPE.

MELBOURNE, Monday.

Thrilling adventures befel the crew of the naval dredge Dandenong, which left Melbourne for Western Port in tow of the tug Racer early on Saturday morning. Before the dredge passed through the heads she began to leak, and in spite of the efforts of the crew to keep her afloat by continuous pumping, the Dandenong filled, and sank at the entrance to Western Port on Saturday evening.

Some time ago the Dandenong, which is a "grab" dredge about 20 years old, was purchased by the naval authorities for the purpose of carrying out preliminary work in connection with the improvement of the harbour at the Western Port naval base. The Dandenong had on board a crew of three able-bodied seamen in charge of Petty-officer Davis. All went well until the vessels passed through the heads at 8.30 a.m.

There was a "lumpy" sea, and from time to time the dredge took seas on board, but no anxiety was felt until it was seen that the vessel was getting lower in the water. The crew then set to work upon the pumps, which were worked by hand. In spite of their efforts the water gained, and at a quarter to 11 o'clock, when off Cape Schanck, the fact that the Dandenong was riding low was noticed by the tugboat's crew. Soon afterwards Petty-officer Davis waved to the Racer, and a boat was lowered and sent to the dredge. It was a difficult matter to approach in the heavy sea, and when it reached the Dandenong the vessel had a pronounced list to port.

The crew had been taking "spell and spell about" at the hand pumps. The stove in the cook's galley was awash; while the men's quarters were filled with water, but the men would not desert their charge while there was a chance of battling through. They worked harder than ever at the pumps, but still the water gained, and the Racer was compelled to tow the dredge at a snail's pace in order that it might not be pulled under. Hour after hour the heartrending struggle went on, and the galley being awash, a meal could not even be prepared.

Early in the afternoon the situation became so serious that the men donned lifebelts, and one continually kept his hand on the painter of the boat, in order that it might be pulled alongside in an instant. On the tugboat it was also known that the dredge was in a sorry plight, and a man was ready to cut the tow rope immediately the Dandenong sank. It was 5 o'clock in the afternoon when the vessels entered Western Port Bay, and it was thought that, perhaps, after all the dredge would reach its destination, but the hope was not fulfilled. When near M'Haffries' Reef, at the lower end of Phillip Island, the Dandenong gave a sudden lurch, and the engine and boiler, which were on deck, rolled over the side, and disappeared.

The dredge appeared to right itself for a moment, but plunged heavily into the next wave. The men rushed for the boat, and before it was alongside the dredge commenced to sink by the stem. Petty-officer Davis, who was the last to leave, had to jump on board, and before the crew had pulled 20 feet from the Dandenong she disappeared. The crew were taken on the tug, and brought back to Melbourne.

The Dandenong was purchased by the Commonwealth Government for £1400.

MORE TRUCKS.

STATEMENT BY MINISTER.

BIG BUILDING PROGRAMME.

The attention of the Treasurer and Minister for Railways (Mr. Cann) was directed yesterday to complaints about a shortage of trucks in the South Coast mines.

Mr. Cann said: "The shortage is largely due to the immense amount of wheat coming to town. We are doing all we can to overcome the shortage by building. We have 625 waggons building at the Clyde works. Ritchie Bros. are under contract to supply 339 waggons, and Tulloch and Co. are building 1360 waggons for us. The sums to be spent before June next are, respectively, £64,621, £32,569, and £166,510. From these figures it will be seen that we are making all the haste we can to increase the supply."

LADY SWIMMERS.

NEW ZEALAND RECORD BEATEN.

WELLINGTON (N.Z.), Monday.

Swimming at Wanganui this afternoon at the New Zealand ladies' swimming championship meeting, Miss A. O'Leary, of Masterton, won the hundred yards race in 1m 24 1-5s—a record for New Zealand.

A PRESS HUNT.

P.L.L. ANNOYANCE.

MR. J. C. WATSON ACTIVE.

ATTEMPT AT CENSORSHIP.

The annual conference of the Political Labour movement of New South Wales was continued last night.

There were indications early in the evening that another movement would be made to exclude the press. Mr. R. D. Meagher, M.L.A., vice-president, was in the chair.

Trouble began early. A lady delegate said she knew all about the press reports and the reporters. She had noticed a reporter attending the conference every night.

The chairman then announced that if any delegate saw any reporter present, and pointed him out, steps would be taken to have the intruder removed.

Mr. J. C. Watson, quietly descending from the platform, walked down the hall, and approaching a pressman, asked him to leave. The same performance was gone through in one or two other instances, and in a few minutes the outer doors of the hall were closed, and a reliable doorkeeper established, to keep the press out.

THE PROCEEDINGS.

Mr. Mahony, of Balmain, said he wanted to explain that he was not the delegate from Balmain, who was reported in that morning's "Herald" to have been ordered out of the conference. The report simply stated, "A delegate from Balmain," and Mr. Mahony wished it to be clearly understood that he had not misconducted himself so as to merit being ejected.

Mr. F. F. Cowdroy, of Willoughby, secured the suspension of the standing orders to move a resolution expressing appreciation of the work done by the State Labour Government.

Permission being granted, and the standing orders suspended, Mr. Cowdroy moved:—

"That this conference views with thanks the able manner in which the present State Government has conducted (1) its finances, this giving the lie to the accusations of incompetency levelled at it, by the investment of the people's money in profit-returning undertakings; (2) the vigorous manner in which it has carried forward its policy of opening up the country by railway construction; (3) its assistance to settlers from the State Bank, and the work done at Burrinjuck; (4) that its approbation is also due for the effective machinery which it has brought into being to fight down the extortions of the brick combine, by the creation of State competing works at Flemington and Botany Bay; (5) that it is not unmindful of the great work done in connection with the better education of our children, both in the cities and the backblocks; (6) the efficient manner in which it has assisted the Empire and the Federal Government in the realisation of an Australian fleet, built in Australian waters, for the protection of the nation's interests, and the safeguarding of our own coasts."

The mover said the reports which had been appearing in the press gave the impression that the conference had been heaping odium upon the State Labour Government. He did not believe that was the intention of conference, and in order to test whether it was so or not he had picked out a number of things, for which he contended the Government deserved the highest commendation, and invited conference to express an opinion upon them.

There was very little discussion and no opposition. The resolution was carried unanimously.

Mr. Bonsfield, a delegate from Bathurst, moved the following resolution which was carried, with very few dissentient votes:—

"That conference desires to call the immediate attention of the Minister for Agriculture to—(1) The gross violation by his department of the spirit of the verdict given by the Court of Arbitration to the Stewards and Caterers' Union in respect to the stewards' award on Government farms, by meeting the advance given of 6s per week with a corresponding rise of 4s for board and lodging, thus compelling the repayment of two-thirds of the said award. (2) The disgraceful wage of 7s 6d per day paid to certain highly skilled men on such farms, without board and lodging, and the urgent need for the department to bring its scale of wages into conformity with the price set down in the platform. (3) The urgent need for a full consideration of the extension of the permanency system existing in other departments to its regular hands upon such farms, whose precarious conditions render them subject to continued threats of dismissal, and their inability to join a building society or build homes of their own."

Mr. J. C. Watson occupied the chair during the latter portion of the sitting.

The following resolutions were carried:—

Amendment to Rule 27.—Any member of the Executive whose nomination or selection is before it shall be suspended from service during consideration of same.

A public defender to be provided for persons charged with a criminal offence.

That the law prohibiting the carrying of firearms on Sundays be repealed.

That in the interests of sound finance, the State Labour party support the amalgamation of the State Savings Banks with the Commonwealth Bank, with reasonable safeguards to the States, by allowing such States to utilise a fair percentage of deposits for developing the country.

Rule 4 (addendum).—That members of a branch who are not bona fide residents in the electorate shall be debarred from holding office or voting upon any subject in the League; but may take part in any discussion.

That this meeting of the Grenfell P.L.L. endorse the action of the State Government in regard to putting Government House to some public use, and conference be asked to endorse same.

The select committee appointed to inquire into the State brickworks reported that it was unable to deal with the matter in time. The report was adopted.

CHINESE IN AUSTRALIA.

ALLEGED BREACHES OF THE ACT.

Hey Jun, 43, a Chinese, was charged at the Central Police Court, before Mr. Payten, S.M., with having, at Melbourne, conspired with Hoy Ling to defeat the provisions of the Immigration Act.

The police asked for a remand, as there were several matters which were being inquired into.

Sergeant Mankey said that the system of smuggling prohibited immigrants had been carried on for some time, and it was expected that other Chinese would be arrested in Melbourne in connection with the alleged breaches of the law. For that reason he asked that their bail should be made very substantial. In fact, he had been asked by the Commonwealth authorities to oppose bail. The accused had everything ready to go to China when he was arrested.

The remand till Friday was granted, and bail fixed at £150.

ARRESTS IN MELBOURNE.

MELBOURNE, Monday.

In connection with the alleged breaches of the Immigration Restriction Act, John Spargo, 50, of the Customs office, Henry Hoy Ling, 35, interpreter, and Hey Poo, 29, dealer, were to-day arrested and charged with having, during 1911 and 1912, at Melbourne, unlawfully conspired with Hey Shing and Kam Fing Mil, of Hongkong, China, and other persons, to procure admission to Australia of Chinese in violation of the Immigration Restriction Act. The arrests were effected by Detectives Coonan, Arthur, and Bannon.

CHEAP FARES AND TENTS.

MANILLA, Monday.

At a combined committee meeting of the F. and S. branches a movement initiated by the Attunga branch to ask the Railway Commissioners to establish cheap fares for families to go to the seaside, where a tent town should be established, was heartily endorsed. One speaker laid emphasis on the fact that Sydney people had the privilege of travelling to the mountains at a cheap rate, and he did not know why residents of the hot, baked districts should not have some consideration shown them. Cheap rates to Newcastle or some other watering places and to the heights of New England should be established.

ACCIDENT AT A COAL CRANE.

NEWCASTLE, Monday.

A serious accident occurred to-day, when Peter Mercer, 21, residing at Wickham, was cleaning the inside of No. 8 hydraulic crane at the Dyke. He slipped, and fell a distance of 15ft, and was conveyed to the hospital, and found to be suffering from severe injuries to the back. Later in the afternoon his condition was reported from the hospital to be serious.

FROM ANTARCTICA

TERRA NOVA RETURNS,

WAS THE POLE REACHED?

CABLING THE NEWS TO LONDON.

WELLINGTON (N.Z.), Monday.

The steamer Terra Nova arrived at Oamaru this morning from Antarctica.

The Terra Nova landed two men, Lieutenant Pennel and Dr. Atkinson.

Mr. Kinsey, the New Zealand agent for the expedition, says he has no information for publication regarding the expedition, or the movements of the Terra Nova.

Christchurch advises that probably nothing further will be heard from the Terra Nova till the arrival of the vessel at Lyttelton to-morrow, all publication rights having been sold to the "Central News," London.

It is surmised, from the bearing of the local agent for the expedition, that Captain Scott reached the pole, and that there has been no death or disaster to mar the success of the undertaking, but he positively refuses to give the slightest information.

At Timaru, on the first north-bound express, a reporter interviewed two men, whose tanned faces suggested outdoor life. They looked like ordinary travellers, except that they wore sea boots.

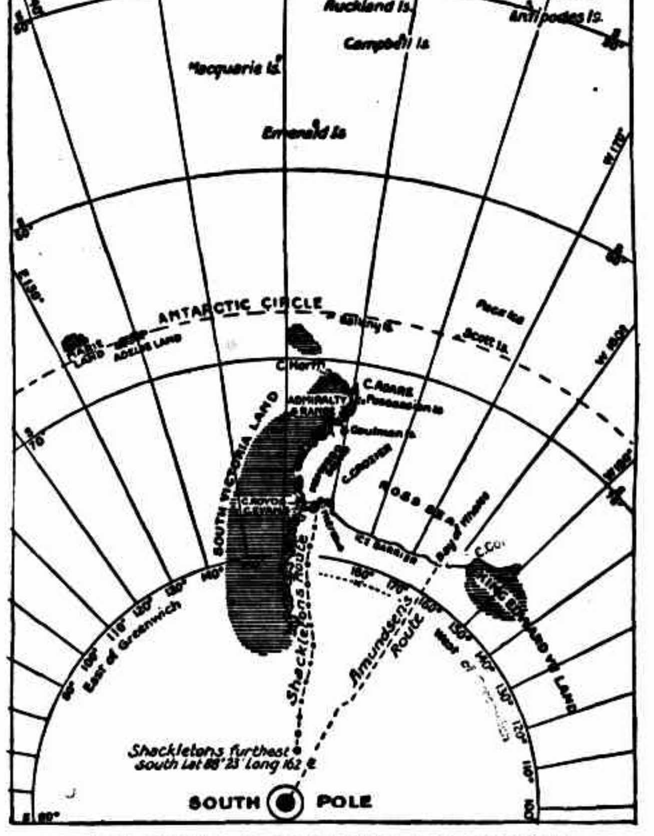
The reporter questioned them, and one replied: "Our orders are to say nothing. We don't mind you asking," he said, "those are your orders. Ours are to say nothing."

He would answer only one question. Asked when New Zealand would get the news of Captain Scott's expedition, he replied: "Twenty-four hours after it is sent to London, as has been the practice in the past."

He refused to answer questions as to the health of the expedition.

Lieutenant Pennel and Dr. Atkinson reached Christchurch to-night, and stated that they would not divulge anything about the expedition until the cable message to the "Central News" had been given a start of 24 hours.

The ship should reach Lyttelton late to-morrow or early on Wednesday, when Captain Scott will give his story.



THE ROUTES OF SHACKLETON AND AMUNDSEN.

PROFESSOR DAVID ADVISED.

Professor David, who was a member of Shackleton's expedition, received a cable message from New Zealand, at his mountain home at Woodford, yesterday, intimating that the Terra Nova had been sighted off Oamura, on her return from Antarctica.

THE EXPEDITION.

STORY OF THE TERRA NOVA.

FASCINATION OF THE SOUTH.

The story of Captain Scott's dash to the South Pole is without doubt one of the most fascinating of all the expeditions which have been despatched to the Antarctic. What is in many ways most important is that it will have been instrumental in gathering the most valuable scientific data that has yet been collected in relation to the Polar regions.

Captain Scott's expedition left New Zealand by the Terra Nova towards the end of November, 1909, and proceeded south on meridian 179 west.

Great heavy pack ice was come across on December 9, in latitude 66. For twenty-one days the Terra Nova fought her way through the 380 miles of pack, which impeded the way into the open waters of Ross Sea. A heavy swell prevented a landing at the Cape, but McMurdo Sound was found to be exceptionally well open. It was therefore decided to establish winter quarters at Cape Evans, a point 14 miles north of Captain Scott's former winter quarters, and eight miles south of Cape Royds.

Having landed men and stores the Terra Nova proceeded eastward along the face of the ice barrier to meridian 170 degrees west. She was forced by a south-westerly gale to Cape Colbeck on February 2. A landing could not there be made, and the vessel returned along the face of the barrier, searching for another landing-place. She did not find one till the Bay of Whales was reached on meridian 164 degrees west.

Here the explorers were amazed to find Captain Amundsen established in winter quarters, with all the necessary equipment for a dash to the Pole.

The Terra Nova returned to the base at Cape Evans to pick up messages left there by Captain Scott. She then was headed northward to Cape Adare, where a base was established by the eastern party of the expedition. Then, leaving Cape Adare behind, the Terra Nova explored the coast line to the east of Cape North, and skirted Balleny Islands. She got clear of the pack ice on the homeward journey on March 8, and set her course for New Zealand.

THE RIVAL EXPEDITIONS.

From the Bay of Whales, where Captain Amundsen established his base, to the South Pole, is about 790 miles. The distance to the Pole from Captain Scott's base at Cape Evans is 860 miles. So that there was a difference of 70 miles in favour of Captain Amundsen.

Captain Scott's expedition was not only national, but imperialistic, in character. Whatever honour came of it he wished to attach to the whole Empire. The personnel represented England, Ireland, Scotland, Australia, Canada, and New Zealand. Most of the seamen were first-class petty officers of the Royal Navy. Some of them had been out to the ice with Captain Scott before; and some of them were with Commander Evans on the Morning when she went to the relief of the Discovery in 1902-3. The expedition was particularly strong in Royal Navy men. In Commander Evans Captain Scott had a very experienced navigator, who was an instructor in the science of navigation in the Royal Navy. Another first-class navigator he had in Lieutenant Pennell, R.N. He was there to undertake most of the magnetic work on the ship, and remained with her after the main expedition had been deposited on the ice with its huts. Other Royal Navy men who went with Captain Scott are Lieutenant Rennick, Lieutenant Bowers, and Lieutenant Riley (chief engineer). Captain Scott also had with him two Royal Navy surgeons, namely, Dr. Atkinson and Dr. Levick.

The two biologists who went with the expedition are Messrs. D. G. Lillie and E. W. Nelson, both Cambridge University men, who had worked at the Plymouth Biological Laboratory. It had also two physicists, Dr. Simpson and Mr. C. C. Wright, the latter of Canada and Cambridge. Two Australians were in the geological section, Mr. T. Griffith Taylor and Mr. Alan Thompson. Mr. Meares, who had spent most of his life in Northern Siberia and Thibet, was, in conjunction with Major Oates, of the Inniskillen Dragoons, in charge of the horses and dogs. The expedition had with it about 20 Manchurian ponies and about 30 dogs from Northern Siberia.

CAPTAIN SCOTT CONSISTENT.

On arrival at the Bay of Whales Captain Scott found that his Norwegian rival was very strong in his transport facilities. He had with him 116 Greenland dogs, heavier and more powerful animals than Captain Scott's dogs. They weighed each about 60lb to 70lb, as against the 40lb to 50lb average weight of the Siberian dogs. The 116 Greenland dogs were capable of pulling six tons, whereas the combined strengths of the 8 ponies and 30 dogs of Captain Scott's expedition were capable of pulling only about four tons.

In making for the Bay of Whales Captain Scott was consistent with his original plans. When in Sydney he stated that if it were found impracticable to get ashore at King Edward VII. Land he would make for an indent far east in the cliff of the Great Barrier, and called by Shackleton the Bay of Whales. Captain Scott's surprise upon it being reported that Captain Amundsen was already there in the famous old Fram may be imagined when it is known that he had not the least idea that an Antarctic expedition from any other country was contemplated. On the other hand, Captain Scott had publicly stated in England and Australia what his own objective was.

Captain Scott's original idea was to put down the main party of 24 at M'Murdo Sound. A smaller party of six was then to go 500 miles to the east, to King Edward VII. Land, and there engage in geological observations. The latter part of the original programme, which has been pretty well adhered to, was for the ship to go back, take a biologist with her, and do biological work on the way home, running to the westward of Cape North (South Victoria Land). Captain Amundsen, it will be seen, had the advantage of starting from a base which Captain Scott had selected and publicly announced.

THE SEARCH FOR GOLD.

Although Captain Scott's main object was to reach the Pole, he kept scientific and commercial possibilities well in view. Two parties were to make respectively for Victoria Land and the Beardmore Glacier, the latter being about half-way to the Pole. The Beardmore Glacier party was to search for gold and prospect for other minerals. Mr. J. Alan Thompson, one of the geological staff, believed strongly in the possibility of gold being found. When in Sydney he said that the formation of the country thereabout much resembled Alaska, with the difference, of course, that no vegetation of any kind grew. The country in which the geological party took up its quarters was a land of rocks and snow and ice. In the event of gold being found in commercial quantities Mr. Thompson expressed the opinion that there would be no insuperable difficulties about settlement. All provisions would, of course, have to be got from overseas. But there are two good ports in Ross Sea where provisions could be taken in, and from which gold could be exported. The two ports are Granite Harbour and Evans's Cove.

Captain Scott hoped to profit much by the experiences of Sir Ernest Shackleton. The latter had shown that brilliant results could be achieved by pony traction on the Barrier surface. But he had also shown their unsuitability for work on glaciers. He judged that dogs, if not overweighted, could be used for glacier work, and travel the whole distance to the Pole if carefully handled. Judging by Captain Amundsen's strong supply of dogs, he was of the same opinion.

SCOTT'S MAIN OBJECT.

"Our main object," said Scott in Sydney on the eve of his departure, in October, 1910, "is to get to the Pole, and for that purpose the equipment is of unprecedented dimensions. The main requirement is good transport arrangements, and for the transport on this occasion we have 19 ponies, 35 dogs, and three motor sledges. The ponies and dogs have been obtained from North-east Siberia, beyond the Amur River, where the climate is exceedingly severe. These animals are, therefore, used to conditions as bad as they will encounter in the south."

MOTOR SLEDGES.

The motor sledge used by Captain Scott was a new departure. He said that it might not prove wholly successful, but was in great hopes that it would. It was taken as the result of experiments which Captain Scott had been carrying on for several years. He built four sledges, each being an improvement on the last, and the trials were conducted in the Alps and in Norway over two successive years. They had a four-cylinder Wolseley engine, with certain modifications to suit the climate, driving two wheels resting on endless bands. The bands were broad enough to support the weight of the sledge, and were made of steel chains with flat patterns. The petrol for the sledges was shipped from Melbourne—1600 gallons. It was estimated that the sledges would drag as much as 4500lb. The ponies were to be used in the same way as before. Each pony was to have its own sledge, and would drag about 800lb. All told there were sixty sledges. The dogs were to be run in teams of ten, with one or two sledges to each team.

SCOTT'S PLANS.

AS TOLD BY HIMSELF.

THE DASH FOR THE POLE.

Captain Scott explained the dash for the Pole in an article outlining his plans contributed to the "Geographical Magazine," that during the winter preparations would be made for the dash to the Pole.

"By that time," he wrote, "we shall know what reliance can be placed respectively on the ponies, the dogs, and the motor sledges. But in any case a large party of men will be detailed for the southern party. Some of the scientific staff will remain at the wintering station throughout the summer. A small party will act independently in the western mountains for geological purposes; but at least sixteen, and possibly more, men will acompany the main transport agents on the road to the south. I may pause here to give my opinion on the conditions and prospects of the southern journey. We know now that the first phase of that journey must be over the plateau of the Great Barrier, the second a climb through mountain passes, and the third a transverse of a lofty inland plain. It is only possible, certainly not probable, that any means of transport can be taken beyond the first phase. If it is impossible, then we shall have, as had Sir Ernest Shackleton, to make all further advance with the unaided efforts of men alone. Shackleton's party started on the second phase with full loads, and achieved what is probably the maximum that could be accomplished under such circumstances. The only manner in which such a record could be beaten is by taking a larger party of men and sending sections of them back at intervals. This is, of course, a well-known expedient in polar work.

"The excessive winter cold of the Great Ice Barrier does not seem to commence to pass away until the month of September, and conditions of travelling remain comparatively severe even in October. For this reason, perhaps more on account of the animals than the men, I do not propose to start upon the southern journey until the month of October. That month and the following will be spent traversing the Barrier and ascending the glacier. I should hope to reach the upper plateau fairly early in December. An ideal day for reaching the South Pole would be the 22nd of that month, when the sun achieves its maximum altitude. Special 4-inch theodolites have been constructed for the expedition. With such instruments and the sun at an altitude of 23 deg., there is no doubt that the position of the pole could be determined with an accuracy of 1 mile, and it is interesting to consider a situation where the sun could be followed by the telescope of the instruments for 24 hours without any perceptible difference in its altitude. Such is the main outline of my plan for reaching the South Pole. I will turn now to give you some idea of the men who will help forward these plans. Time does not permit me to do more than briefly note their names and the work that will be entrusted to them."

"FROM WINTER QUARTERS."

In a letter sent by Captain Scott from winter quarters to the Federal Attorney-General on October 21, 1911, he spoke hopefully and cheerfully of his prospects. It is of special interest, as he was to leave on the following day on his journey to the south, and he wrote of it as undertaken "with great hope of accomplishing our purpose and reaching the Pole. But as it must necessarily be a big job, it is more than possible that I shall not be back in time to meet the Terra Nova. . . . It is impossible to be more than hopeful that we shall pull through all right; but what I am sure you will believe is that we shall do our very best to deserve the confidence that has been reposed in us. As chief of the expedition, I can go further, and state that if failure comes it will not be the fault of my companions. A better set of people never joined an expedition. One and all are fit, healthy, and eager to go forward."

A HAPPY FAMILY.

Captain Scott then referred to the harmonious relations which existed amongst the party, and he specially praised the two Australian members of the expedition.

"The best we can" was the way in which Captain Scott described the spirit which animated the exploring party. "It is too early to talk of success," he said; "that is in the lap of the future; but I think Professor David will be exceedingly pleased with the progress we have already made towards the solution of the scientific problems. In the end we shall have a mass of material which will well repay all outlay on the expedition, judged by scientific standards; but you, as a practical politician, and I, as a practical explorer, can scarcely be contented with that, and I hope that we shall both have cause to rejoice at something which appeals more largely to the sentiment of our race. I make bold to include you, as I know you are in sympathy with our work. Well, we shall do the best we can, in spite of such setbacks as we suffered last season in the loss of some of our best ponies. Those that remain now ought to carry us through as far as ponies can be used, and for the rest, we must rely on our own thews and sinews."

LAST TO SEE SCOTT.

COMMANDER EVANS'S HEROISM.

Commander E. R. G. R. Evans, R.N., who was second in command of the expedition, and had the distinction of being the youngest officer of his rank in the British Navy (being less than 30 years of age when he accompanied the expedition), was obliged to return to New Zealand on account of a severe attack of scurvy. He left his chief on January 3, 1912, in latitude 87 degrees 35 minutes (which is 145 geographical miles from the Pole), and arrived in New Zealand in the Terra Nova in March. The arrangement was that Commander Evans, accompanied by Lieutenants Pennell, Rennick, and Bruce, should pick up Scott and his companions about the end of January this year. Commander Evans accompanied Scott on his southern journey, and was in charge of the final supporting party for Scott's dash to the Pole. He was then the last man to see Scott, and during his visit to Sydney in May, 1912, he gave an account of the state of the party when he left them.

NO OBSTACLES TO THE POLE.

"Captain Scott and the four men with him," said Commander Evans, "were in perfect health when I left them on January 3, and I haven't any doubt whatever that they got to the Pole all right. When I bade them farewell, and I was the last to see them, they were only 145 miles from the Pole, and had more than sufficient provisions to take them there and back to the depot, established in latitude 87 deg. south. There were, as far as I am aware, no obstacles such as crevasses in the path, the most difficult part of the journey having already been accomplished. From the depot to the winter quarters at Cape Evans they ought, travelling with skis, to have covered 15 miles a day easily; and this would get them there about March 10. I have no doubt they are all there as snug as possible now."

The Terra Nova had, he mentioned, just missed picking up Captain Scott and the southern party. The M'Murdo Straits were blocked with heavy pack-ice, through which the ship had had to force her way for some hundreds of miles. Lieutenant Pennell, who was in command of the Terra Nova, remained in the Straits until the ice conditions made it imperative for him to leave, lest the ship should be detained for the winter, which was highly undesirable, as she was not equipped for a winter season.

A BRAVE ACTION.

Captain Scott deputed Commander Evans—he was then a lieutenant—to take back the final party short-handed to the base, the leader having taken one of the men to strengthen his own party in order to make the attainment of the Pole more certain. When about 300 miles from the expedition's base at Cape Evans, the young commander was found to be suffering from scurvy, and his condition rapidly became worse until he was quite unable to travel, and but for the gallantry of his two companions—Chief-stoker Lashley, R.N., and Petty-officer T. Crean—he could never have reached the base alive. These brave fellows dragged the officer for 40 miles on the sledge, travelling at the rate of 10 miles a day, which necessitated most strenuous efforts on their part. On February 18 they reached the depot known as Corner Camp, and owing to the heavy fall of snow during the night they were unable to move their sick companion on the sledge next day.

A DESPERATE SITUATION.

The situation became desperate. There was only food for two or three days, and to remain much longer was to perish. Crean set out without warm food on a journey of 34 miles to the old Discovery hut, where telephonic communication had been established with Cape Evans. Crean had a most trying experience, and when eventually he reached his goal he was thoroughly exhausted. Luckily Surgeon E. L. Atkinson, R.N., was found at Hut Point, together with the Russian dog-driver Demetri and two dog teams. When Crean had sufficiently recovered he was able to explain the plight of the party, but a blizzard having set in almost simultaneously the dogs were unable to set out till the weather had cleared. Commander Evans's camp was reached on February 20, and after a short rest Surgeon Atkinson and Demetri, taking Commander Evans on one sledge and Lashley on the other, brought them back safely to Hut Point.

LEADER OF THE ANTARCTIC EXPEDITION.

CAPTAIN R. F. SCOTT, C.V.O., R.N.

A JOURNEY OF 1500 MILES.

After 10 days at Hut Point the Terra Nova arrived, and Commander Evans was carried aboard. During the voyage up to New Zealand he picked up, and had almost recovered when he arrived in Sydney in May, 1912. Lieutenant Evans' southern journey extended over 1500 miles. He pioneered the way, and built cairns approximately four miles apart to mark the return journey, he and his party hauling sledges over the whole distance, this feat being unparalleled in Polar exploration. He was out in the open longer than any of the other members of the expedition, living on sledging rations for nearly six months. He attributed his attack of scurvy to the fact that he subsisted all that time on a diet consisting almost wholly of pemmican.

A LONG SLEDGE JOURNEY.

Commander Evans spoke of Captain Scott's probable plans last year as follows:—

"He will probably begin a long sledge journey in the early part of October next, covering ground from the foot of the Beardmore Glacier in a south-easterly direction. Fortunately, as far as I know, he has eight specially-trained mules and four dog teams. The Terra Nova having taken down a fresh supply of pemmican and sledging provisions, together with additional sledges and equipment, Captain Scott will be able to make a very extensive expedition, surveying new land, and, I hope, reaping a harvest of geographical knowledge."

Commander Evans stated that he felt confident Captain Scott would have reached the Pole on January 14 or 15, 1912—that was about 10 days after he left him. Valuable magnetic, meteorological, and geological results had been obtained, besides accurate surveys. The southern journey was, he pointed out, only one of many expeditions made. At the same time that the southern journey was being carried out Mr. Griffith Taylor, the Commonwealth physiographer, accompanied by Mr. Debenham, geologist of the Sydney University, was exploring on the north-west, and Lieutenant Campbell's party was engaged in the vicinity of Cape Adare.

A SAD EXPERIENCE.

Professor David described Commander Evans as "a man of splendid physique," and the dangerous attack of scurvy from which he suffered was therefore "one of the saddest experiences of any member of the expedition." "His heroism," said the Professor, "has been shown conspicuously on previous expeditions, but never more so than on the occasion of his long and painful return journey to Discovery Hut, near Mount Erebus, after saying good-bye to his leader. It was Lieutenant Evans who first conceived the idea of organising this present Antarctic expedition. Later Captain Scott joined forces with him, and it was arranged and thoroughly understood that Lieutenant Evans was to be one of the final party chosen for the last dash to the South Pole. The fact that Captain Scott had to bring himself to send Lieutenant Evans back when so close to the wished-for goal shows clearly that the lieutenant must already have shown signs of weakening through the approach of the terrible illness which later struck him down and completely incapacitated him."

On Scott's previous expedition the party that made the furthest south record at the time, consisting of Captain Scott, Dr. A. E. Wilson (with Scott on his final dash south), and Sir Ernest Shackleton, were all seriously attacked by scurvy.

THE TERRA NOVA.

Captain Scott's ship, the Terra Nova, was transformed from a comfortless Dundee whaler into a model yacht. The small wardroom, which was formerly capable of accommodating only six men, was enlarged, so as to hold four times that number, and the crew space so improved as to accommodate all the men in comfort. Magazines for acetylene and petrol, a photographic dark-room, and four laboratories for the use of the physicists, biologists and zoologists were provided, but the chief new feature was a cold storage-chamber. Stores for three years were taken out, and all provisions were packed in specially devised veneer cases, which was very strong and light. The oak hull of the vessel is two feet thick, and she was undoubtedly the most efficiently equipped ship that ever sailed for Antarctic or Arctic seas. Five lieutenants of the Royal Navy are included in the officers, and the two medical officers—Dr. Levick and Dr. Atkinson—are also Navy men.

AMUNDSEN'S VICTORY.

THE POLE AT LAST.

A MAGNIFICENT ACHIEVEMENT.

"The Pole attained December 14-17."

This was the epochal message cabled from New Zealand to King Haakon of Norway by Captain Amundsen, early in March, 1912.

It was not a very long, nor a very grandiloquent message, but it summed up in one line the story of the most successful Polar expedition ever undertaken.

The story of Captain Amundsen's great achievement is one of the most interesting in the annals of Polar research. It is so recent an event that the story is still fresh in our memory. Sydney citizens have also had the privilege of hearing the intrepid explorer tell his own narrative. But with the news of Captain Scott's return, comes a new interest in the exploit of the Norwegian, for the rival exploring parties met in Antarctica. True, the historic meeting lost something in the absence of the principals, Scott and Amundsen, but Lieutenant Pennell chronicles the meeting of the Britishers and Norwegians in the following words:—

"On February 3 the ship was in the vicinity of Balloon Bight, which had, however, become merged in the Bay of Whales. As the Terra Nova rounded the point the ship's company was astonished to see a ship, which proved to be the Fram. She was alongside fast sea ice. The Terra Nova went alongside her, and Lieutenant Campbell went on board the Norwegian ship. There was only a lieutenant and a ship-keeper aboard, and Lieutenant Campbell was informed that Captain Amundsen would be at the ship the next morning. Amundsen asked them to breakfast at his hut, which was about two miles from where the Fram was moored. There were eight men, in addition to Amundsen, at the hut, and this is the party that will attempt to reach the Pole. The hut, though small, is very comfortable. The members of the Norwegian expedition speak English."

AMUNDSEN'S PLANS.

Curiously enough, Captain Amundsen came very suddenly to the decision which led to the successful dash for the pole. The world received with astonishment the message from Madeira that he had changed all his plans. He wrote to Norway to the following effect:—

"From Madeira the Fram goes to the Antarctic to compete in the race for the South Pole. This will, as a matter of course, seem to many people at the first view to deviate all through from my first plans, but this is not so. It is only an enlargement of the plan and scope of the expedition, and not at all an alteration, and it is a necessary enlargement of the plans in order to get the wanted money. When Dr. Cook and Commander Peary returned bringing the news that they had been at the North Pole, I fully understood that it would be quite impossible for me to get the money for my undertaking.

"When I published my plan the North Pole had not been reached, and the possibility that the third Fram expedition, in spite of its scientific aims, could reach this geographical spot, which for centuries has been the object for competition amongst the nations, would be an incentive to many people to give financial, as well as material, assistance; but by the news that the North Pole had been reached, I at once understood that the necessary money could not be got in the ordinary way. Something had to be done which would attract the public interest. I had not very much to choose. When the North Pole had been reached only one problem was left which could awaken the public interest, and that was the South Pole. Thus I resolved to enlarge the plan, and take part in the siege of the South Pole."

And the success of Amundsen's new plans bears testimony to his wonderful powers of organisation. His story of the southern dash is told in simple and unaffected style:—

"Between February 10 and April 11 we established depots. The surface of the Barrier was smooth, and well adapted to dog-driving. The weather was excellent.

"On September 8 the journey south was commenced, but we were forced to return owing to the continuous fall of the temperature. Several of the dogs died.

"In the middle of October a party of five with four sledges and 52 dogs, and with four months' provisions started south, erecting cairns at intervals to serve as guides on the return journey.

"Everything went like a dance. We covered 50 kilometres daily, establishing depots at every degree."

Then comes a story of detours to avoid crevasses, of hard climbing over the glaciers, until reaching the plateau 10,600ft above the sea they were compelled to kill 24 dogs, retaining 18 for the final dash. Then came the descent of the Devil's Glacier, until on the afternoon of December 14 they sighted their goal. The narrative continues:—

"There was a beautiful light south-east breeze blowing, and the temperature was 23 degrees below zero (centigrade), and the ground under foot was perfect. At 3 o'clock all had gathered round a silken flag on the vast plain, which was alike in all directions for mile after mile. For three days we took a series of careful observations of the position of the Pole, as close as it was humanly possible with a sextant and artificial horizon. We erected a little tent on the precise spot, and surmounted it with the Norwegian flag and the Fram's pennant. We then named the place Polheim."

SHACKLETON'S FURTHEST.

A GREAT ACHIEVEMENT.

When Ernest Shackleton left Sydney for the heart of the Antarctic he voiced a very patent truism: "There is one great prize that can never be rewon, and that is the South Pole."

And since the winning of the South Pole could be only once accomplished, he made up his mind that if it were possible he would achieve it. He laid his plans carefully, selected his comrades wisely. The Nimrod left the East India Docks on July 30, 1907, on her 17,000-mile journey to the great ice barrier. The party landed, and wintered in M'Murdo Sound. In the summer of 1908 the final dash for the Pole was made. Further and further south the intrepid explorers went in the face of great hardships and perils, and though they failed in their grand objective, they achieved the distinction of getting nearer to the Pole than any previous expedition. The expedition, in its various stages, included, besides Sir Ernest (then Lieutenant) Shackleton, who commanded, Professor David, of Sydney; Dr. Eric Marshall, the senior surgeon of the shore party and the cartographer of the trip, Lieutenant Adams, R.N.R., who was in charge of the meteorological work; Sir Philip Brocklehurst, who has had great experience in survey work and field geology, and Ernest Joyce, lately first-class petty officer in the British Navy, who did excellent work on the Discovery expedition, and was in charge of the dogs and sledges.

The account of the expedition telegraphed to the London "Daily Mail" by Sir Ernest Shackleton himself was as follows:—"The most southerly point reached in our Antarctic expedition was latitude 88 degrees 23 minutes, longitude east 62 degrees, a distance of 111 miles from the Pole itself. The journey was very difficult. After crossing several mountains, we reached a plateau 10,000ft high. Several new mountain ranges were discovered. The distance travelled was 1708 statute miles, and the time occupied 126 days. In all more than 100 new mountain peaks were discovered. Both equipment and food supplies proved very satisfactory. The Manchurian ponies did as well as was expected. We all felt the hardships of the journey very severely. Good geological discoveries were made, and important sledge journeys were undertaken west and north. The south magnetic pole was reached in latitude 72 degrees 25 minutes, longitude 154 degrees. J. K. Davis (first mate) Forbes Mackay (assistant surgeon), and Marson made north westerly sledge journeys lasting 22 days, and covering a distance of 124 statute miles. The winter was mild, and the lowest temperature they encountered was 40 degrees below zero, Fahrenheit. The geological results of the expedition are as important as the zoological. Mount Erebus, the southernmost volcano in the world, 13,200ft high, was ascended for the first time. The geographical South Pole is doubtless situated on a plateau 10,000ft to 11,000ft above sea level. Violent blizzards in latitude 88 degrees show that if the polar calm exists, it must be small in area or not coincident with the geographic pole."

Professor David added:—"The party reached the magnetic pole, 260 statute miles north-west of the Drygalski depot, on January 16, and hoisted the Union Jack. The position of the pole was determined by Marson with a Lloydcreak dip circle as in the vicinity of latitude 72 degrees 25 minutes, longitude 154 degrees east. The party, returning, travelled from 16 to 20 miles daily. About 122 days were taken up in the journey. Including relays, however, the party travelled 1260 statute miles."

Mr. Henry Chaplin, M.P., refuses to acquiesce in the Unionist decision as to the postponement of the preference issue. SHIPPING MISHAPS.

WYRALLAH STRIKES ROCKS.

MELBOURNE, Monday.

With a full load of coal on board from Newcastle, the steamer Wyrallah, of 302 tons, while navigating the lake's entrance at half-past one o'clock this morning at slack water, in a calm sea, apparently struck some rocks off the eastern pier. The vessel was run on a shallow bank to prevent her sinking. Her forehold is full of water. A diver, who was sent down to make an inspection of her bottom, found that a plate had been sprung on the starboard bow directly below the forehold. The coal will be lightered, and an attempt made to temporarily patch up the hole. It is expected that it will be several days before the vessel will be floated off.

INNAMINCKA LEAVING FOR CAIRNS.

BRISBANE, Monday.

The Marine Board to-day decided that if the Innamincka is made safe they will allow her to proceed to Townsville. The vessel will be inspected at that port, and the shipping inspector will hold a preliminary inquiry.

Mr. E. B. Wareham, the Adelaide Company's inspector, stated to-day that the Innamincka will leave Cairns to-morrow or Wednesday morning for Sydney, via Townsville.

THE MISSING SCHOONER.

BRISBANE, Monday.

The master of steamer John Douglas, which has for the past week been engaged in searching for traces of the missing schooner Dancing Wave, has advised the Marine Board that the search has been unsuccessful.

LAUNCH WASHED ASHORE.

The lighthouse keeper at Barranjoey yesterday telegraphed to the Department of Navigation that a small motor launch had been washed ashore on Lobster Beach, which is situated on the coast, about a mile and a half to the north of the entrance of Brisbane Water. The little vessel has not sustained much damage, and was lying bottom upwards on the sand. She had apparently been carried ashore by the waves after having been capsized.

The gravest fears are entertained for the safety of her occupants, whom it is thought must have been drowned when the vessel was capsized, as there are no traces of their having reached the shore. A further search will be made in the vicinity to-day with a view to establishing the identity of the launch and the fate of her occupants.

The Department of Navigation received a telegram from Newcastle to the effect that a motor launch owned by Mr. Limeburner, of Newcastle, left the port for Sydney on Sunday. As the vessel in question has not yet put in an appearance at Sydney, it is thought that the wrecked vessel is in all probability identical with the launch in question.

SWIMMING CHAMPIONSHIPS.

HOBART, Monday.

To-day the preliminary heats of the 200 yards Australasian swimming championship were decided in the Sandy Bay Baths, and resulted as follows:—

First heat: Stedman (Vic.), 1; G. Page (N.S.W.), 2; H. Moon (S.A.), 3. Other starters: C. M. Mills (Tas.), F. Schryver (W.A.). It was a splendid finish between the first and second men. C. M. Mills, of Launceston, made a bold bid for third place. He led Moon throughout, but at the finish his condition gave out. Time, 2m 25 2-5s.

Second heat: W. Longworth (N.S.W.), 1; E. Wickham (N.S.W.), 2; C. Graham (Qld.), 3. Other starters: L. Johnston (S.A.), J. Springfield (Qld.). Longworth seemed to have a bit in hand at the finish. Time, 2m 27 4-5s. The final will be decided on Wednesday night. Page and Stedman have been swimming [illegible] and consider their chances are very good.

THE SCULLING MATCH.

FAREWELL TO PEARCE.

A COMPLIMENTARY GATHERING.

Harry Pearce, who leaves for London by the Gothic on Friday, to measure blades with the champion sculler of the world, Ernest Barry, on the Thames in July, was overwhelmed with good wishes at a complimentary gathering held at Baumann's Cafe last night. About 100 ladies and gentlemen were present. Mr. A. E. Nash (chairman of the N.S.W. Rowing Association) presided.

The chairman said he fully believed in their guest as a worthy representative of the State to bid for the title on the Thames. Besides being a great sculler, he was a man of the highest honour and integrity, and one who was a thorough sportsman. His career in the past had been magnificent, and they knew their guest would uphold the dignity of genuine sport and the honour of Australia, no matter what was the result of the race on the Thames. He was glad to say that the committee who had undertaken Pearce's case had won out—they had gathered enough money to finance the expedition. They were all the more pleased because he felt confident they were sending a man to the old country after the lost laurels who would put up a great fight. (Cheers.) They wanted to see this championship brought back to Australia, and they believed the very best man available at present was commissioned to undertake the task against Barry.

Mr. W. Beach (ex-champion of the world) gave the toast of the guest. He was sure it was gratifying and inspiring to Harry Pearce to see such a large and influential gathering. Personally, he had travelled 50 miles to be present. They were despatching on this mission to the old country one of their greatest scullers. They had watched Pearce's career with pride and interest, and he did not think that there was anyone who would not wish him the very best luck. He had great confidence that Pearce was the man for the task. (Applause.)

Mr. John Spencer felt confident that Harry Pearce would give a good account of himself, as he was aware that he was a very much improved man, both in style and stamina. He was satisfied he would succeed in lowering the colours of Barry. (Applause.) He thought there had been a great deal of unfair criticism in the press with regard to Pearce and the Australian championship—much that was quite uncalled for. This made the task of the committee in raising money all the harder, but he was glad to know that they had succeeded. He was satisfied that Pearce would give Barry the race of his life. One thing they were glad to know, and that was that Pearce would not be troubled about lack of funds. (Cheers.)

Mr. N. J. M'Donald praised the tone of Australian sport. It was as clean in professional circles as in those of the amateurs. In Pearce they had a manly, straightforward, capable exponent of the art of sculling.

Mr. George Towns (another ex-champion sculler) wished Pearce every success in his venture.

Mr. Neil Matterson (once the holder of the English title) said he was glad to be back in Australia, after spending many years in South Africa. Some people had said that the Thames course would be against the Australian, but he did not think so. It was one of the finest courses in the world. (Cheers.)

Messrs. John Blackman, G. Williamson, G. Blair, J. Macgregor, C. Johnson, J. Scott, R. Coombes, and others also spoke.

Harry Pearce received a great ovation when he rose to respond. He would go to England, he said, with the greatest confidence that he would prove victorious. They could rely that he would try his best to be fit and well, and, if in form, he had no doubt about the result. (Applause.)

Pearce will be accompanied by Mr. Archie Priddle. He will take with him two boats—both built by George Towns. One is the shell in which he met Arnst, and the other is one presented by the "Referee."

POLICE METHODS.

STATEMENTS FROM PERSONS IN CUSTODY.

WELLINGTON (N.Z.), Monday.

Considerable discussion took place in the Supreme Court, Wellington, on a charge of theft against three youths as to the methods of the police in obtaining statements from persons in custody. Judge Chapman said that in New Zealand the jury was always left to judge of the value of such statements. The jury added to the verdict a rider expressing the opinion that in dealing with suspects it was desirable, when any person was asked to make a statement to the police, that such statement should only be made in the presence of a justice of the peace or a relative, and attested by such person, with the object of preventing any suspicion of unfair methods being adopted by the police.

FEDERAL ELECTIONS.

SINGLETON, Monday.

The opening shot in the Federal election campaign was fired here on Friday night, when a meeting was addressed by Mr. W. J. Johnson, M.P., for Robertson. He dealt with the effects which the Federal land tax had had in bringing land within reach of the people, claiming that, as its result, revenue had been got and closer settlement had been brought about. Concerning the Federal note issue, he said that for every note that was now in circulation a sovereign had been received at the Federal Treasury. With the sovereigns the private institutions received, they did business for the benefit of their shareholders; but the Commonwealth did business for the benefit of the whole of the people of Australia. He claimed that the maternity allowance had been justified, which was proved by the fact that over 90 per cent. of the mothers had applied for it.

FATAL SMASH.

BRIDE-ELECT KILLED.

MELBOURNE, Monday.

A youth named Joseph Franzini took his sister Victoria, and his cousin Josephine Cadusch, for a drive at Kerang on Sunday. The winkers became disarranged, and Franzini alighted to adjust them, when the horse bolted and knocked him down, and eventually crashed into a tree. The two ladies were thrown out of the buggy, and Miss Cadusch was fatally injured. Miss Franzini and her brother suffered severely from shock. Deceased was to have been married in about two months.

DROVER, HORSE, AND COW.

BATHURST, Monday.

While Stephen Croaker was unloading cattle at the railway yards on Saturday night he met with a serious accident. A cow broke away and started up the line. Croaker galloped after it, but his horse slipped on a sleeper, with the result that both the animal and its rider came down and were injured. The horse, it is thought, will have to be destroyed.

The cow was run over by an engine and killed.

A PROHIBITED IMMIGRANT.

NEWCASTLE, Monday.

A Japanese escaped from the steamer Mitsuki Maru in December last. At the police court to-day the captain was fined, through the agent who appeared for him, £100, with 6s costs, for allowing a prohibited immigrant to enter the Commonwealth.

Every Time.

All Grades of Robur are equally pure—"The Leaf of the true Tea plant"—the only difference between one grade and another is in the matter of the youngness of the leaf. The finer grades are selected young leaves, and these give a rich, fine tasting extract, and very little leaf is needed to make a pot of good tea. Have a try at No. 2 Grade—it is "tip top" tea for family use—very wholesome and wonderfully saving.

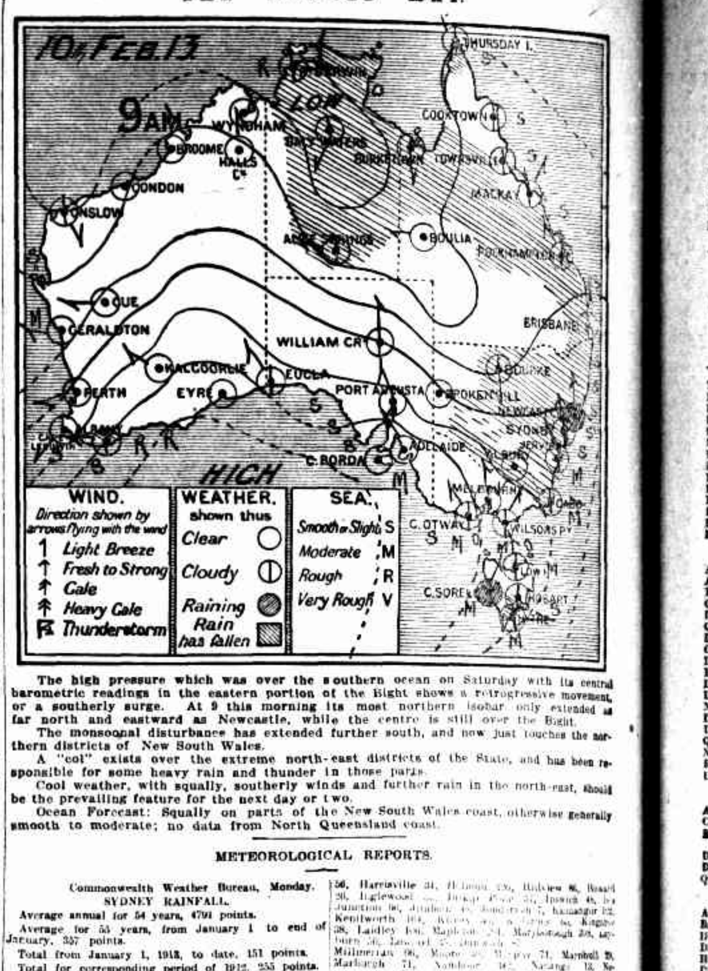
AUSTRALIAN WEATHER.

THE "HERALD" MAP.



The high pressure which was over the southern ocean on Saturday with its central barometric readings in the eastern portion of the Bight shows a retrogressive movement, or a southerly surge. At 9 this morning its most northern isobar only extended as far north and eastward as Newcastle, while the centre is still over the Bight.

The monsoonal disturbance has extended further south, and now just touches the northern districts of New South Wales.

A "col" exists over the extreme north-east districts of the State, and has been responsible for some heavy rain and thunder in those parts.

Cool weather, with squally, southerly winds and further rain in the north-east, should be the prevailing feature for the next day or two.

MELBOURNE, Monday.

To-day's sales were:—Victoria Government 3 per cent. debentures, 1930, £82; ditto, 3½ per cent., 1932, £92/10/; National Bank (ord.), 60/; Royal Bank, 24/9; I.O.A., 5/1, 5/3; Silverton Tramway, £5/6/6; Broken Hill Water Supply, 22/3; Federal Coffee Palace, 7/11; Port Swettenham, 25/9; Rosella Jam, 22/; Swallow and Ariell, 20/4; Melbourne Tramway, 44/.

FINANCIAL.

PATERSON, LAING, AND BRUCE, LTD.

The above company is issuing in London £100,000 4½ per cent. debentures. The company, which has an issued share capital of £600,000, has at present outstanding £150,000 4½ per cent. debentures. The consent of the necessary majority of the holders of these debentures has been given to the issue of a further £100,000, which will rank pari passu. The quid pro quo which the old debenture holders have received for consenting to the new issue is an additional ½ per cent. interest, so that the company's debentures will be a consolidated issue of £250,000 4½ per cent. stock.

PEEL RIVER LAND CO.

The above company made a net profit of £32,700 in the year to June 30 last, and £4100 more than in the previous 12 months, but, owing to the reduction in the amount brought in, the balance available for appropriation is £3300 smaller at £49,300. The dividend, reduced a year ago from 15 to 10 per cent., is maintained at the latter figure, but the carry-forward is cut down by £3300, to £13,300. The 10 per cent. dividend calls for £36,000, or more than was actually earned either last year or in 1910-11. Consequently, it has been provided for only at the expense of the undivided profits, which within the past two years have been reduced from £23,900 to £13,300. It is, therefore, obvious that, unless profits continue to improve, a curtailment of the rate of distribution will be inevitable. The wool clip in 1911-12 was smaller than that of the previous year, but, thanks to slightly higher prices, the falling-off in the yield was limited to £2700.

INCOME TAX PROBLEMS.

"Ignoramus" writes:—

Might I ask you to kindly answer the following queries re income tax returns in your columns. (a) My wife let a cottage at a weekly rental of 30s per week for six months on January 27 last. Should she send in a return now, or at the end of this year? This is the only source of income she has. (b) On January 28 last I accepted a Government position at a salary of £200 per annum. Must I send in a return this year?

No return would be needed in either case as applying to the income specified. If the income earned in 1912 did not reach £260 then no return at all is necessary.

"Anxious" writes:—

Would you kindly answer the following questions in connection with the income tax:—A few years ago I became possessed of some shares in a company. They were £1 shares, and I paid that amount for them. Last year I sold some of those shares at an advance of 10s per share, by which I made a certain sum. I returned that sum as income made by me by the sale of shares. Was I obliged to do so? If I was not obliged will the commissioners deduct that amount from my whole income?

According to our reading of the Act there was no need to return the 10s as income. It is not income, but accretion to capital. The Commissioners, however, are, we believe, inclined to take the opposite view, and probably will not deduct the amount.

EMU BAY RAILWAY.

MELBOURNE, Monday.

The receipts of the Emu Bay Railway Company for last month amounted to £5447, as compared with £5179 for January, 1912.

NOTES AND COMMENTS.

The Thora Ship Company, Ltd., has been registered with a capital of £3000, in shares of £1 each, and will acquire the barque Thora, and carry on business as shipowners, coal and timber merchants.

Coal Yards, Ltd., is being wound up, and Mr. S. F. Allan has been appointed liquidator.

The "British Australasian" understands that amongst the new companies to appeal to British investors in the near future will be one to acquire the British rights of the patents owned by the Woods-Gilbert Rail Planer Company, Ltd.

Australasian wool exports so far this year show a decrease of 75,967 bales.

The falling off from the Commonwealth has been 112,432 bales, but there has been an increase from New Zealand of 36,465 bales.

The annual meeting of Moffitt and Co., Ltd., was held yesterday, Mr. L. M. Triggs presiding. The adoption of the report and balance-sheet, particulars of which have already been published, was unanimously agreed to.

At yesterday's wool sales 5865 bales were offered and 6276 sold, including 1061 bales disposed of privately.

The market was in sellers' favour, excellent clearances being effected.

The following dates for future Sydney and Brisbane wool sales have now been fixed, viz.:—

BRISBANE.	SYDNEY.
April 1 to 5.	April 8 to 10.
May 13 to 15.	May 20 to 22.
June 24 to 26.	July 1 to 3.

Mr. George Crowley, the managing director of the City Mutual Life Assurance Society, advises us that the new business figures for last year represent considerably over £600,000 sterling—a record for the society.

The views about Germany's economic position prevalent in foreign countries are often incorrect. With the object of helping to eradicate these misconceptions the Dresdner Bank has published a pamphlet on "Germany's Economic Forces." In this publication the financial, economic, and progressive forces at work in Germany are dealt with on some 40 pages of carefully tabulated statistics, which are accompanied by short explanations. A copy has been received from the bank.

COMMERCIAL.

THE MARKETS.

Locally there was no change in quotations of Eastern goods yesterday. Canaryseed was still quoted by some grocery houses at 28/ per cwt, but the majority asked the advance advised on Friday to 30/ per cwt. Stocks were extremely short. Rice was firmer abroad, but difficulties between millers prevented any advance. Rates and freights, it is said, justify an addition of at least £3 to present prices. Cloves were extremely strong, owing to the very small crop in Zanzibar this season. What has been gathered is not equal to a quarter of last season's supply, and prices are greatly enhanced. This time last year /6¼ was paid, and some months ago /8¾ c.i.f. To-day they are worth /11¾ to 1/ c.i.f. per lb. All other prices were strong, though there had been fluctuations within narrow limits. As Brazilian reports indicated that the picking of coffee berries was not so great as had been anticipated, the market for all kinds advanced. The Indian market for Nilghiri and Mysore coffe reported continued high rates for this season's picking. Linseed showed a advance of over 10/ a ton on the Indian c.i.f. price, which was yesterday in the neighbourhood of £13/10/. Quotations from Rangoon for new season's haricot beans were available, and were a little lower than opening prices last year. The quality, it was anticipated, would be very much better. In this case also higher freights will tend to sustain local prices.

Grocers still declined yesterday to order their dried fruits from the association, as it was not known how far the disaffection evidenced at M'Laren Vale would spread. What business has been done has been for immediate requirements. It was believed that it would not take much encouragement to bring offers for the selling of other fruits than currants, lexias, and sultanas principally, and until the association closes up its ranks again little business will be done with the association agents. All fish was in request at late rates. Advices from Britain were to the effect that nearly all stocks of Morton's fish goods were exhausted, and that some orders where specifications came late were cancelled. High prices of salmon had caused a run on herrings. Hence came about the shrinkage in stocks. Ordering of matches for the winter supply was proceeding briskly, and the fact that the Australian wax vestas are rapidly displacing the imported article was again plainly evidenced. The advance in locally-manufactured candles was generally accepted as inevitable.

Samples of Ceylon tea received by the mails confirmed the cabled advance in prices. The quality was on a par with that of the previous shipment. There was quite an eagerness to do business at full lates rates, blenders operating freely. Transactions included 400 packages of Ceylons up to /10. The strong inquiry noticed for all medium teas was accentuated by the scarcity of Indians and Javas. Colombo advices by the mail were to the effect that small offerings were expected at the near auctions, because of washaways on the railway hindering arrivals from up country. A cable stated that at the auction at Calcutta on Friday an advance was shown in commonest and common kinds of about a farthing; for all other descriptions the market was strong and active, and prices were firm at late rates.

A good business was done in general lines of manufactured metals, such as ironmongery and axes, most kinds of tools, and in explosives. Heavy metals, such as wires, wire nettings, and galvanised iron, continued dull. Prices of a few of B grade imported nettings were about 5/ below those hitherto quoted.

Prices of certain brands of kerosene were advanced a farthing per gallon, and it was notified that the increase was general throughout Australia. Snowflake kerosene was quoted at /11½ per gallon ex store, and /11¼ ex ship; Royal Daylight kerosene at /9½, and Petrolite at /9¼, both ex store. Linseed oil was inquired for at late rates. Burrell's oil was cabled at 2/2 f.o.b., a rise of /1 on the week. The convention price of white lead was unchanged at £26/10/.

Branbags were at a standstill yesterday because the country was not buying. The difficulty of obtaining trucks for chaff had for the time killed all country business. The quotation, however, for spot was firm at 7/1½. Parcel business was done in forward lots, 100 bales of January shipment selling at 6/3 ship's slings, and 50 each of February and March shipments at 6/ slings. Altogether, however, the market seemed to be waiting on the news of shipments by the January boat. Woolpacks were quoted at 2/10 spot, and 2/9¾ for seasons. Cornsacks were dull at 6/9. As to the Calcutta position, though prices were rather easier yesterday, due to bear operations, than at the time Hoare, Miller, and Co.'s report was written, January 18, yet that report gives some idea as to the progress of events and the outlook. Therein it is stated "jute goods have been notable for the fact that they seem to have thrown off for a time the influence of the jute market, and have been standing by themselves, chiefly due to the demand for Hessians caused by the announcement of a further direct steamer to the River Plate in the early part of March. The end of last week was also taken up with business almost entirely for the Plate season in July-September. The cold weather is not far from its conclusion, and with the return of the hot months we are bound to have a recurrence of labour troubles which will have a deterrent effect upon production. A serious fire occurred at Budge Budge mill on January 10; 320 looms are reported to have been put out of action, and owing to the heavy engagement in the hands of machinery manufacturers, it is unlikely that they will be in working order again for six or twelve weeks." Messrs. Gillanders, Arbuthnot, and Co. state in their circular that Australia was showing more interest in woolpacks, and that a line of 1500 bales April-June was reported. This purchase, however, it has been learned, was made not by an Australian house, but by Calcutta speculators.

CUSTOMS NOTIFICATIONS.

The following notifications are made by the Customs Department:—

Shellac varnish, for use in breweries for vats and casks; spirits for use in manufacture of. Re G.O. 1313 (3): The sentence in the above G.O., "To each 100 gallons of spirit add one gallon of approved pure acetone and 4lb shellac," is hereby cancelled, and the following wording substituted:—"To each 100 gallons of spirit add one gallon of approved pure acetone and not less than 50lb of shellac."

Commerce Regulation 8 (g):—The Comptroller-General has directed that the term "available phosphoric acid," commerce regulation 8 (g), may be calculated as "water and citrate soluble phosphoric acid," p. 205, or as H3PO4, and no action need be taken for the present to amend marking if the percentage marked on the bags corresponds with the "available phosphoric acid" calculated as H3PO4.

HANDLING MEAT IN LONDON.

London is doing something to improve the handling of frozen meat from the steamer to the store. According to the report of Messrs. Gilbert, Anderson, and Co., the offer of the Port of London Authority to build sorting sheds and provide increased storage at the Royal Albert Dock has met with the approval of the trade generally. It has been announced that these will be of the most complete character, providing for the quick discharge of the steamers with the minimum amount of handling and expense. To obtain the full advantage of these improvements it will be necessary that bills of lading authorise the shipping companies that discharge will be completed at that point. The saving in insurance claims will be considerable, and to the advantage of the growers. While we are promised this great improvement at the Port of London, which will greatly lessen damage and delay in discharge, it will in a great measure make the trade less dependent on labour organisation. No alterations have been made at the outports for the better handling of meat, but improvements are being urged.

SHIPMENTS OF PORT AND SHERRY.

According to the report of Messrs. J. R. Parkington and Co., the shipments of port to Great Britain in 1912 were 120,333 pipes, against 111,450 pipes in 1911, and 120,112 pipes in 1910. The sherry shipments were 31,630 butts for 1912, compared with 31,841 butts in 1911, and 45,592 butts in 1910.

EXPORT TRADE.

FROZEN MEAT IN 1912.

SHRINKAGE IN AUSTRALIAN OUTPUT.

Prices generally for frozen meat during 1912 showed a higher average than in the preceding year. In Australia and New Zealand the demands of the Labour leaders were such as to cause anxiety to all employers engaged in the trade. The various measures passed for the settlement of industrial disputes under arbitration could not be looked upon as furnishing a complete solution of the difficulty. Labour organisations were formed which were not always prepared to accept the findings of the arbitration courts, although awards had been largely in favour of the workers.

The following table, compiled by the Colonial Consignment and Distributing Company, Ltd., shows the imports of sheep and lambs into the United Kingdom from January 1 to December 31, 1911 and 1912:—

	New Zealand. Sheep.	New Zealand. Lambs.	Australia. Sheep.	Australia. Lambs.
1911, No.	1,795,738	3,428,645	1,962,008	1,640,043
1912, No.	2,315,417	3,179,834	1,043,789	1,229,716
	519,679	248,811	918,219	410,327
	Increase.	Decrease.	Decrease.	Decrease.

South America.	Sheep.	Lambs.
1911, No.	3,058,667	1,066,063
1912, No.	2,717,356	913,362
	341,311	153,061
	Decrease.	Decrease.

The table indicates a decrease in every section, except in the case of New Zealand mutton. The principal falling-off is in Australian mutton and lamb, the imports of sheep being not less than 1,078,664 carcases under the record year of 1910, when 2,722,453 carcases were received. Lamb also exhibits a serious shortage. The quantity of South American sheep was about up to the average of the last ten years, the heaviest shipments having been in 1908, when the total was 3,262,000 carcases. The striking increase in arrivals of lamb during 1911 has not been maintained, but the quantity received was much in excess of any year previous to that mentioned.

FROZEN BEEF.

South American importers had practically the monopoly of the frozen beef market during the first five months of the year, as supplies from New Zealand were very light, and owing to climatic conditions in Australia no quantity was available for shipment until May. There were no striking developments in this section. The moderate increase in the imports was easily manageable, and although there were short periods when cheap chilled beef attracted all attention to the exclusion of frozen, the range of values had been satisfactory, and compared favourably with the preceding year.

The following table gives particulars of the imports of frozen beef into the United Kingdom from January 1 to December 31, 1911 and 1912:—

	N. Zealand.	Aust'lia.	S. Amer.	Total.
1911, quarters	165,598	520,345	1,522,845	2,208,788
1912, quarters	157,853	732,781	1,806,067	2,696,701
	7,745	212,436	283,222	487,913
	Decrease.	Increase.	Increase.	Increase.

Every year sees increased facilities for the storage and distribution of frozen produce throughout the country, and the more rapid the transit of supplies through the various channels the better it is for all concerned, full stores being generally the indication of irregular shipments and depressed markets. The Port of London Authority have arranged to increase their cold storage accommodation at the docks, the total capacity to be 1,100,000 carcases. In addition, it is proposed to provide insulated sorting sheds at the Albert Docks and storage for a further 250,000 carcases.

THE OUTLOOK.

In attempting to forecast the prospects of the market for frozen meat in the year now opening, the Colonial Consignment and Distributing Co., Ltd., assert that it is necessary to bear in mind the relative increase of population as compared with stock throughout the world, the possible enlargement of the area of consumption, and the expected condition of trade and consequent resources of the industrial classes. The tendency appears to be in the direction of the demand increasing out of proportion to the supply in respect to most of the products of the domestic animal, such as wool, skins, hides, and tallow, and it only seems to be a matter of time for meat to be in the same position.

Great and populous manufacturing countries, such as the United States and Germany, are on the verge of importing meat on a large scale. Such a diversion of supplies from Great Britain would inevitably affect prices. Dealing, however, with matters as they are, it appears reasonable to expect a year of satisfactory trade nationally, leading to a fair demand for imported meat. The output from Australasia is not likely to be excessive, and home-grown supplies will probably show the effect of the conditions experienced during the past year. If, therefore, the export from South America is kept within reasonable bounds, there is no special cause for anxiety with regard to prices, which should show a satisfactory average over the year, but it is necessary to remember that the increase in the capacity of freezing works and the necessary engagement of tonnage may lead to congested supplies, should there be no other important outlet in addition to Great Britain.

LAST WEEK'S SHIPMENTS.

The oversea shipments of frozen produce from the port of Sydney for the week ended February 6-12, according to the Customs-house returns, were:—

Mutton (carcases).—United Kingdom, 86,410; India and Ceylon, 565; U.S.A., 948; Malta, 2002. Total, 89,925.

Beef (quarters and pieces).—India and Ceylon 7, South Africa 300. Total, 307.

Butter (boxes).—United Kingdom and Continent 10,971, Hongkong 30, South Sea Islands 24. Total, 11,025.

BREADSTUFFS.

ADVANCE IN WHEAT AND FLOUR.

There was decidedly a better tone in the wheat market yesterday. The free selling of cargoes on the London market at enhanced prices improved the situation considerably, and no difficulty was experienced in getting 3/7 for parcels of February delivery. Millers were also paying that price. For prompt delivery payments were made up to 3/7½. Shippers advanced their limits to 3/6¾, ex trucks Sydney, though for most of the southern wheat 3/6½ was paid. Farmers were not selling considerable quantities.

The Millers' Association, at its meeting yesterday, in view of the price of wheat, put up the price of flour to £8/15/ for city brands, and £8/12/6 for country brands.

PRICES OF MILL OFFAL.

"Produce Merchant" writes under date of February 8:—

Sir,—I see by this morning's paper that the Millers' company or combine raised the price of their bran and pollard 5/ a ton yesterday. Some millers profess not to see any necessity for the advance, and declare that the company was only giving away to speculators. I doubt if any merchant in Sydney would take the risk of importing bran or pollard on this market at any price, knowing that they have this millers' combine to contend with. It is useless for that miller to make a statement so rash, as the public are pretty well acquainted with the mysterious ways of the millers' company. It is useless to make statements that are not authentic, and I will prove to you, Sir, the truth of my statement. The millers are very much concerned about the welfare of the produce merchants. I will give you one instance. The purchase of 50 or 100 tons of bran at a very fair price. What do you think they did a day or two after the purchase? Lowered their price 10/ a ton, before the man got a chance to dispose of a single ton of it. That will show you, Sir, the mysterious ways of the company, and how they treat their customers. They will refuse to supply a Sussex-street merchant in many cases at a £1 per ton more than they are getting for their export. The statement as to the plentifulness of bran and pollard is not correct. If such is the case, why is the company compelled to cancel large quantities at a great loss? All these excuses will not convince the public. They will be of the same opinion still that a ring exists to work the bran and pollard, in conjunction with the flour business, for the benefit of the bakers and the detriment of the consumers. I know from past experience there are a few favourite produce merchants in Sussex-street who stand well in with some of the directors, who can tell you when there is going to be a rise or a drop. What it is to be in the know!

LAST WEEK'S CLEARANCES.

The exports of wheat and flour from the port of Sydney for the week ended February 8, according to the Customs-house returns, were:—

Wheat (bushels): United Kingdom and Continent, 253,016; Japan, 42,686; New Caledonia, 30; South Sea Islands, 21. Total, 295,753.

Flour (in sacks of 200lb): New Zealand, 60; United Kingdom and Continent, 5; Hongkong, 851; Japan, 250; New Caledonia, 532; Philippine Islands, 11,275; South Sea Islands, 729; Egypt, 275. Total, 14,517.

Two thousand one hundred and eight tons of wheat and 202 tons of flour were manifested to arrive at Darling Harbour yesterday.

INTERSTATE MARKETS.

ADELAIDE, Monday.

Wheat was firm at 3/6 to 3/6½, farmers' lots; buyers offered 3/7 for parcels prompt on Saturday, but easier ideas prevailed to-day in sympathy with weaker London advices. Flour was firm, and considerable business has gone through up to £8/2/6 f.o.b. Port Adelaide; bakers' lots £8/7/6 to £8/12/6 delivered. Bran and pollard were firm at 1/2 delivered Adelaide; good demand for export at 1/1¼ f.o.b., millers asking higher rates. Algerian oats were dull at 2/ to 2/2 growers' lots, 2/4 parcels f.o.b. Barley was nominally unchanged at 3/3 to 3/9 English malting, trucks Port Adelaide, to 3/ Cape malting, 2/6 Cape feed. Hay was steady at 62/6 delivered. PRODUCE.

DAIRY.

FIRMNESS IN CASE EGGS.

Butter production in the Richmond and Tweed districts continues on a substantial basis, but in several other centres the dry, hot weather has seriously affected the outturn. In Victoria the western districts have ceased exporting, and in other localities supplies are decreasing rapidly. Values in Melbourne are consequently firm. The outlook in London shows no improvement. Several exporters are complaining that arrivals are not being cleared, and that cargoes are overlapping. The result is that while last year secondary butters did remarkably well, as compared with first grade, this year there is a great discrimination being exercised by buyers, and broken prices are frequent.

Interstate business in cheese is at a standstill, as practically the same values are ruling in the three States. The want of rain is being severely felt on the South Coast, and arrivals have fallen off materially. The Northern river factories, however, are contributing fairly large quantities. Stocks throughout "the street" are fairly heavy, but sales are brisker, and it is thought that bedrock values have been reached. Shipments coming to hand contain a heavy percentage of damaged cheese. Excessive heat is said to be the cause.

The market is almost bare of honey, and indications are that values will move to higher levels. A trade journal states that beekeepers report a good bloom during the flower season, but a scarcity of pollen. Many have been compelled to remove the bees a distance back to save the hives. The quotation for prime Western brands in 60lb tins may be given as /3 to /3¼ per lb.

Owing to the smaller killings during the Christmas-New Year holiday period there is a temporary scarcity of bacon, and stocks are practically cleared. Middles and flitches are in excellent request.

Case eggs were distinctly stronger than on Friday. Shipments were light, and no trouble was experienced in realising from 1/4 to 1/5 for Northern rivers, and from 1/4 to 1/6 for railways and South Coasts. On the other hand, the high prices appeared to be strangling the new-laid suburban varieties, the bulk of which had to be sold at 1/8 per dozen. Only a few selected lots commanded 1/9. Arrivals per coaster included 12 cases each in the Eden and Merimbula from the South Coast, 12 cases in the Noorebar from the Clarence, 12 cases in the Wollongbar from Byron Bay, 30 cases in the Yulgilbar from the Macleay, and 100 cases in the Pulganbar from the Clarence.

FORAGE AND GRAIN.

NEW MAIZE ARRIVING.

Two more consignments of new season's maize arrived from the Northern rivers yesterday morning. The Pulganbar landed 135 bags from the Clarence, and the Yulgilbar 60 bags from the Macleay. The grain, although small, was dry, and holders had no trouble in clearing at 4/6 a bushel. From all appearances it will be another fortnight before our rivers take their proper place as large suppliers to this market. Each week confirms the opinion that good prices are in store for local growers, always providing that Sydney is not made the dumping-ground for foreign maize.

The market for millet is lifeless, with arrivals small. Advices from growing centres point to the fact that the past season's dry conditions have affected the crop, more particularly in the Hunter district. It now remains to be seen whether the millet will recover to such an extent as to make up a fair season's yield. So far it is hard to form any idea as to what effects the foreign article will have on this season's market. Quotations to hand show a landed cost in Sydney of about £30 per ton.

The Tasmanian steamers Glaucus and Kanna discharged 12,000 bags of potatoes. There was a brisk inquiry, and sales of redskins were effected at £7/10/, Brownells at £7, and whiteskins at £6/10/ per ton.

Onions also moved out freely. A consignment of 600 bags came to hand in the Age. At time of writing the quotation had not been fixed, but it was anticipated that it would be in the neighbourhood of £7/10/ or £8 per ton.

There was no movement in chaff. The Age added another 4500 bags to the stocks on the wharf.

Derrick straw was worth anything from £3/5/ to £3/10/.

At the firewood auctions 14 truckloads were put under the hammer. Prices were unaltered. Quotations were:—

RAILWAY MARKET.

RECORD FOR LUCERNE DUST.

The shed was brimming over yesterday, and, doubtless, the 13 trucks on the line were partly due to the hold up of last week.

There was a representative attendance of buyers, and the sale went off rather briskly. Choice and prime grades of wheaten chaff sold well at late rates, but medium to good went off a shade easier. Lucerne chaff did not change, although six bags of dust from Nemingha realised the exceedingly strong price of 8/11, quoted generally as a record. Lucerne hay sagged down 5/, while wheat did not unbalance.

Business was registered in wheaten chaff as high as 6/ on many occasions; in oaten chaff to 5/1, in lucerne chaff to 7/, and dust to 8/11; and in green lucerne hay, packed in small bales, at 6/7, and in large bales to 5/11. Green and brown hay, in the latter bales, fetched 5/2, and brown hay 5/.

Produce placed in position for sale:—Chaff 86, hay 12, straw 2, wheat 4, maize 1, oats 2, rye 1, and potatoes 5.

Manifest of projected arrival:—Chaff 81, hay 12, straw 3, oats 2, rye corn 1, wheat 3, and potatoes 2.

HOMEBUSH STOCK MARKET.

SHEEP.

A VERY STRONG DEMAND.

A smaller supply of sheep was in view for yesterday's sales than of late, and the generally adverse weather conditions were reflected in the bulk of the pennings. Out of 20,198 sheep (including lambs) listed, 19,923 head were penned from 60 consignors. The consignments included four drafts, ranging from 1000 to 1500 head, with a large proportion of lots of 100 to 300, most districts being represented, Liverpool Plains and the north-western and western slopes being well in evidence.

The sheep comprised a large proportion of merinos, with a very fair representation of crossbreds, mainly carrying quarter to half wool skins, with occasional pens of autumn and winter shorn. Medium and useful quality merinos, with wethers predominating, were well in evidence. There was a moderate representation of prime wethers, but extra prime were exceptionally scarce. The ewes included one or two drafts of extra prime, and as they carried early-shorn skins they were in particularly strong demand. The crossbreds were chiefly good to prime, with occasional pens of extra prime, both wethers and ewes, and including hoggets. The general average quality of the merino wethers was only fair, the ewes rather better than usual, and the crossbreds well up to the usual standard.

There was a full attendance of buyers, including exporters, the Sydney Meat Preserving Company, Limited, the usual Glebe Island, suburban, and country trade. As the supply was a comparatively light one, and seemingly well within requirements, the market opened to very strong competition at an improvement on last Thursday's rates of about 6d per head. This tone in sellers' favour, however, was not sustained throughout, values generally being on a par with the highest rates of Thursday last, with an occasional rise on the better qualities.

Included in the principal lines of merinos were drafts of wether. from J. M. Allison (Coomoo Coomoo) and F. Heusten (Warialda), that sold to 16/10; H. E. Kater and Son (Nevertire) to 16/11, and J. M'Master (Quirindi) to 16/4, and a draft of 990 from Clark's, Ltd. (Boggabri), from 15/2 to 15/9 per head. An exceptionally prime draft of ewes, carrying a good early shorn skin, from E. K. Rutledge (Nevertire), sold to 17/8 per head. A line from J. L. Brown (Tondeburine) sold to 14/9 per head. Included in the crossbreds was a draft from executors H. C. White (Gunnedah) that sold to 18/11 for hoggets, wethers from B. Haydon (Blandford) to 18/4, and S. H. Alford to 18/9. A line of extra prime ewes, with early shorn skins, from N. Welch (Coonamble) sold to 18/9 per head.

Quotations:—Prime shorn and short wool merino w 14/ to 15/6, extra prime shorn and short wool merino w 16/6 to 17/, good shorn and short wool merino w and h 10/6 to 12/; medium short and short wool w and h 7/6 to 9/, prime shorn and short wool merino e 11/6 to 13/, extra prime 14/6 to 17/8, good shorn and short wool merino e 8/ to 9/6, medium and light shorn and short wool merino e 5/6 to 7/, prime shorn and short wool xb w 15/6 to 17/, extra prime shorn short wool xbd w and h 18/ to 19/, good shorn and short wool xbd w and h 11/6 to 13/, medium and short wool xbd w and h 8/6 to 10/, prime shorn and short wool xbd e 13/6 to 15/, extra prime 16/6 to 18/9, good shorn and short wool xb e and h 11/ to 12/6, medium and light shorn and short wool xb e and h 8/ to 9/6; prime woolly merino w 18/ to 19/, good woolly merino w and h 14/6 to 16/, medium woolly merino w 10/6 to 12/6; prime woolly merino e 15/6 to 17/, good woolly merino e 13/6 to 14/6, medium woolly merino e 10/6 to 12/.

LAMBS.

USEFUL QUALITIES FIRMER.

A small supply of lambs was penned, mainly fair to useful quality, with a moderate representation of prime, but extre prime were scarce. Crossbreds formed the bulk of the pennings, with a sprinkling of merino. Odd pens of woolly lambs carried burry skins. There was a better demand for trade qualities than on Thursday last at firmer rates, but export grades were barely so strong.

Quotations: Prime woolly lambs and suckers, 13/6 to 15/; prime short-wool lambs and hoggets, 11/ to 12/6; good lambs and suckers, 8/6 to 10/6; medium and light lambs and suckers, 6/ to 7/6.

CATTLE.

MEDIUM AND PLAIN SORTS FIRMER.

Upwards of 2180 cattle were listed for sale from 85 consignors, and 2346 head were yarded. The consignments came from within the State, and mainly from the northern and north-western districts, with a sprinkling from the south and west. The yardings comprised all descriptions, and included a very fair proportion of good to prime handy-weight bullocks and steers, with occasional yards of prime weighty bullocks; medium, light, and rough sorts were not so plentiful as usual. There was a moderate showing of good to prime cows and heifers, but the usual showing of medium and rough and inferior dairy sorts was also in evidence. The bullocks and steers were decidedly above the average quality of the past three or four weeks, but the cows and heifers showed very little improvement; calves were not much in evidence.

There was a full attendance of buyers, and as the supply seemed well within requirements, the market opened to brisk bidding at firmer values; all qualities being in active request, with a tendency in owner's favour. As sales progressed it speedily became evident that the more plentiful supply of good to prime bullocks was ample for requirements, and values receded to previous levels; medium and rough sorts, however, were in brisk demand throughout at about 10/ per head in sellers' favour.

Included in the principal lines of bullocks was a draft of 50 from A. B. Bettington (Scone) that sold to £11/13/, avg £10; 36 from estate late J. S. Vickery (Bective) to £10/12/, avg £9/10/; and 73 from T. Cook and Co. (Muswellbrook) to £9/13/, avg £8/11/4. Included in a draft of 20 head from W. J. Gall (Moree), 5 head sold at £11, and odd cows to £9/1/. Among the good lines of cows and heifers was a draft of 30 head from Willie station (Warren) that sold to £8/2/, avg £7/3/8, and 33 from the A. A. Co. (Willow Tree) to £8/6/, avg £7/4/10 per head.

Quotations: Yards of prime weighty bullocks, £11/10/ to £12; yards of prime medium weight bullocks, £10 to £11; yards of prime handy-weight bullocks and steers, £8 to £9/5/; yards of good bullocks and steers, £6/5/ to £7/5/; yards of good light bullocks and steers, £4/10/ to £5/10/; yards of medium and light bullocks and steers, £2/10/ to £3/10/; yards prime cows and heifers, £6/10/ to £7; yards of extra prime cows and heifers, £7/10/ to £8/5/, odd beasts to £9/1/; yards of good cows and heifers, £4/10/ to £5/10/, yards of medium and rough, £2/5/ to £3/10/. Best beef 24/ to 26/; prime weighty beef 21/ to 23/; useful beef 18/ to 20/, medium beef 16/ to 17/ per 100lb.

THE WEATHER.

HEAVY RAINFALL AT MURWILLUMBAH.

Since Saturday the high pressure centred to the south of the continent has co-operated with the combined monsoonal and antarctic conditions over the Eastern States. This has resulted in some light to heavy rainfall almost generally in Northern Territory, and large areas of Carpentaria and eastern divisions of Queensland. Light to heavy amounts, with thunderstorms, were also recorded generally in New South Wales, but scattered west of the highlands, with a few very heavy falls on the extreme north coast. Murwillumbah had 592 points, Clarence Heads 339, Ballina 315, Grafton 387, Lismore 261, Mullumbimby 230, Woolgoolga 211, Tweed Heads 161, Bellingen 108, Kempsey 140, Port Macquarie 167, Manning 221, Newcastle 447, Camden Haven 122, Bulahdelah 115, Gloucester 110, and Nambucca 100. On the new slope the chief falls were:—Blackville 124, Boggabri 102, Gunnedah 80, and Quirindi 68. On central-western plain, Narromine had 236 points, Trangie 55, and Warren 34. The largest amounts reported from western division of the State were:—Ivanowrie and Pooncarie each 40, Gongolgon 39, and Louth 30. Along the Murrumbidgee Carrathool had 40, Hay 19, and Maude 9. The best falls in the central tablelands were Orange 68, Katoomba 62, and Bathurst and Lawson each 43. In the metropolitan district the best amount advised was: Kurrajong 58 points. Parramatta had 25, Windsor 21, Glebe Point 12, Beecroft 15, Marrickville 9, and Sydney 7.

On the South Coast Jervis Bay had 78 points, Crookhaven 56, Nowra, Sutton Forrest and Moss Vale 34.

At 9 a.m. yesterday it was fine and clear in parts of the western districts, but otherwise cloudy to overcast, with showers or raining at places on the central and north coast.

The highest temperatures registered on Sunday were:—Menindie and Mount Hope each 98 deg., Narrandera and Urana each 97 deg. The lowest reading in the State was 38 deg. at Kosciusko, Kiandra 46, and Bombala 47 deg.

The rain in the northern territory was general, Tennant's Creek having the heaviest fall—390 points. Powell's Creek had 361 points, and Darwin 70. In Queensland the largest amount was 315 points at Georgetown, Normanton 300, and Burketown 137 points.

BYRON BAY.—The weather appears to be clearing up after four days' rain. The total registered was 920 points. Sufficient rain has now fallen to do till April.

BRUSHGROVE.—Since Friday six inches of rain have fallen. It was still raining on Monday.

BARRABA.—Splendid rain fell last night, 112 points being registered. This fall following on the recent storms will have a good effect on the young grass.

CASINO.—Nice rain commenced to fall on Friday. To 9 a.m. on Monday, 244 points had been recorded.

KYOGLE.—Rain commenced on Friday morning, and continued on Sunday night, resulting in 242 points being recorded.

MANILLA.—Steady rain fell on Sunday night, registering 55 points.

MACKSVILLE.—It was raining heavily on Saturday, and continuing through yesterday. A fall of three inches was registered locally. The outlying parts experienced heavy rain, four inches falling at Eungai on Saturday afternoon. The recent dry north-easterly winds had left their mark on the pastures and crops. Rain was badly needed. The early maize crop this year will exceed previous years.

MURWILLUMBAH.—Showery conditions continued on Monday afternoon. District creeks are still in flood, and cream deliveries are being delayed. The rainfall since 6 p.m. on Friday night to 9 o'clock on Monday morning totalled 189 points. The river has resumed its normal level. It was still raining at 6 p.m. on Monday.

OBERON.—After a severe spell of dry weather, rain fell on Sunday, yielding 60 points, which will be of immense value to the potato crops.

STROUD.—Splendid showers have fallen here since Friday evening, 270 points being registered. The weather is still muggy and showery.

ULMARRA.—Further bounteous rain fell throughout the district on Saturday and Sunday, totalling 313 points.

WOOLGOOLGA.—Since Friday 292 points of rain have fallen. It is still showery, and a further substantial fall would be welcome, and would ensure winter feed.

WINGHAM.—After a lengthy spell of dry and sultry weather, an acceptable change occurred at midday on Friday, when a thunderstorm was responsible for 135 points of rain. This will replenish the domestic water supply, but much more is needed to do any lasting good to the crops. Many people in the town were getting short of water, and another week's dry weather would make it necessary for some to cart from Dingo Creek. The maize and millet crops were getting burnt up and the pastures were pretty bare. In most places on the Upper Manning the conditions are better.

BABY SCREAMED ALL DAY WITH ECZEMA.

67 Colegrave-road, Stratford, New Town, London, England:—"My baby had dry eczema from head to foot when four months old. He used to scream all day with it and never got a good night's rest. It began on his scalp like a dry crust, and each time he was washed the scales came off and it ran, wept, and spread. In this way it covered his head, eyebrows, and ears, also in places on his body, so that really from top to toe he was one mass of eczema, and neighbours used to say what a terrible sight he looked, especially with his head uncovered. My baby was a perfect sight with this complaint.

"They told me it was dry eczema, and to rub him with carron oil night and morning. This I did for about two months, all to no use. I saw the advertisement for Cuticura Soap and Ointment and offer of free samples, which I wrote for and used. They began to mend baby, and I then bought a cake of Cuticura Soap and a box of Cuticura Ointment. One cake of Cuticura Soap and one box of Cuticura Ointment cured him. He is now quite clear." (Signed) Mrs. Pugh, November 11, '11.

Although Cuticura Soap and Ointment are sold throughout the world, a sample of each, with 32-page Skin Book, will be mailed free on application to R. Towns and Co., Dept. M., Sydney, N.S.W.—Advt.

LONDON MARKET QUIET.

LOCAL BUSINESS STAGNANT.

A colourless market ruling in London on Saturday, with metals showing a lack of stability, and the feeling of unrest prevailing in respect to the possibility of European complications arising out of the war between Turkey and the Balkan States, still dominate the Australian Stock Exchanges.

Operators are completely puzzled to form an estimate as to what will be the outcome of the present situation—whether the clouds will disappear and the market recover, or whether they will become denser, and the market become weaker. In these circumstances, operators are simply looking on, and it will take a big move in metal values to cause them to drop their present contemplative attitude.

Judging by the "middle" quotations of the London Stock Exchange on Saturday, one would imagine that it showed a better feeling for Australian copper and silver propositions. They certainly were fractionally better in most cases, but this had no effect on the local market. There was the same lack of a desire to speculate; hence the amount of business recorded was very small. This applied to all divisions of the market.

The market was again extremely quiet during the afternoon. The most noticeable transactions consisted of steady sales in Mount Elliott, and a slight weakening of British Broken Hill (old).

MINING NOTES.

The Hobart secretary of the Tongkah Harbour Tin Dredging Company telegraphs:—"Tongkah Harbour, output for the week, 17 tons of tin oxide. Stopped three days in consequence of Chinese New Year."

In Saturday's issue was published a letter from a correspondent respecting the Ardlethan Tin field. In the course of the letter it was stated that although the tin discovery dates back only to August last, "traffic receipts" on the Temora-Barellan railway amounted to over £24,000. The correspondent writes that the words "traffic receipts," should have been "cash receipts," which, he explains, "means the cash returns to the field for ore sent away since the discovery of the field in August last."

The output of the Hercules Gold and Silver Mining Company (Tas.), for the week ended January 1 was 700 tons of sulphide to Zeehan, on hand 75 tons of sulphide ore to Zeehan, 80 tons of loose zinc ore, and 107 tons of bagged loose zinc ore.

ZINC CORPORATION.

ESTIMATED MONTH'S PROFIT £11,667.

The Zinc Corporation's output for January is as follows:—Ore milled £11,055 tons; tailings treated, 28,370 tons; zinc concentrates produced, 7090 tons; lead concentrates produced, 3135 tons. Estimated income from all sources (spelter taken at £23, and lead at £15), £42,763. "Working cost per ton of ore mined and milled, 17/3. Working cost per ton on tailings and middlings treated 9/. Estimated profit £11,667.

BROKEN HILL MINES.

MANAGERIAL CHANGES.

BROKEN HILL, Sunday.

Mr. John Sampson, manager of the Broken Hill British mine has resigned his position, and purposes shortly taking a trip to Europe. Mr. Sampson has been 22 years on the mine in various positions, and succeeded the late Mr. Retallick as manager. The former was one of the victims of the explosion at the end of December, and though he recovered, he feels the need of a long holiday.

Mr. B. V. Barton, underground manager of the South Block mine, has been appointed general manager of the Junction mine. It is not known yet when he enters on his new duties.

The B. H. Block 14 Company last week despatched 260 tons of carbonates, assaying 25.6 per cent. lead and 12.9oz silver, also 430 tons of sulphides.

At the B.H. South mine last week, a very great deal of development work was accomplished from 277ft downwards. The winze from the 1070 level (section E2) was at 68ft in ore going 12 p.c. lead, 6.4oz silver, and 14.2 p.c. zinc. Low grade ore is showing in the rise from this level. Fair ore is showing in the rise at this point. The north drive, 1170 level (section 14) at 65ft shows ore going 11 p.c. lead, 3.9oz silver, and 10 p.c. zinc. No. 1 shaft has been deepened to 1210ft., No. 4 shaft to 1193ft, and No. 5 to 440ft. Diamond drill boring at 825ft level showed low grade ore from 214 to 225 feet, then barren quartzite and schist to 256, where the bore was stopped.

THE CHILLAGOE COMPANY, LTD.

THE RECONSTRUCTION SCHEME.

STATEMENT OF THE DIRECTORS.

MELBOURNE, Monday.

In the opinion of the directors of the Chillagoe Company, Limited, the proposed reconstruction is necessary in order to protect the interests of the shareholders; and they hope that in the near future there will be an ample return for the money already invested by them in the business. Satisfactory developments at Mount Mulligan, and the early advent of the railway to the coal field, are regarded by the directors as the most important event in the history of the company's enterprise. Hitherto that enterprise has been, to a great extent, strangled by the excessive cost of fuel, particularly of coke, whilst recently the cost of this essential was greatly enhanced, and operations seriously impeded, through the difficulty, amounting to an impossibility, of obtaining regular and full supplies. The effect of this financially was severely felt. The reduction works, instead of returning a profit, were kept going at a loss, the alternative being a complete suspension of operations.

As a consequence, the realisation of the hope expressed at the last annual meeting, that the legacy of the costly floods and fire of the previous year—a bank advance of over £80,000—would be wiped out during the current year was made impossible. The amount had been brought down, but not to anything like the extent it might have been had it not been for this coke famine. The direct saving to the company by the cheaper fuel from Mount Mulligan is estimated at £30,000, apart from the probability of a market being built up for coal and coke in North Queensland.

The value of the principal assets to be taken over by the new company were, in round figures, as under:—

1. Chillagoe railway, capitalised at 5 per cent. on average annual net earnings of last five years, £1,200,000.
2. Etheridge railway taken at certified cost of construction, £450,000.
3. Einasleigh copper mine and plant at cost of £113,000.
4. Metallurgical works, say £75,000, making a total of £1,838,000 for these four principal assets only.

If, from this total, the amount of the principal outstanding liabilities, which will be enumerated in the prospectus (£910,653, including bank advance at call £52,890), is deducted, the apparent surplus remaining in favour of the company is over £927,000. To this large sum the directors consider it would not be excessive to add at least £500,000 for the old company's Mount Mulligan interests.

The amount of fresh capital which will be asked for is £180,000, equal to 3/ per share. It is felt by the board that the Government may, before long, desire to acquire the Chillagoe line on terms which it might suit the new company to accept.

The company will hold an extraordinary meeting on the 20th inst. to consider motions in connection with the proposed reconstruction.

MOUNT BISCHOFF TIN COMPANY.

NET ANNUAL EARNINGS, £49,798.

LAUNCESTON, Monday.

The net earnings of the Mount Bischoff Tin-mining Company for the half-year amounted to £49,798, and interest £709, making, with the balance shown at the end of last year, a total of £151,615, out of which have been paid £39,000 in dividends, £1950 income tax, and £5712 written off, leaving to the credit of profit and loss £104,954. There has, in addition, been an ordinary expenditure of £4654 on plant and buildings. Prospecting on the northern slope has been limited, owing to lack of suitable labour. Working costs were 4/8.390d, as compared with 4/7.498d for the previous half-year. The total quantity of ore smelted was 2065 tons, which produced 1432 tons of tin. Notwithstanding high prices ruling for tin, and the splendid rains experienced during the term, there was a decrease of 34 tons in the customs ore smelted, but an increase of 420 tons as compared with the preceding six months. The average assay was 98.88 per cent.

Ivanhoe, 1969 tons, gold £38,813; expenditure, £22,810.

The manager of the Hainault Company has informed the Chamber of Mines that during the following week all operations of the mine will be suspended, pending advice from the head office.

STANTHORPE TIN, LIMITED.

The statutory general meeting of Stanthorpe Tin, Limited, was held at the company's registered office, Royal Insurance Buildings, Sydney, on Friday, February 7.

Mr. G. O. Hyde, chairman, reported that the Company was registered on October 9, 1912, and that no time had been lost in commencing operations on the Company's property. Operations were first commenced on Murphy's property, but so as to make the Company's supply of water secure, as far as possible for the future, it was decided later (after testing the tin bearing properties of the land) to commence sluicing operations on Simpson's property. This scheme was being carried out, and the whole of the machinery and plant had gone forward to Stanthorpe. Everything generally was going along very well, and it was expected sluicing operations would be commenced on or about the 17th inst., after which date the Board hoped the shareholders would very soon have some good news.

Messrs. G. C. Hyde, Robert Imray, and G. H. Blakemore were elected directors.

A resolution was passed confirming the action of the Directors in adopting the agreement between the George Frederick Litchfield and the trustee for the Company.

SCHOOL OF ARTS.

GOVERNMENT SUBSIDY.

The annual meeting of the Sydney Mechanics' School of Arts was held yesterday, the president, Mr. Wm. Reid, being in the chair.

The annual report showed that the revenue for the year 1912 totalled £4629 3s, and the expenditure £4276 19s 6d, these figures showing an increase in revenue of £288 3s 6d, and an increase of £310 9s 5d in the expenditure. The subscriptions and subsidy amounted to £3474 10s 6d, as against £3290 6s 2d for 1911.

The Minister for Education (the Hon. A. C. Carmichael) has consented that the institution be placed under class 2, provided it gives the department rooms for a Government Evening High School if required, without charge, the department to pay ground rent, cleaning of rooms, lighting, etc. This has been assented to.

The report and balance-sheet were adopted. The chairman stated that if the institution had lost the Government subsidy they would, in all probability, have had to shut the place up. Now that they had the Government subsidy the form of the balance-sheet would have to be altered.

The following officers were elected for the year 1913:—President, Mr. W. Reid; vice-presidents, Mr. E. C. V. Broughton, Dr. A. H. Nash, Messrs. D. Ritchie and J. Roberts; hon. treasurer, Mr. H. Montgomerie Hamilton; and auditors, Messrs. H. J. Ackerman, E. T. Calvert, S. Gelding.

DEATH OF MR. G. P. UNWIN.

FORMER DEPUTY POSTMASTER-GENERAL.

Mr. George Plaistowe Unwin, ex-Deputy Postmaster-General of the Commonwealth, died at his residence, Barham, Avenue-road, Mosman, on Sunday, at the age of 71 years. He had been in failing health for about a year.

The deceased gentleman joined the New South Wales postal service as a clerk 40 years ago. He worked his way up steadily, until he became postmaster at Wagga Wagga, and subsequently assistant superintendent of mails at the Sydney G.P.O. He was later on made senior postal inspector, finally becoming Deputy Postmaster-General.

Mr. Dalgarno was the first Deputy Postmaster-General when the postal service was federated in 1900. The late Mr. Unwin succeeded him, and held the position for about three years. On Mr. Unwin's retirement in 1906 Mr. E. J. Young, the present Deputy Postmaster, succeeded to the position.

The funeral will take place in the Church of England Cemetery this morning.

Chamberlain's Tablets act gently, pleasantly, and without griping.—Advt.

The prize money aggregates 500 sovs, of which 100 sovs endows the Victoria Park Handicap (one mile), while there are four events of 70 sovs each, and two of 60 sovs each.

The well-known jockey J. E. Pike leaves for England to-day by the steamship Orvieto, with the intention of following his vocation in the old country. Pike served his apprenticeship with W. Kelso at Randwick, and, under such a qualified mentor, he rapidly developed talent, which brought him into the front rank of horsemen while still in his apprenticeship. A few years ago W. Kelso took Pike for a trip to the old country, and, while there, he won a couple of good races—one at Newmarket, and the other at Manchester. On this occasion Pike is going as a free lance, and such a capable exponent of the game, at 20 years of age, and who can ride at 8st 2lb, should find his services in demand in the old land. Among the many races he won in his native land were the V.R.C. Ascot Vale Stakes and Derby on Beverage; the V.R.C. Essendon Stakes, Australian Cup, and Champion Stakes on Pendil; and the A.J.C. Autumn Stakes, Cumberland Stakes, and A.J.C. Plate on the celebrated Trafalgar at Randwick last April.

Our Wellington (N.Z.) correspondent cables that advices from Hastings state that Mr. E. J. Watt contradicts the statement cabled from Melbourne on February 4 to the effect that Midnight Sun is an unlikely starter for the Australian Cup. Providing that there is nothing amiss in the meantime, Midnight Sun will take his place in the field for the 2¼ miles race at Flemington.

The declaration of final forfeit yesterday for the Sixteenth Caulfield Futurity Stakes leaves a score acceptors, but evidently several have been left in by mistake, especially the Becky Sharp colt and the Litigant filly. This State is represented on the list by Cider, Burri, Voisloane, and Popinjay; Eudorus (imp.), Broadsword, Allcomer, Sheriff Muir, Parolles, Wolawa, and Mendai are among the Victorian acceptors, while South Australia is represented by Ireland and Rathlea. Last year there were 14 starters, and Popinjay, with 9st 1lb in the saddle, won from Desire and Comedy King, the latter of whom started favourite.

First forfeits for the V.R.C. Newmarket Handicap and Australian Cup fall due at 4 p.m. to-day.

Though he had eleven nominations for the A.J.C. St. Leger, 1913, Mr. J. Baron will not be represented in the classic race of the autumn, the pen having been put through the names of all his entrants yesterday.

The committee of the National Club has postponed its annual picnic fixed for the 14th inst to a date to be decided upon.

The entries received yesterday for Kembla Grange February meeting totalled 61, distributed as under:—Flying Handicap 9, Jumpers' Flat Race 10, Newton Mile 6, Grange Stakes 22, District Purse 2, and Kembla Welter 12. These are subject to local nominations.

ROSEBERY RACING CLUB.

LARGE ATTENDANCE AND BIG FIELDS.

HANDICAP WON BY LORELEY.

The Rosebery Racing Club yesterday afternoon ran off the meeting which had to be postponed from Saturday owing to the weather. The attendance was very large, and the fields were good in all the races. Two events had to be run in divisions. The prize-money in each of these events was increased to £100, and the winners divided. The weather was fine, but the stiff wind made matters rather unpleasant owing to the sand and dried grass being blown about freely. The week-end rains left the course in excellent order, and the going being good, the club records were broken in two instances. The stipendiary stewards had little to do, but fines were inflicted in a couple of cases for breaches of the rules. Three first favourites got home, but the bookmakers had easily the best of matters at the end of the day's racing. Two of the winners started at 10 to 1 and [illegible] at 7 to 1 against. Results:—

CONCORD'S ANNUAL MEETING.

The Concord Club's annual meeting was held in the School of Arts, Burwood, on Saturday night, when there was a good attendance. The annual report showed that there was a membership roll of 168 members of all classes at the beginning of the year. The course, through the year, had been maintained in excellent condition, mainly owing to the indefatigable efforts of Messrs. Arnott and Meares, who constituted the green committee. The report gives the names of the principal competition winners during the year, and also many other items of general interest to members.

The hon. treasurer's statement of receipts and expenditure, revenue account, and balance-sheet has been carefully drawn up by the hon. treasurer, W. Allen, who has besides compiled a comparative statement of receipts and expenditure during the last three years. The receipts and expenditure statement shows a healthy state of affairs, for though the club started the year with a deficit of £62 7s, they close with a credit of £12 15s, showing a profit for the year of over £75. Large increases are shown in wages, rates, and taxes, and horse feed items, but, on the other hand, there was a satisfactory increase in subscriptions. During the year an appeal was made to members for a voluntary subscription, and, as a result, the sum of £230 was contributed, a fact which speaks well for the esprit de corps existent in the club.

The following officers were elected:—Patron, Miss Eadith Walker; president, J. M. Arnott; vice-presidents, A. L. Mullens and S. Hordern; committee: J. M. Arnott, D. L. Aitken, W. Allen, J. W. Brown, S. Cotton, W. B. Fairfax, C. A. Fraser, R. B. Godbolt, S. Hordern, F. B. Jones, A. L. Mullens, J. O. Meeks, G. A. Parkes, J. C. M. See, and H. Wansey; hon. secretary, G. A. Parkes; hon. treasurer, W. Allen.

A match between teams from Vale of Clwydd and Hartley Vale, at Vale of Clwydd courts, resulted in a win for the home team.

ROWING.

PARRAMATTA RIVER PROFESSIONAL CLUB.

The races at the Parramatta River Professional Sculling Club's regatta on Saturday week are an outrigger handicap (two heats and final), a maiden outrigger handicap, a double sculls race in 16ft pleasure skiffs, and a match in outriggers. This last race will probably be extended and made a sweepstake. Negotiations are being made between George Towns, Chas. Matterson, A. Pearce, Geo. Jack, and H. Bailey to compete in a £5 sweepstake, the winner to receive £15, second £5, third £3, and fourth £2. These five scullers have been consistent performers for the last couple of years. The two veterans, George Towns and Chas. Matterson, are rowing exceptionally well at the present time, and the other competitors mentioned are young and powerful scullers. Matterson has won three handicaps during the last few weeks. Towns won a handicap at Lake Macquarie and secured second place in the outrigger race at Newcastle Regatta on New Year's Day, and Pearce, Bailey, and Jack have proved themselves speedy scullers by being placed in several races each during the last year or so.

The steamer Kookooburra has been chartered to follow the races, and is to leave No. 5 jetty at Fort Macquarie at 2.15 p.m. sharp. Entries for the various races close with the hon. secretary (Box 320, G.P.O.) tomorrow, Thursday.

A LADY'S MATCH.

Miss Alma Larsen has lifted her deposit for a match with Miss Kemp for the ladies' sculling championship. She is to row Miss Nita Gauciron in dairymen's punts on the Richmond River for the championship of the North Coast, and £25 a side. It now devolves on Miss Kemp to challenge Miss Larsen when she desires a race.

SWIMMING.

LADIES' CARNIVAL.

The plans of the seating accommodation at the carnival of the New South Wales Ladies' Amateur Association, to be held at the Municipal Baths next Saturday week, are on view at Nicholson's, in George-street, where seats may be booked. It is anticipated that there will be a great demand for seats, as it will be the first opportunity that the male section of the community has had of seeing Miss Fanny Durack race. Entries for all events close next Saturday night.

LIFE-SAVING CONTRIVANCE.

A contrivance for minimising the risk of life-lines being interfered with by people during the progress of a rescue in the surf has been devised by Mr. T. Gunning, of the Manly Life-saving Club, and is shortly to be installed at South Steyne. It consists of a tower built on the adjustable telescope principle, and when fully extended reaches about 20ft above the ground. The line runs over the top platform, which is fitted with rollers and pulleys. There is room for two men to manipulate the line, who are enabled to obtain an uninterrupted view of the situation. The structure is on wheels, and can be run out into about 2ft of water. The lifeline passes over the heads of bathers for a considerable distance from the tower. The Manly Council is contributing half the cost of the contrivance—£20—while the Manly Life-saving Club is to pay the other half.

PRESENTATION AT NORTH STEYNE.

The members of North Steyne Surf Bathers' Life-saving Club tendered a smoke concert to Mr. E. M. V. Shemwell at the clubroom on Thursday night. Mr. Shemwell, who has relinquished the position of secretary of the club after four years' service, has been connected with many sporting movements in Manly. He was secretary of the Manly Marathon sports, and acted conjointly in a similar capacity for the Manly Venetian Carnival. Alderman E. D. Paterson (president) made him several presentations.

TRADES AND LABOUR.

MINING MECHANICS.

The Federated Mining Mechanics' Association is applying for a variation of the existing award. The application asks that the rates of wages shall be increased, and that conditions of work shall be generally improved. The case will come on for hearing on the 24th inst.

JAM INDUSTRY.

Mr. A. Carter, secretary of the Factory Employees' Union, has received replies from several firms in respect to allegations of breaches of the award by the employment of non-unionists. Some of the replies were couched in terms of indignation. The managing director of the Peacock Jam Factory, Mr. Nossiter, declared that his firm had not been antagonistic to members of the union, and said that if prospective employees called at the factory between 7.30 a.m. and 9 a.m. they would get preference of employment. Messrs. Johnson Bros. and Co., Ltd., and the Stanmore Preserving Company, Ltd., were also surprised at the resolution, and declared that there was no antagonism between them and their respective employees.

LABOUR AND NON-UNIONISTS.

BROKEN HILL, Monday.

The Shop Assistants and Warehouse Employees' Federation has carried unanimously the following resolutions:—"(1) That we pledge our union not to receive or deliver any goods at any shop or warehouse where non-unionists are employed. (2) That this union notifies all unfinancial members and non-unionists connected with the shopping businesses, and all employers of such persons, that such employees must make themselves financial or become members by February 28, or drastic action will be taken."

At the weekly meeting of the King Labour League a presentation was made by the president, Mr. W. Clapham, on behalf of the league members, and to Mr. R. Puflett, the late secretary, in recognition of his services to the Labour movement.

SCALDED WITH JAM.

A FATAL ACCIDENT.

"Accidental death" was the City Coroner's verdict of an inquest yesterday regarding the death of Thomas Bernard Benedict Woods, 20, at Prince Alfred Hospital on February 5.

Arthur Jones, a labourer, informed the court that, with him, the deceased, on February 4, at 12.20 p.m. was carrying some hot apple juice in a circular copper pan, when Woods slipped and fell. The juice went all over his body, although witness tried to prevent this by dropping his end of the pan. Dr. Maguire admitted the deceased at the hospital suffering from extensive scalds on the head and body.

HUMAN SKELETON AT BOTANY.

In the scrub off Smith-street, Botany, on Sunday afternoon, Francis de Lacy found the skeleton of a man. The Botany police subsequently had the remains removed to the morgue. A blue flannel undershirt, a soft white shirt, and part of a blue sock were the only articles of clothing about the skeleton.

ASPHALT FOR CITY STREETS.

The City Council, at its meeting last evening, considered a recommendation from the works committee that O'Connell-street and Phillip-street, from King-street to Hunter-street, be paved with asphalt, at the same price and under the same terms and conditions and specifications as applied to the paving of Chalmers and Elizabeth streets, and that a contract be entered into on these terms.

CIGARETTES WITHOUT AN OWNER.

The Customs searchers' staff yesterday discovered a package containing 6000 cigarettes in the Chinese firemen's quarters on the steamer Montoro, which arrived recently from Singapore. As no owner could be found for the cigarettes the contraband was removed to the King's warehouse.

GRAPHIC METEOROLOGY.

The Commonwealth Meteorological Bureau issues a novel "Rain Clock" in the form of a hanging wall chart. Behind a cut-out outline of Australia moves a card index plotted to show mean monthly rainfall over the continent. The index can be rotated so that the index line coincides in succession with the months of the year marked on a scale, and when that is done a rain map for the particular month is secured. Around the margin of the outline map are arranged 12 reference maps, one for each month, from which the actual mean rainfall can be read off. The idea is an ingenious one, and, hung in schoolrooms, for example, should help to promote an intelligent interest in weather observations. The seasonal drift in rainfall distribution is well brought out by this method. The department also forwards an average rainfall map of Tasmania, being the fifth of a series of such maps covering the Commonwealth. The most striking feature of the map is the great variation between highest and lowest average falls, from 17.93 inches at Beaufort to 115.82 inches at Mount Lyell. The back sheet of the "rain clock" gives a revised average annual rainfall map for the Commonwealth.

A NEW SKIN FOR 3/9.

To the Dermal Institute,
Brisbane.

Dear Mdm'selle,—

"If ever it is my good fortune to meet you I shall deem it an honour to be able to thank you personally for conferring the benefit upon women you have done in producing such an invaluable freckle and tan preparation as Thermol. I have been freckled for 13 years, and what haven't I tried to clear my skin? I've rubbed in this, that, and the other thing—I've tried every remedy I've been told of—I've tried massage—and, in the end, I had more big brown freckles and a more leathery tan than ever. I used to just smother my face in powder when I went out, but what was the use? I could not wear evening dress because of my tanned and freckled arms and shoulders. You see, I'm an enthusiastic tennis player and surfer. And then I used Thermol. In a week every freckle and trace of tan on my face went—in a fortnight my arms and hands were as clear as a child's, and now my sister is using up the rest for her tan. I had big brown spots, too, on my face, and now they're all gone. As the makers of this splendid, this beautiful freckle and tan preparation, you deserve the thanks of every woman and girl who loves the sunshine. Yours very truly——."

Thermol for freckles and tan is 3/9 (postage 6d), only from Durno, Ltd., Chemists, Pitt-street, Sydney; and the Dermal Institute, Hair and Skin Physicians, Queen-street, Brisbane. You want just one jar—no more, to move the
